L. A. WOMAN LOSES FIGHT FOR HUSBAND

Father of Val Jean Case on Witness Stand Refuses to Tell Where His Son Is or Other Details of Tangle

Irma Case Threatens Suit for Alienation, Battery; Alameda Man Declares He Is Ready to Defend Action

Refusing to answer any questions directed at him which pertained to a time previous to the service on him of a writ of habeas corpus, Howard H. Case, 1920 Santa Clara avenue, today defeated the efforts of Mrs. Irma Case, his daughter-in-law, to prove that he was secreting and unlawfully imprisoning his son, Val Jean Case.

Case told Superior Judge George Samuels that his son was not in his custody, and that he does not know where he is. He denied restraining young Case, who is thirty years old.

Asked if on July 1, he had not told Mrs. Case that she could not see her husband, Case said:

ARRIVAL AT CASE HOME IS RECOUNTED.

"I refuse to answer that question, or any question that has to do with any time previous ao July 5, when this writ was served upon me."

Mrs. Irma Case then took the stand and testified that she had come to Oakland from Los Angeles in response to letters from her husband in which he indicated that he desired to see her.

Arriving at the Y. W. C. A. she telephoned the Case home and asked her husband to meet her within an hour, which he promised to do, she said. Instead of the husband appearing his father arrived, she said, and told her that she could not see Case. She said she asked to be taken to the home, which was denied. She then asked to meet her husband on a street corner near the home and this was also denied, she declared.

FINDS HERSELF IN ALAMEDA HOSPITAL.

She then went to the home and upon being refused admittance went to the garage where she found a machine. She sat in the car and honked the horn for several minutes, when H. H. Case appeared and ordered her out of the car. When she refused to go until she had seen her husband Case seized her and dragged her from the car, according to her testimony.

She said she stood in the back yard and called her husband's name until the arrival of the police, who had been sent for by Mrs. Case, she declared. She fainted at this point and when she recovered she was in the Alameda receiving hospital.

When Judge Samuels announced his decision Mrs. Case broke down and was led weeping from the court room by her attorney.

OTHER SUITS ARE THREATENED.

Counsel for Mrs. Case said after the court session that he will immediately file a damage suit on behalf of his client against Mr. and Mrs. Case on three grounds, alienation of affection, false arrest and battery.

Case maintained his former refusal to discuss the case. He showed a newspaper clipping which he said had been sent him by his daughter-in-law showing a list of divorces filed in Los Angeles in which Mrs. Case appears as plaintiff in a suit against Val Jean Case. In this connection Case said:

"I am told I am to be sued. I do not care to discuss matters now but will have plenty to say when the time comes. My son is thirty years old and his own master. I have no control over him and have no fear of any court actions."

3 Berkeley Boys Are First Over Tioga Pass Road

WITH an old car of popular make retrieved from a junk yard and fixed up with a number of heterogeneous parts, Brown Zarley, Berkeley high school track team captain, and W. E. Musgrave and J. Taylor, also high school students, have returned to Berkeley after winning the distinction of being the first party this year over Tioga Pass.

The students encountered ten feet of snow, boulders on the road and fallen pines barring their path. While taking a swim at Tuolumne Meadows, they report, firm in the belief that they had no rivals for the honor of being first over the pass, another machine chugged by. The students hastily left the water and soon overtook the other machine.

SUICIDE BLAMED FOR MAN'S DEATH

Hayward Carrier Believed to Have Thrown Himself Beneath Train.

HAYWARD, July 7.—Suicide is ascribed by Marshal Fred Schilling in the death of James E. Green, 43 years old, newspaper carrier, whose body was found by J. D. Harrington, agent for the Southern Pacific, on the track at the company's station. Green is believed to have thrown himself under the train that passed through Hayward at 2:30 this morning. Harrington found the body at 5:30. Green's automobile was parked nearby.

According to Mrs. Green, of Sunset boulevard and Castro street, her husband had been in poor health and despondent for several months. He was in a hospital for three months last year, she says, and recently had been endeavoring to dispose of his business so they could leave for the east.

Engine men on Southern Pacific trains were not aware of the mishap, according to Marshal Schilling, who is of th opinion that Green plunged under the train after the locomotive had passed.

NAVAL PACT IS RATIFIED BY FRENCH

Belief in Paris That All Treaties Will Be Approved. U. S. Decides to Maintain Full Efficiency at Sea

PARIS, July 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—The French Chamber of Deputies this evening ratified the Washington treaty for the limitation of naval armaments and capital ships by a vote of 460 to 106.

It was announced this evening that the Chamber of Deputies would discuss next Monday the Washington treaties relating to the Pacific, the use of gases in war and the protection of neutrals.

It was the general impression in French political circles after the first day's debate in the Chamber on the question of ratifying the naval treaties adopted by the Washington armament conference that the accords would be promptly ratified. It was pointed out that in addition to the comfortable working majority whch the Poincare government has in the Chamber the followers of former Premier Briand, the radical party and the members of the moderate left were also committed to ratification, while the opposition was both unorganized and sporadic.

BRIAND PROMPTLY DEFENDS PACT TERMS.

The treaties were taken up today in open session of the Chamber for the first time with the clauses dealing with the limitation of armament and capital ships the object of special consideration. Wth Premier Poincare and other members of the government present, Charles Gfernier, reporter for the foreign affairs commission, spoke on his report favoring ratification of the treaties with slight reservations. During his speech, amplifying and explaining his report, the deputy referred to the figures of tonnage of capital ships as being "imposed upon" each nation. At this, former Premier Briand, who headed the French delegation at the Washington conference, jumped to his feet and speaking with intense earnestness, said:

"No conditions were imposed upon France, and the figures of tonnage adopted for capital ships have no influence over other units. This French liberty of action concerning light cruisers, torpedo boats and submarines remains absolutely intact."

WASHINGTON, July 7. — The United States will maintain at full efficiency during the next fiscal year "a minimum naval force at sea" of 18 first line battleships, 14 cruisers and 84 submarines under a decision by the general board formally approved by Secretary Denby.

An analysis of the complete program shows the navy will keep at fighting trim and at sea the full strength allotted to the United States under that treaty.

NEW SHIPS WILL REPLACE OLD ONES.

The practical strength of the force to be maintained will be augmented from time to time during the year by the replacement of old ships with new ones, which will be completed and commissioned. Prominent among these are the battleships Colorado and West Virginia, which will replace the Delaware and North Dakota, the latter being due for decommissioning and scrapping.

Other new ships to be added include seven light cruisers of the Omaha class, several of which already have been delivered, and eight to ten submarines.

Invading Forces Occupy Suburbs of Frankfort, Outlying Districts; Troops Seize 7,000,000 Marks in Bank

BERLIN, July 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—The semi-official news agency today published the following: "It is learned from Rome that upon the receipt of the news that vigorous measures had been taken in the occupied German territories as the result of the Duisburg railway accident, the Curia has sent telegraphic instructions to the nunciatures in Paris and Brussels to make representations to the French and Belgian governments, and to state that his holiness expects no measures shall be taken which might lead to still further embitterment of feeling, with correspondingly painful consequences."

BERLIN, July 7.—The Vossische Zeitung reports that the French have occupied the Duisburg branch of the reichsbank and seized about 7,000,000 marks.

LONDON, July 7.—(By United Press.)—French troops Friday occupied outlying houses of the city of Frankfort in the Ruhr valley, according to a Central News despatch from Brussels.

Territory adjacent to the city also was occupied by the French as they extended their lines.

BRUSSELS, July 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Belgian diplomatic agent at Berlin has informed the German government that diplomatic relations will be suspended if the Reich does not repudiate unequivocally the Ruhr crimes. The French ambassador has given similar notice.

The Belgian demand conveyed the idea that unless Germany complied the situation would be likely to result in the withdrawal of the Belgian minister.

The French, while standing with the Belgians, still hope no necessity will arise for the carrying out of the Belgian threat, which would be followed by France.

APPEAL OF CONDEMNED GERMANS DENIED.

DUESSELDORF, July 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—The appeal of seven Germans against the death penalty imposed on them last week by a French courtmartial at Mayence has been rejected by the court of appeal. The men, Herren Sasse, Maurer, Gruber, Hanne, Schneider, Dreyer and Frey, were charged with sabotage.

DUISBURG, July 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Because posters announcing the penalties inflicted on this town after last week's bomb explosion have been mutilated in a certain part of the town, all traffic has been prohibited in that section until further notice. It is expected the suspension will be enforced for two or three days.

It was reported yesterday that three Germans were shot and wounded last night by a Belgian patrol for being out after the curfew hour. It also was reported that in the town of Schwerte a German was killed by a French patrol. According to the German account he was in unoccupied territory; the French say he was caught sniping.

Much sniping activity is going on along the dividing line between the occupied and unoccupied sections.

Stays Decreed For Office Girls In U.S. Hospital

"There has been too much laughing and talking down the halls with the patients," Miss Alice said. "Give the boys a run for their money; the girl a man admires most is one whom he must fight for.

"The woman who flagrantly displays her charms soon will be a back number. They are only toys with which men play and then cast aside.

JOHNSTON OF S. F. WINS AT TENNIS

California Player Defeats Hunter for Grass Courts Championship.

WIMBLEDON, July 7 (By the Associated Press). — William M. Johnston, No. 2 in the American lawn tennis ranking, is the new world's champion on grass courts. The diminutive San Franciscan defeated Francis T. Hunter of New Rochelle, N. Y., ninth ranking American, in the final of the Wimbledon tournament today, 6-0, 6-2, 6-1.

W. M. JOHNSTON

Johnson outdrove and outserved Hunter in the first set, in which he did not allow him a single game. Hunter was more epective in the second set, but Johnston recovered many of his opponent's intended placements while putting him own entirely out of reach. Little Bill was playing with sureness and speed and keeping Hunter on the defensive at all times.

Hunter was unable to advance to the net in the face of Johnston's bewildering cross fire. He was kept constantly on the run in attempts to retrieve Little Bill's deep placed drives. The Californians continually forced the pace and his superiority was evident at all times.

Randolph Lycett and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, both of England, won the world's tennis title in the mixed doubls today by defeating L. S. Deane, Indian Davis cup star, and Mrs. Shepard-Barron of England, 3-4, 7-5.

ALIEN SHIP BOOZE CURB MODIFIED

Liquor Allowances to Foreign Vessels in American Waters Based on Law of Nation to Which Bound

Montana Federal Judge Decides Congress Cannot Dictate Number of Alcoholic Prescriptions to Doctors

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Ship liquor allowances to foreign ships in American waters under a decision by the treasury will be based hereafter on the requirements of the laws of the country in whose trade the vessels are operating, regardless of the nationality of the owners.

By this addition to the ship liquor regulations a British owned ship engaged exclusively in Italian trade will receive allowances of intoxicants sufficient to comply with the laws of Italy. If a vessel's passenger list and cargo come from several countries, each of which has laws requiring liquor stores, the general medical supply will be granted and specific provision of the several laws will be met in addition.

The decision resulted from representations made by the owners of the Cunard liner Tuscania and the White Star liner Arabic through the British embassy. Each ship came in conflict with the laws of Italy requiring wine stores for steerage passengers and their owners appealed to this government for relief.

CONGRESS CANNOT DICTATE PRESCRIPTIONS.

HELENA, Mont., July 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—So long as it has decided that alcohol may be used for medicinal purposes, congress can not dictate to physicians the number of whisky prescriptions they may write or the quantity prescribed, according to a decision here yesterday by Federal Judge George M. Bourquin. The ruling of Judge Bourquin was the first of its kind in this section of the northwest, but similar to that of Federal Judge Knox, of New York, who, on May 9, granted an order restraining prohibition authorities from interfering with the practice of Dr. Samuel W. Lambert as to the amount of whisky that might be prescribed to one patient.

Judge Bourquin decision invalidated the prosecution of Dr. J. B. Freund of Butte, charged with having issued more than 100 prescriptions within 90 days and with prescribing more than half a pint of alcohol to one patient in ten days.

The court held in substance that congress can not substitute its judgment for that of the physician and that those portions of the federal enforcement act seeking to limit the number of prescriptions written and the quantity prescribed are invalid.

PITTSBURGH POLICE HIT BY DRY DRIVE.

PITTSBURGH, July 7. — The city's drive against liquor heavy wines and beer launched recently, has hit the police department as well as the bootleggers, it was revealed last night when Police Superintendent Edward N. Jones announced the suspension of eleven patrolmen.

The order removing the officers from their official duties followed revelations made at a police board trial yesterday by thirteen other officers, including one lieutenant and plain clothes men, who were suspended last week after the most sensational raid on alleged "speak easies" and beer and wine resorts, in the history of the city.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Under an executive order signed by President Harding June 19, and made public today, Secretary Denby of the Navy Department becomes responsible for the administration of the Volstead act in the Virgin Islands. ATLANTA, Ga., July 7.—Conceding that the house temperance committee in all probability will render an adverse report on his measure to repeal the state prohibition law, Representative Craig Arnold, Lumpkin ounty, states he will stake his chances for success in an attempt to bring the bill before the whole house when the committee verdict is read.

"One of my chief reasons in urging the repeal of the state dry law is the fact that Georgia has no policing forces or a state constabulary. There is no co-operation now between state and federal officials."

George Shaw of Truxton, with whom, it was charged, the barter was consummated, recently was released in $1000 bail on a charge of attacking the younger daughter.

The latter and her brother will be committed to the county home. The court ordered the father be compelled to pay for their care. The elder daughter, Mamie Thornington, 26, found in the Shaw home, was detained for mental examination.

It came to light in the investigation that the children never had seen a railroad train until recently and had been closely confined.

Dana, of the Newland Hotel, San Jose, was killed, and Mrs. Mary Thomas probably fatally injured, Nicholas Metiltone, driver of the machine, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter sworn to by Sheriff Howard V. Trafton, of Santa Cruz county. Trafton says his information is that Metiltone was driving in excess of the legal limit and in a reckless manner. The car plunged into a ditch and turned over several times. John Roberto, a fourth member of the party, suffered slight injuries.

AERONAUTS LOST DURING LAKE STORM

Airplane Scouts Join Search for Missing Naval Officers: Lieut. R. S. Olmstead Reported Winner of Flight

CLEVELAND, O., July 7.—A balloon believed to be the missing giant navy entry in the Indianapolis air race was found early today floating in Lake Erie, 25 miles southwest of Fort Stanley, Ontario, according to a message received here. There was no sign of life and the large basket had sunk beneath the folds of the balloon, which still contained a small amount of gas. As the lake at that point is 125 feet deep, fear was expressed that Lieutenant L. J. Roth of Lakehurst, N. J., and Telford B. Hull, his aide, may have lost their lives in the water.

The balloon was sighted by the quartermaster of the steamer Colonial.

"We went off our course and circled the bag twice," said the quartermaster. "We noted that the basket was submerged. We determined that we could do no good, so went directly into Port Stanley and called for a tug.

"The tug started immediately for the scene and will tow the bag into Port Stanley."

The quartermaster said it would be impossible to determine if there are any bodies in the basket until the bag is towed into port.

BALLOON ANSWERS DESCRIPTION OF ROTH'S.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Fear that the balloon reported partially submerged and apparently unmanned, about 25 miles from Port Stanley, Ontario, in Lake Erie, was that in which Lieutenants L. J. Roth and T. B. Null, naval airmen, left here July 4 in the national elimination race, was expressed by officials of the contest today. The ship, U. S. Navy No. A-6898, was silver in color, and bore the usual aerial service insignia, a red, white and blue circle in the center of which was a red star, it was said. This answers the description given of the derelict airship adrift in Lake Erie as given by officers of the ship Colonial.

The balloon that was sighted by the steamship Colonial, which landed at Port Stanley this morning was reported to be blue in color. It was explained, however, that the bag might look blue from a distance.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 7.—(By International News Service.)—The last men who seem to have seen the missing navy balloon which took part in the national race, piloted by Lieutenant L. J. Roth and his aide, are Lieutenant-Colonel R. S. Olmstead and Lieutenant R. W. Shotpaw, who came down Thursday night in their balloon near Marilla, fifteen miles east of Buffalo.

Olmstead and Shotpaw, who are still here, saw Roth's balloon over lake Erie near Toledo Thursday morning. There was a bad storm over the lake and the balloon and its occupants may have been claimed by it. No word of its whereabouts has been received here and incoming lake vessels report no sight of it.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Lieut. R. S. Olmstead, U. S. Army S-6, seems to have won tre big baloon race. According to the check, H. E. He brought his balloon to the ground at Brockwell, N. Y. Honeywell was the last pilot to report. The other bags, piloted by Lieutenant J. B. Lawrence, Washington naval officer; C. E. Diver Unable To Find Body of Boy

TURLOCK, July 7.—Rescue crews had been unable to locate the body of Charles Eastman, 18, in the waters of the Merced river up to a late hour Thursday night, although a professional diver, Arthur O'Hara, had thoroughly explored the river bed for several hundred yards downstream in both the San Joaquin and Merced rivers. Dynamite was resorted to about 5 o'clock but the corpse failed to appear.

The boy, only son of Rev. C. R. Eastman, was caught in an undertow early the morning of July Fourth and searchers have been dragging the river bed ever since. Rev. Eastman is in a precarious condition following the drowning of his boy.

WHY CONDUCTORS ARE MOROSE.

Street car conductors often have their tempers tried by the inconsiderate portion of the public, but they are not allowed to ease their feelings by "talking back." One of them related yesterday an occurrence on his line a few days ago.

A very fashionably dressed lady, accompanied by a little boy, boarded a car which was quite full of people. "Conductor," she said languidly, "let me know when we arrive at Pease avenue."

When the car arrived at that street the conductor rang the bell and the car stopped.

"Pease avenue, ma'am," he said, climbing off to assist her from the car.

The lady raised the little boy to his knees and pointed out the window at the name of the street which was on a board nailed to the corner of a fence.

"Look, Freddy," she said, "that tall, straight letter with a funny little curl at the top is a 'P.' Now dont forget it again. You can go on, conductor; we get off at Gray street."

TOO MUCH.

The independent society of emancipated women was about to form in line for the grand parade through the principal streets of the city.

They were a thousand strong and they were prepared to demonstrate that they were fully equal to man in strength, courage and ability to cope with the world.

The young woman who was to head the procession and carry the banner, stepped forward.

She was a magnificent brunette, five feet eight inches in height, and with flashing eyes and determined manner.

The band began playing, and an attendant brought her the banner she was to carry.

She took it in her hand, and then with a loud scream threw it from her as far as she could, and sank upon the ground trembling with fright. The banner was made of mouse colored silk.

LAST RITES HELD FOR VICTIM OF CHICO AIR BOMB

CHICO, July 7.—Funeral services were held here Thursday for Margaret McCabe, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy McCabe, who died at a local hospital of injuries received Wednesday night, when a giant air torpedo, fired as part of the Fourth of July program at the Teachers' college campus, veered from its course and exploded in the center of a party of small girls. Two other girls were slightly injured.

The fireworks display had been in progress for nearly 45 minutes and was being viewed by a crowd estimated to number between 5000 and 6000 people, when suddenly one of the large explosives shifted from its course as it started on its upward journey, and soared over the heads of the crowd at an elevation of scarcely 50 feet, dropping directly downward near the west side of the field, and exploding directly in front of Margaret. Her father, seated behind her, made a vain effort to dive in front of the girl; and though slightly injured himself, picked his daughter up and rushed toward an exit before even those seated nearby were aware that anyone had been injured.

Cries of "No one's hurt; sit down!" sounded from all parts of the field, and the crowd, which was on the verge of a panic, quieted down and the display was continued.

The injured girl was rushed to the hospital, together with her 12-year-old sister, Elizabeth, and Alice Krikac, also 12, who, seated close to Margaret, sustained slight powder wounds.

Margaret was frightfully injured by the explosion, the blast having occurred directly in front of her. She lived but a short time.

'OLD-FASHIONED RELIGION' URGED AS WORLD CURE

DES MOINES, Ia., July 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—The unsettled world requires but one antidote for its ills, the service upon which Christian Endeavor societies are based and a return to "old-fashioned religion," Dr. Ira Landrith of Chicago, extension secretary and editor of the Christian Endeavor World, declared in an address last night before the international convention.

The welfare of the world, he said, depends on the younger generations of America. It was the duty of Christian Endeavor, he added, to give America and the world a succession of generations of right thinking young people.

Tracing the growth of Christian Endeavor since it was founded 42 years ago, Dr. Landrith declared it was opportune that the movement came into its present strength at a time "when the world's supreme need is a dependably upright and unselfish generation."

A. J. Shartle of Boston told the delegates industrial peace might be achieved and the problems of the world solved through the application of the golden rule.

"The teachings of Jesus, when applied to human relations, will solve all disputes," he said. "It is because of the faith we have in the efficacy in this principle that we are bold enough to suggest a program of world peace based upon good will."

TURKS REPULSE GREEK ATTEMPT TO LAND FORCE

SOFIA, July 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—A report received last night from Constantinople, says the Greeks attempted to land a regiment at Kara- Burun, near the Dardanelles, and that the Turks repulsed them after severe fighting. There were many casualties on both sides, the report says. In the fighting a Turkish torpedo boat sank a Greek ship, according to the Constantinople report, and many were drowned.

The fighting took place Wednesday night but the report did not reach here until yesterday. It said that the Greeks occupied the coast line and the battle ensued, many being killed and wounded on each side. Finally the Greeks fled in panic to their boat which was fired upon by the torpedo boat Kemal Pasha, a large number of the Greeks going down with their vessel.

The Angora government, the report added, has telegraphed a protest to the Near East conference at Lausanne. The Turkish frontier has been closed three days.

WHY BUY FRUIT WHEN IT'S LEFT WITHOUT GUARD

SAN JOSE, July 7.—The market is poor. The price is low—very low. But just the same there is a great demand for apricots, at least in one family, according to the belief of W. H. Sloan, Alta Mesa orchardist.

Sloan left thirty boxes of choice 'cots in his orchard Thursday night. At 6:30 yesterday morning he took a crew of men into the orchard to start work. Part of the work was to haul the thirty boxes of apricots to a nearby cannery. The men, however, were out of a job in this latter respect, for thieves had come to the orchard in the night and had loaded the thirty boxes on a truck, saving Sloan's workmen the trouble. Tracks of a light truck were the only clues left for deputies of Sheriff George W. Lyle to follow.

ATTACKS BY U. S. DRY AGENTS MUST END, SAYS JUDGE

Federal Notice Demanded of Raid; Bystander Charges Assault.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—Declaring that brutal assaults on the part of prohibition enforcement officers must cease and that they must remember that they themselves are amenable to the law, Police Judge Sylvester McAtee called upon the federal authorities to take cognizance of what he termed was an outrageous situation.

The case at bar was that of I. H. Corey, prohibition officer, charged with assault with a deadly weapon. The complainant is Charles Camp, foreman for the Western Stevedoring company, who claims that he was standing in front of the place when Corey leaped out of an automobile, struck him to the ground, knocked him unconscious and knocked out two teeth. Corey and other officers had just raided the place next door.

"I have heard Mr. Camp's story and he declares himself the victim of an unprovoked and brutal attack," said the court. "He is a good citizen. There have been other instances of similar tactics and they must cease. The federal authorities should take cognizance of the action of these prohibition officers. Every day arrests are made by the police for violating prohibition laws, but I've yet to hear of an instance of a police officer perpetrating such an attack."

Corey was represented by Assistant U. S. Attorney Kenneth Green. After the magistrate's statement Green said he was not there to take a lecture and suggested that the court not use snap judgment as he was convinced Corey was innocent. The latter claims another man administered the beating, but Camp asserts that it was Corey and that he has a witness to prove it. The case went over until July 12.

Corey later appeared before United States Commissioner Krull and obtained a warrant for the arrest of Camp on a charge of interfering with a federal officer and using abusive language.

Sheriff Elmer Gibson said that Osina admitted to him that he had killed his wife. According to the sheriff, Osina said:

DWARF PLANES WILL BE SHOWN

CHICAGO, July 7 (By Associated Press).—Embryonic airplane builders will have an opportunity to show their aptitude in fashioning airplanes at Chicago's first tournament for miniature plane models. Tentative dates for the affair have been set for August 17 and 18 with the approval of the air board of Chicago.

Five events are planned for the meet, which will be held in one of the city's largest parks. The first event will be for planes flying across 50-yard straight-away course. No limitation as to size or construction of the models will be placed.

A division for scale model planes, those fashioned after planes now in actual service in the army, navy or commercial aviation units, is listed. These miniatures will be judged for workmanship, design and performance.

Planes having a rubber band driving device will be entered in the third event. These will be hand launched and no restrictions as to size has been placed.

GOLDFIELD LEFT SMOULDERING IN MASS OF RUINS

RENO, Nev., July 7.—(By Associated Press).—A smouldering mass of ruins, here and there fanned into a blaze by the morning wind, is all that remains this morning of over twenty-six blocks of what was once the greatest gold camp in the west, Goldfield. The damage is estimated at $800,000 to $1,500,000.

Word from the famous camp early this morning said that "Goldfield will come back" and that business men were planning to rebuild their establishments immediately. Food supplies, bedding and other necesities have been shipped to Goldfield from Tonopah. The only need now is money to take care of destitute families. Plans were made here last night to supply that need.

SIX BLOCKS REMAIN.

Only six business houses remain but there are still plenty of cabins and residences to handle the needs of the citizens.

The fire started early yesterday morning from, it is said, the explosion of an illicit still. It rapidly spread and within an hour was sweeping the entire city.

The water supply of the city, carried by a slender pipe, thirty miles over the desert, was inadequate to cope with the situation. Dynamite was used, but it only served to render the dry, frame buildings into match-like splinters —easy prey for the flames.

GALE SPREADS FLAMES.

A forty-mile wind added to the horror of the day, but at 3 o'clock in the afternoon the fire burned itself out, within a stone's throw of one of the industries which kep the famous old gold camp alive—the Tonopah and Goldfield railroad shops.

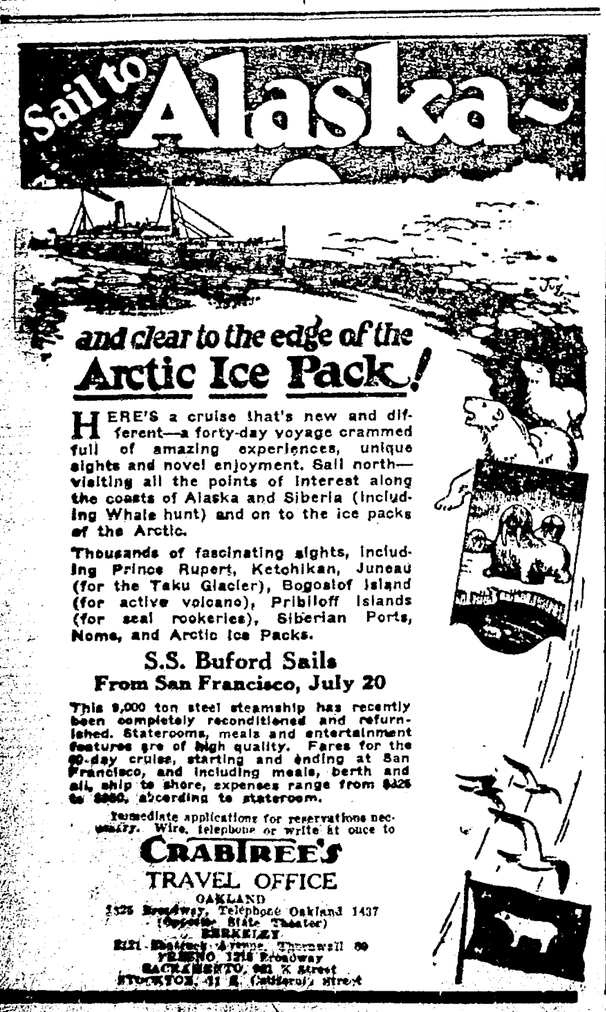

Goldfield, the scene of the famous Nelson-Gans fight, had a population of 22,000 persons when the bout was fought. Two years before that it consisted of an Indian's "wickie-up" and three persons, two Indians and a half-breed. They discovered the gold which brought thousands of prospectors to the camp and made it the liviest city in the west over night.

NAVY TRANSPORT BEARING HARDING NEARS KETCHIKAN

Static Interference Causes Attempt at Radio Communication to Fail.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 7.—The United States naval transport Henderson, with President Harding and his party aboard, bound for Alaska, was bowling along at a 12-knot gait this morning somewhere in the vicinity of Dixon's Entrance, north of Vancouver Island and within striking distance of Ketchikan, the first port of call in Alaskan waters.

Radio stations on the mainland were unable to communicate at length with the transport because of static interference, but the few words that came through intermittently indicated that the vessel was proceeding according to schedule and that the president, Mrs. Harding and other members of the party were enjoying immensely the wild and rugged scenery that abounds along the narrow, winding waters of the inside passage. A drizzling rain continued to fall yesterday and last night, marring to some extent the view from the ship, but fair weather there was reported from Southeastern Alaskan stations this morning.

SAN DIEGO, July 7.—Change in President Harding's plans by which his stay on the Pacific Coast will be prolonged two days more than had been outlined in his original program, is announced in a telegram received here from Seattle and sent to the local reception committee by Walter F. Brown, who recently was here to arrange details of the President's stay in San Diego. Brown's telegram said:

"Impossible to omit Santa Catalina Island trip without greatly disappointing Mrs. Harding. Have therefore arranged for President to sail from San Diego August 6. You will be able to carry out the long program with slight modifications. Am mailing today detailed program.

"What is the address of Grauman's Million Dollar theater?"

307 Broadway, Los Angeles.

"Please state where Bushrod Park is and how to get there."

Bushrod Playground, formerly Bushrod Park, is off Shattuck avenue between 59th and 60th streets. Take Car No. 4, on Broadway or Telegraph avenue in the main part of town, and get off at 60th street at the Washington school. The playground is east of the school.

"When using a troll line in fishing for smelt, which is the best bait to use? Are clams good?"

Don't try to troll for smelt. Sink your line about ten or fifteen feet, with a cork on it, using live spile worms out of mussels for bait. Clams are not good as bait for smelt.

"Will you please give me the definition of the word 'Oz?'"

The word "Oz" has no meaning. It is purely fictitious. There is a series of stories about the "Wizard of Oz," written by Frank Baum.

"What were Thomas Paine's last words?"

Paine died on June 8, 1809. His last words were to Madam Bonneville, in whose home he was. As she entered his room, he said to her, "Let me alone. Good morning." Madam Bonneville asked him whether he was satisfied with the treatment he had received in her home. He breathed, "Oh, yes," and died.

"Can you tell me whether Roy Gardner, the bandit, has been operated on?"

No, the proposed operation has never been performed.

"Please publish a recipe for apple jelly."

Wipe apples, remove stems and blossom ends, and cut in quarters. Put in a granite or porcelain-lined preserving kettle, and add cold water to come nearly to top of apples. Cover, and cook slowly until apples are soft; mash, drain through a coarse seive. Avoid squeezing apples, which makes jelly cloudy. Then allow juice to drip through a double thickness of cheese cloth or a jelly bag. Boil twenty minutes, and add an equal amount of heated sugar; put your sugar in a large granite pan and warm slowly, stirring occasionally, in oven (not too hot). Boil five minutes, skim, and turn into glasses. Place in a sunny window and let stand twenty-four hours. Cover, and keep in a cool, dry place. If apples are pared, a much lighter jelly may be made.

"Please publish a recipe for blackberry jelly."

Pick over blackberries, wash and drain well. Mash a few in the bottom of a preserving kettle, using a wooden potato masher; so continue until berries are all used. Cook slowly until they begin to look white. Strain through a coarse seive, then allow the juice to drop through a double thickness of cheesecloth or a jelly bag. Measure, bring to the boiling point, and boil five minutes; add an equal measure of heated sugar, boil three minutes, set aside, skim and pour into glasses. Place in a sunny window, and let stand twenty-four hours. Cover and keep in a cool, dry place.

CURTAIN CALLS
By WOOD SOANES

"I SAW so much bad acting and so many poor plays in New York that I believe the supposed superiority of Broadway productions is a myth. The plays in the West are just as well acted and as well staged as those in the East although naturally they are produced later."

This statement emanating from Sam Hume director of the Greek theater on his return from the East leads the casual reader to believe that either Hume was misquoted or some one tread on his toes while he was visiting in New York for he is not accustomed to issue absurd statements.

On the face of it the statement is ludicrous for no matter how much the local theatergoer and play lover desires to keep the home fires burning he cannot hope to convince himself that he is seeing here productions as fine as he could see in New York.

TWENTY SEASONS AGO TODAY

Emmett Corrigan is appearing in "Kidnaped" at the Central.

In the first place New York is the mecca for the most distinguished of theatrical talent. Actors all over the country are constantly praying that someday they may have an opportunity to make a Broadway debut. Some times the actor will deny this but have you ever found one who refused a chance?

What applies to the actor likewise is true of the other craftsmen of the theater. They are not yet educated to anything but New York and London. All other cities are suburbs to th.m. If you doubt this you may try your hand at importing an established star to the West for special engagements. Once here, fine; but the idea of coming, difficult of percolation.

Theater Standards of West Being Elevated Each Year

Of recent years the standard of theatrical entertainment has been elevated to great heights in the West. Time was when Oliver Morosco was the lone banner-bearer of the West. Now, it was only last season that half a dozen hits came out of the West. Next season will see more go overland to Broadway. But there is as yet no absolute sign of equality.

One of the most noticeable improvements has been right here in Oakland. For many years Oakland has supported a dramatic stock theater. From the days of the old Dewey dramatic stock was a favorite entertainment on this side of the bay.

FORTY SEASONS AGO TODAY

Now the Fulton ostensibly offers dramatic stock but it is stock in name only. Gradually the class of performance has been improved until now it is the regular thing to have a letter perfect premier performance, to have a scenic production worthy of Broadway, in fact so many improvements that the offerings are productions rather than stock offerings.

But it is a far cry from the productions here to those in New York. No matter how talented is the actor he can not hope to polish a role in five or six days of rehearsal. Even recognized stars playing in stock can do little more than block in the characters.

Perhaps someday, but not today, despite Hume's statement.

Louis N. Parker's new play is to bear the title "The Golden Triangle." It is described as a financial costume drama of the eighteenth century period.

• • •

Speaking of fanciful dramas brings to mind Barrie's "Dear Brutus" and the subsequent wonder as to what has happened to George Friend. He came out of his shell here last season for a brief —all too brief—engagement with the Pichel Players. Does that jovial actor intend to sell real estate for another dozen years before gracing the stage, or is he simply waiting to be invited.

It would almost be worth it to see "Charley's Aunt" again if Friend would play the fascinating Brazilian widow.

George Kelly's "The Torch-Bearers" reduced to vaudeville form is said to be screamingly funny. The second act of the play revealing the back-stage tribulations of the small-town amateurs in their attempt to present a serious drama, is said to be admirably adapted to the varieties.

• • •

CHICAGO, July 7.—(By The Associated Press.) — Defeated in efforts to promote unity of political action among minority political and industrial groups, but well satisfied with results, Farmer-Labor party and Federated Farmer-Labor party delegates went home today, each intent on putting its finger in the 1924 political pie.

Leaders of the Farmer-Labor party, who fought against affiliation with the Federated party in the face of a split in their own ranks, said thir party was "freed of a red menace and onits feet stronger than ever in pursuit of independent political satisfaction." The Federated Farmer-Labor party welcomed to its ranks the delegates who bolted the Farmer-Labor convention and elected five of them to its executive committee.

PROGRAMS PROPOSED.

Both parties prepared to launch programs of intensive activity, leading to individual platforms and presidential candidates in 1924. Jay G. Brown, national secretary of the Farmer-Labor party, said his party would immediately approach all groups of workers who could accept its principles and solicit their affiliation. The constitution of the Federated party calls for a nominating convention in December or January and it will send invitations to coming labor conferences to unite with it, leaders said.

William Bouck, representing farmers of Washington, was elected national chairman of the Federated party yesterday and headquarters will be here, leaders announced.

The minority faction left the Farmer-Labor party yesterday after the defeat by the convention of a motion made by M. Toscan Bennett, member of the party's national executive committee, which proposed placing five Farmer-Laborites on the executive committee of the Federated group with reservations.

LOSS IS DENIED.

Former Farmer Laborites elected to the Federated executive committee are C. J. Stevens, Kentucky; Mrs. Mary D. Bright, Cincinnati; John C. Kennedy, Washington state; Richard Swift, Illinois, and J. M. Rasmiller, Wisconsin. Claims of Kennedy that units in Washington, Ohio, Kentucky, Minnesota Wisconsin, Montana, Idaho, and California were lost to the Farmer-Labor party by the split were denied by Secretary Brown of that party.

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and Robert M. Buck, Chicago labor leader and editor, with the Illinois unit, led the fight against affiliation of the Farmer-Labor party with the Federated party. "We want political betterment, workers and farmers but we want control through the ballot in our own ranks and not from a dictatorship in Russia," declared Fitzpatrick.

Charges that the Workers party packed the convention, steam rollered it and stole the Farmer-Labor name were made by Buck.

R. W. Runde, Moon car dealer in Glendale, well known automobile man in the southern part of the state, has come to Oakland to handle Moon car sales here.

Runde purchased the interests of Ulrey-Noteware company and has established Moon sales and service facilities at Broadway and Piedmont avenue, in the building occupied by Ulrey-Noteware.

"I have sold Moon cars for the last ten years, in Glendale and other parts of the country. I started looking about for larger territory and found that the Oakland field was available, so decided to come here.

"The Moon car is built by one of the best financed automobile manufacturing companies in the country, in a modern plant in St. Louis.

"The car is a six-cylinder job, standard throughout, and built by men who have been in the organization for years."

Fire Survey Cuts Damage to $45,000

The fire Thursday evening in the building at Thirteenth and Clay streets occupied by the Gilchrist Furniture Company, caused a loss of about $45,000 only and not $100,000 as first estimated, Fire Chief Sam Short announced today. Careful investigation has led to the belief, said Chief Short, that the fire started in the basement from spontaneous combustion rather than from an explosion in the varnish room as first reported.

SIX INDICTED ON DOPE CHARGE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—Mrs. Anna E. Patterson, alleged "queen" of a Pacific coast narcotic ring, and five men who are declared to be her co-workers, are under federal indictment today on charges of violating the Harrison narcotic act.

The indictments were returned late yesterday by the federal grand jury.

Mrs. Patterson, who was arrested Thursday by federal agents, is still in custody in default of $10,000 bonds. The alleged ring was exposed as a result of her arrest. It is charged its members worked on a mail-order basis in some instances.

Investigation which led to the disclosure of the alleged "dope ring" began with the arrest of William Burns, employed at the Veterans' Home at Yountville.

Mrs. Patterson and Jacob Coleman, alias Don Le Croix, 177 Santa Ynez avenue, are jointly charged in one indictment. Coleman is said to have been Mrs. Patterson's chief assistant. Other accused persons are John Gillis, Frank P. Connolly, Harry Zammitt, and James B. Lee.

The complaint alleges that Bowen invented a secret radio telegraph system, a radio receiver, improvements on the frequency transformer, the variable condenser and rheostat control. He agreed with the defendants that they should manufacture his inventions, paying him a salary and royalty.

The complainant declares that $52,000 worth of these goods have been made and sold and that there is $3600 royalties and $2550 salary due him.

Holdup Suspect Is Caught After Fight

Jerry Smith, colored, is being held in the city prison for investigation in connection with alleged attempt to rob J. J. Rodrick early this morning. Rodrick claims he was held up by the colored man at the corner of Sixteenth and Adeline streets. After the holdup he went to the home of James Ryan, 1126 Adeline street. Both Rodrick and Ryan gave chase and overtook Smith at Fourteenth and Union streets, where a free-for-all fight took place. The police were called but when they arrived Smith had escaped. The police found his hat and coat where the fight occurred. The police discovered Smith a few blocks away from the scene of the fight. No charge has been placed against him. Smith told the police that he had been drinking. Rodrick resides at 1563 Fifth street.

SACRAMENTO, July 7.—The funeral of Leroy W. Cummings, a state highway engineer, who dropped dead near Wilbur Springs Thursday, was held today. Distinguished Visitors to Bay Country

Distinguished visitors to the bay region this week include M. and Mme. Canon-Legrand of Belgium. M. Canon-Legrand is recognized as an authority on international industrial relations. He has twice been president of the Allied Chambers of Commerce of the World and in 1919 at Atlantic City aided in the establishment of the International Chamber of Commerce. He is at present returning to Belgium after heading a commission from that country to the Orient in the interests of Belgian commerce. M. and Mme. Canon-Legrand, who have made several trips to this country heretofore, have a number of friends this side of the bay. They expect to spend some time in the state before leaving for the East on the last lap of their present journey around the world. They are stopping at the Whitcomb across the bay.

Since their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Bush have made their home in the Hawaiian islands. Californians who were entertained at their home this season were Mr. and Mrs. Stanford Brown (Marion McCreary), who went to the islands on their honeymoon.

State Blocks Loss of $150,000 Property

SACRAMENTO, July 7.—By advancing $30,000 from its emergency fund to the state reclamation board yesterday, the state board of control saved the state from losing title to 495 acres of land worth $150,000 on Sherman Island in the Sacramento river delta.

The land was sold to Reclamation District No. 341 a year ago after the old state reclamation board refused to pay assessments levied against it by the district. Today is the last day for redemption of the land. The attorney general's office ruled it was an emergency justifying the board of control in advancing funds to the reclamation board. The reclamation board paid the redemption claim under protest and may endeavor to secure its return.

The land was originally acquired for use as spoil bank areas in the project of clearing the Sacramento river near Rio Vista.

M'ADOO CHOSEN TO SPIKE GUNS OF HENRY FORD

Friends Launch Plans for Booming ex-Treasury Secretary.

NEW YORK, July 7.—(By Associated Press.)—Detailed plans for launching a William G. McAdoo-for-President boom have been worked out at a dinner of a dozen of his most intimate friends here, the New York Evening Post said today. Although McAdoo has not formally announced his candidacy, his supporters were declared to be confident that his hat would be in the ring.

The diners, meeting recently, ostensibly to honor Samuel B. Amidon, national Democratic committeeman from Kansas, picked Amidon to handle the McAdoo campaign, the Evening Post says.

STRENGTH DISCUSSED.

The diners discussed the relative strength of former Governor Cox of Ohio, Governor Smith of New York, Senator Underwood, former Ambassador to Great Britain John W. Davis and Henry Ford, concluding that McAdoo could enter the convention with 400 delegates and with many others ready to switch to him as soon as they had registered "favorite son" choices.

Amidon, now on his way to Europe, is expected to return in September, by which time it is said McAdoo clubs will have been formed in many states and the campaign be ready to be brought out into the open.

Among those present at the dinner were Stuart G. Gibbony, secretary of the Wilson campaign committee in 1912; Byron R. Newton, collector of the port of New York under the Wilson regime; Frank Wilson, publicity director of the third and fourth Liberty Loan drives; W. Judson Timmins, insurance broker; David Hunter Miller, attorney; E. Bright Wilson, president of the Tennessee Society, and Oscar Price, motion picture distributor.

DISCUSS FORD'S CHANCES.

Discussion of Henry Ford's chances was said to have occupied a good deal of the diners' time. The McAdoo strategists concluded that if McAdoo announced his candidacy soon enough, he could spike a Ford Democratic boom, although the Detroit manufacturer probably still would have to be reckoned with as a third party candidate.

Smith and Underwood, they decided, were not especially dangerous, it being held that the "wet" trend was politically unpopular. Cox, the Democratic standard bearer in the 1920 race, was believed by the diners to be McAdoo's most powerful opponent, reports reaching them that Kentucky, Ohio and at least two other Middle Western States were lining up for Cox.

Davis, the diners decided, probably would enter the campaign with a good show of strength led by his native West Virginia contingent, but most of this strength, it was declared, could be swung to McAdoo.

Births Exceed the Deaths for Period

SAN LEANDRO, July 7.—More were born in this city than died in the last six months, according to a report made by City Clerk J. J. Gill. This is not an unusual condition for San Leandro, he states.

From January 1 to June 30 there were forty-four births, while during the same period there were only thirty-four deaths. Infant mortality was very low, with only one or two deaths recorded. Gill states that the average age of the deaths was over 60 years.

Service Put In Business Men's Hands

Plymouth Congregational church announces for tomorrow evening the first of a unique and striking series of Community Sunday nights for July under the auspices of the Piedmont Avenue Business Men's Association with Frederick Vining Fisher as the director and speaker.

"Bali, the Unknown," a noted brilliant colored scenic feature motion picture of the South Seas, will be the center of the evening's program. This is the noted film featured by the National Geographic Society and is founded on Horton's famous travel story of the South Pacific. Accompanying this will be music and a community address on "The Community, the Laboratory of Civilization." Music from 7:45 to 8 p. m. Organ recital by Arthur J. McHoul, formerly of Chile.

Up till 8 o'clock admission to reserved seats is by tickets, after that the doors are open to the public. These tickets are good for the whole series of four July Sunday nights and are complimentary to the patrons of the business men of Piedmont avenue and can be procured from them or from the church office of Plymouth church. There are 800 tickets available.

It is anticipated that this great series of evenings given as a compliment by the business men of the Piedmont avenue district to the folks who are spending their vacation in town will meet with a hearty response.

Tomorrow morning Reverend Fisher will preach the first of a series of morning sermons on "Seeing God in the Out of Doors" with "The Lord God is a Sun" as the theme.

The summer sessions of the Sunday school are full of enthusiasm. Tomorrow morning the boys and girls will all have strings on them and there will be rope decorations with a unique rope exhibit. The talk of the hour will be on "The Boy Who Had Strings on Him."

"SMILING BILL" PARSON'S LIQUOR HELD PRICELESS

LOS ANGELES, July 7.—Billie Rhodes, film comedy star, was left a rare selection of liquors by her husband, "Smiling Bill" Parsons, movie producer, who died in 1919. Appraisers didn't know much about the stuff for they valued the lot on a basis of $4 a quart for Scotch and $30 a case for champagne.

The valuations play an important part today in a complaint which she has brought against William La Plante, executor of the estate, who asserts that the liquor was stolen while under his care. In 1919 the whisky and champagne was valued at $1800; today, Miss Rhodes asserts in her complaint, it is priceless.

Tikhon Accuses Pope Of Plot On Church

MOSCOW, July 7.—Most Rev. Dr. Tikhon, former patriarch of All Russia, recently released from prison by the soviet authorities, has issued a statement in which he declares that Pope Pius, taking advantage of the confusion in the Russian Orthodox church, is trying "by all means" to instill Catholicism into the church. Dr. Tikhon charges that the Polish authorities are aiding in closing orthodox churches in Polish territory, many of which have turned Roman Catholic.

The former patriarch also continues to appeal to the faithful against the new church in Russia, while the latter continues its counter attack on Tikhon.

Religious workers of all denominations will take part in the affair.

First M. E.

Rev. John Stephens, D. D., the pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, will preach at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning on "The Great Christian Fundamental." In the evening at 7:30 he will conduct a "Question Drawer," answering among other questions a series submitted from one of the senior classes of the Bible school, including the following:

How is it that the Old Testament idea of God is sometimes so terrifying? Was there any salvation for people before Christ came? If so, how? Is there any hope for the salvation of heathen who have never heard of Christ? If the heathen may be saved without a knowledge of Christ, why send missionaries to them? If salvation is possible apart from Christ, why should any of us be Christians?

Other questions include the following: What do you think of "Pussyfoot" Johnson's trip to Egypt? What is your impression of the National Education Convention? Who were the "Lees" referred to by President Harding in his story of Marcus Whitman?

Inspiring music will be rendered at both services by the church quartet, consisting of Marion Hovey Brower, soprano; Elise Banta Crane, contralto; Herbert P. Mee, tenor, and Robert Baxter Todd, baritone. Bessie Beatty Roland, organist and director.

Church of Universal Truth

At the Church of Universal Truth, Knights of Pythias Castle, corner of Twelfth and Alice streets, tomorrow night, Bishop Mazzinianda will deliver the final lecture in the series of practical and applied psychology, his topic being a startling one on the wonderful land in which we live, or California as the promised land.

The Bishop states that Buddha spoke of this wonderful land 600 years B. C., which he termed the "Land of the Western Paradise." He says that in the year 492 A. D., one thousand years before Columbus landed on these shores, a band of five Chinese yellow-robed Buddhist priests landed on our shores at the point now called Point Lobos, the Monterey coast, and taught the Indians inhabiting that place. He states the records of that expedition are still preserved in the royal archives at Pekin, and also at the Gobina Monastery in the desert of Gobi, the official seat of the great white brotherhood.

So much interest was manifested in the first series of sermons on "The Relation of Religion to Modern Life" that Rev. Clarence Reed is giving during July and August, that arrangements have been made to have the sermon which he gave last Sunday on "The Greatest Modern Discovery" published for general distribution. "God is Truth" will be his subject tomorrow at 11 a. m.

According to Reverend Reed, the underlying cause of the misery of mankind today, the social unrest, the class hatreds, the selfishness in business life and the racial prejudices is the lack of a vital idea of God expressed in terms of modern life. He says this is an age of creative thought and endeavor in industry, science, medicine, education and religion.

New Pastor Will Occupy Pulpit Soon

Charles Morrell Watson of Norfolk, Va., has been chosen to be the pastor of the University Christian church, Berkeley. He will assume the pastorate at the opening of the college year in August.

Dr. Watson is recognized as being one of the outstanding pastors of the Disciples of Christ, and has just concluded a successful pastorate of twelve years at Norfolk. During his ministry there the church grew from a membership of 250 to over 700, erecting a $50,000 Sunday School plant and raising an equal amount for a new church auditorium.

Dr. Watson, is a graduate of Bethany College of West Virginia and also holds the degree of Bachelor of Divinity from Yale. He is 47 years old and has held but three pastorates since leaving Yale.

Since the first of the year Dr. Harvey H. Guy has been serving the University Church as acting pastor. The church recently purchased the vacant lot on the corner of Dana street and Bancroft way adjacent to the church building. This property will be available for a new church plant which will doubtless be built under Watson's leadership.

HENRY FORD--
will he endure?

Prominent in the public eye as the world's richest man, and because he is far ahead of President Harding in Collier's national straw vote on 1924 presidential choices — Henry Ford's attitude toward national and international affairs is being closely scrutinized. Has he the attributes of a world leader? What are the fundamental attributes of real leadership? What are the master motives of modern men? Will Mr. Ford endure? If he does, what sort of leadership may we expect? Hear E. A. Fridell Sunday night at 7:45 discuss the question, "Henry Ford—Will He Endure?" Dorothy Dukes Dimm, favorite 'cellist, will play Thome's "Andante Religioso." A special welcome for tourists.

Man's life at its best is a glorious adventure in search of truth. In the light of truth, the traditions of 5000 years ago are today as the hearsay of yesterday. Many antiquated ideas are being blown into pieces. God is not a great, powerful individual external to the universe who now and then interferes with the order of nature by miracles. God is truth. 'Motives of Mighty Men' Is Subject

Much interest is being shown in the Sunday evening services at the First Baptist church where E. A. Fridell is discussing "Master Motives of Mighty Men." A large crowd listened to his discussion of Abraham Lincoln last Sunday night, and tomorrow night his theme will be, "Henry Ford, Will He Endure?" or "The Mind of Christ and Modern Business." Dorothy Dukes Dimm, 'cellist, will play, "Andante Religioso," by Thorne. At the morning service, the sermon will be on "The Growing Christ."

A series of studies on "The Bible in the Making" will continue the next six weeks in the Wednesday night prayer meetings. Next week "The Writers" will be the subject. The quarterly business meeting of the church will also be held and there will be special music.

The first two weeks of the Church Vacation School have proved to be most interesting for the workers as well as for the boys and girls, and the school will continue two more weeks with classes in Bible stories, memory work, habit and missionary talks, songs and craft-work. Much enthusiasm is shown in the hand-work departments in particular where many useful articles are being made, some of which will be on display at the big rally to be held in the church tomorrow afternoon when all the Eastbay Baptist Schools will have a demonstration to which all are invited.

OAKLAND TRIBUNE MAGAZINE PAGE

IT was difficult for George Layne to keep his eyes off the girl across the car. Several times he looked up, met her glance, and buried his head behind his paper. He did not wish to appear rude; it would not do to have a girl like this one think he was trying to flirt. George concentrated his attention upon the news of the printed page, then he stole another look. It was plain the girl knew she was being observed and resented it.

The car stopped at George's station and he joined the crowd on the elevated platform, clattered down the steps, and made for the cross-city surface car. As he neared this second car a woman who had just stepped on, turned and looked at him. It was the girl.

Elaborately the young man pretended he did not know he was in the same car with the young woman. It might frighten her if she thought he was following. The idea of his trailing a stranger and a girl, across the city, made George smile. His eyes sought hers and he blushed miserably, for her brows were knitted and she was regarding him intently as if to fix his features in her mind. George stood straight and shrugged his shoulders while he told himself he had no reason to feel ashamed. He would be glad when his corner was reached.

The girl got off at George Layne's corner and doggedly he followed. Maybe she would rather he would walk home around the block? A man had the right to return from work without arousing suspicion. The girl threw a frightened glance over her shoulder and quickened her pace. George tried to whistle a tune.

The young woman was almost running when she turned into the three-story wooden building given to rooms and board. George, not far behind and aching for a chance to explain, turned after her. This was where he roomed. The hall was empty and he all but ran upstairs. Rounding the first turn he saw the girl. She gasped, stumbled, and fled. Up another flight they went, a frightened girl and exasperated pursuer. On the third floor the door opposite that which George called his, slammed and a key turned with a decisive click. George entered his room, banging the door that she might hear. Then he sat down and went over the adventure, picturing the girl's feelings.

"It is too much of a coincidence for her to believe," he said. "I have trailed her all the way from downtown and to this very floor. I wouldn't blame her for calling the police."

The more he thought of it, the greater the worry. To have anyone classify him with the tribe who annoy women was bad enough, but for this girl who had attracted him from the moment he had seen her to carry the impression, was worse. George wrote a note.

"This could not happen anywhere except in the big city," he wrote. "I live in the room across the hall. You can prove it by the landlady. I was not following you and, really, am not that sort. You can prove that also by the landlady."

It was not at all what he would like to say. The young man felt the occasion demanded letters of recommendation and a certificate of character. Conclusive enough, he thought, it might serve as an introduction. Anyway, he would let her know he had not followed her and maybe she would get over her fright. He shoved the note under the girl's door and returned to his room. After a while he wondered if this were not adding a real offense to an imaginary one and if he could rescue the missive. He peeked out to see if the protruding corner were still in sight, but it was gone.

"The poor girl," he decided, "is probably scared to death."

In her room Minnie Lee read the note and laughed.

"I suppose," she said, "had I asked the landlady she would have found the occasion to introduce us formally and properly. But, somehow, this way is much better."

She posed in front of her mirror and registered startled and angry expressions.

"Minnie, girl," she said to the reflection, "the stage lost a bright star when you took to stenography. Wouldn't he be surprised to find out you know his name and where he works?"

My Marriage Problems

WHAT HARRY UNDERWOOD SWIFTLY EXPLAINED, THEN DEMANDED.

I had not eluded Harry Underwood, after all! This was my first chagrined thought as his flippant and stereotyped salutation, "Lady Fair," assailed my ears.

As I slowly turned and faced him, the words seemed so incongruous with his appearance as a venerable, white-bearded foreigner, that for a bewildered second, even as when I had first seen him in this role, I could not believe that it was indeed Lillian's recreant husband who stood before me.

But with a quick furtive glance around, evidently to assure himself that no one was observing him, he snatched off his disguising, thick-lensed glasses and grinned impudently at me, his brilliant black eyes dancing with merriment—eyes which no one who had ever seen them could mistake for any others than Harry Underwood's.

"Convinced, now?" he asked. "You sure are the original Missouri baby." I paid no attention to his nonsense. I put out my hand sedately as if he were indeed the Don Ramon Alvarez whom he was impersonating so cleverly.

"It is indeed a pleasant surprise to meet you here," I said conventionally, pitching my voice higher than usual. "My father will be so sorry to have missed you."

"IS THAT ALL?"

He took the cue instantly, but over my hand with foreign deference.

"It is I who have all the—how do you say it in American—luck?" he answered in as distinct a tone as my own, then muttered, "What's the row?"

"There were some reporters on that Long Island train," I murmured back.

"Is that all?" in a tone of relief. "You mean Rickett and the bunch with him. I saw them, and they beat it to the tubes. I thought some of them would be down there to see you, and I was on the watch for them.

"But they're not movie reporters, my dear," he grinned impishly. "They're not sleuthing around, tr-r-railing your-r every footprint, even though they are strictly on the job, and don't you ever forget it. But having once convinced themselves that you're on your way to the Dicky-bird, they'll take the quickest route up there, without worrying themselves over what you're doing every second of the way."

He stopped, put on his thick-lensed glasses, and looked all around us.

AN INSISTENT QUESTION.

"Safer than a church," he decided. "There are very few people on the boat today, anyway, and they're strictly stolid commuters. Before we get to the other side, you can go inside, and I'll dodge around so nobody will connect you and me at all. Now, tell me, what more is there to this performance of the Dicky-bird than is in the morning papers? Have you heard from him?"

There was in his voice a note of authority which I resented, yet I did not know exactly how to voice my feeling, and took refuge in an evasion.

"How did you know I would be here?" I asked.

"He whipped off the glasses again, and I felt as if the brilliant black eyes were laying bare every reservation of thought I had.

"All right, all right," he said. "I'll answer your question first, but that isn't going to get you anything, for I'm here to learn the whole history of this little fluttering of the Dicky-bird's. However, I always believe in humoring the ladies, especially the pretty one—"

Again he flashed the old impudent grin at me.

"So I'll tell you that the minute I saw the account of the Dicky-bird and the beauteous Miss Foster in this morning's papers. I knew that a certain divinely-foolish and forgiving little girl would be hot-footing it toward her erring spouse as fast as trains could carry her. So, I accordingly looked up train routes, found out the first one in from old Sag, and stationed myself at the head of the stairs to watch for you.

"Do you know," he chuckled, "I thought I could dodge without your seeing me, but your eyes were too sharp, and when you wheeled and darted up those stairs, I—well, I haven't made a study of your agile brain as well as your other charming attributes for nothing! I was as sure that you meant to dodge through the Pennsylvania woman's room to the Eighth avenue entrance and thence to the ferry by taxicab, as I was when from another taxi I saw you hail one and beat it down here.

"Now," he burlesqued a deep sigh, "I have answered meekly and fully your question, and I am ready to hear your answer to mine. Have you heard from the Dicky-bird?"

The STORY of JACKIE COOGAN

As Told By His Mother

(© 1923 by McClure's)

As Chaplin Sees Jackie.

Almost the first question people ask Jackie is "And what do you think of Charlie Chaplin?" I have already written some of Jackie's answers to this—how he loves and admired Mr. Chaplin, how they met and how their friendship developed. But what Charlie Chaplin thinks of Jackie may be even more interesting.

"I knew from the first moment I saw him," he once said, "that he was in his way a genius. Yet I did not realize what a tremendous success he was going to be.

"Do you think," I asked, "that he is going to keep on being a success, or is his only charm being a child?"

JACKIE COOGAN

Mr. Chaplin was thoughtful a moment.

"I believe," he answered slowly, "that acting is his vehicle. With his imagination, his sensitiveness, his intelligence and his gift for dreaming, I can't picture Jackie finding expression through anything else but acting."

This little talk happened during the taking of "The Kid," when we Coogans lived in a little apartment in Hollywood and the world had never heard of Jackie. It was in those days—what Jackie calls "our quiet life"—that he and Mr. Chaplin were the closest pals. Something seemed to bend them together in a spiritual sense. They understood each other almost as though they were of an age. They took long walks and drives, and talked and talked—and sometimes were silent together in the way that marks true friendship.

But for all their sympathetic tie, Mr. Chaplin always kept the little-boy aspect of Jackie uppermost in mind. He hated to see him say or do unchildlike things, on or off the screen, and took as great pains as we did to preserve the boy's simplicity.

He bought him toys galore. The little pool-table and golfing outfit that Jackie is always exhibiting with such pride to visitors are Mr. Chaplin's gifts. And the wrist-watch with the inscription "To My Partner." Whenever Mr. Chaplin saw a new child's game in a shop—especially something mechanical or electrical—he would buy it and bring it to our house. Then he and Jackie would go off alone somewhere and figure it out together.

"He is as much fun to play with and talk with," said Chaplin, "as a grown person—more perhaps. I often look at him, wondering just what thoughts pass behind those big brown eyes of his. This much I know, that they are good, straight thoughts, and that Jackie has the beautiful gift of friendship. He knows what loyalty is. You could trust him with your inmost secrets."

Another time, when Mr. Chaplin and Jackie had been off together on a long drive, I was arrested by the expression on the great comedian's face.

"What have you two been up to now?"

"Oh, a new game," answered Charlie. "I've been trying to answer this kid's questions. I never knew a boy who could ask so many—sensible ones, that show a brain. By Heaven——" He wiped a dripping brow in mock exhaustion. "I never did such a day's work! By the way, Mrs. Coogan, Jackie has made up your mind about something. He is to travel and see the world—all kinds of people and all kinds of things. Is it a bargain?"

I knew his views on globe-trotting as a developer of observation and imagination, and as a means of "keeping down the ego," and heartily agree with him.

"It certainly is a bargain!" I cried, and meant it.

Uncle Wiggily

Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SPARROW.

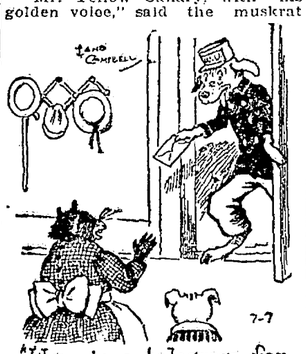

Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy was giving a little party in the hollow stump bungalow of Uncle Wiggily. She had invited Mr. Whitewash, the polar bear gentleman; Uncle Butter, the goat; Grandpa Whacksum, the beaver; Mr. and Mrs. Twistytail, the pigs; Mr. and Mrs. Littletail, the rabbits, and many others.

"Aren't any of the animal boys and girls coming?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, yes!" answered the muskrat lady housekeeper, "they are coming to have some ice cream and cake, but they are to go home early. For after the party I am going to have a little singing concert. Uncle Wiggily and the boys and girls will not care much for that."

"Perhaps they will not," agreed the bunny gentleman. "But who is going to sing at your concert, Nurse Jane?"

"Mr. Yellow Canary, with his golden voice," said the muskrat

lady. "And I hope you men folks won't get all puffed up with pride because it is a gentleman bird singing."

"Don't worry," laughed Uncle Wiggily. "Every one knows that the lady birds are too busy bringing up little birdies to have time to sing as sweetly as their husbands. Well, I hope you have fine weather for the party."

"Thank you, Mr. Longears," spoke Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. And truly the sun never shone so bright, the grass was never so green and the wind was never so gentle as the day of her party and concert.

But alas; When all the guests were gathered in or about the hollow stump bungalow, and when the animal boys, seated near Uncle Wiggily, were eating their ice cream and cake, all of a sudden along came Old Dog Percival.

Quickly the muskrat lady opened the envelope of white birch bark and read the message.

"Oh, it is from Mr. Yellow Canary," gasped the muskrat lady, "and he has such a dreadful cold that he can not come and sing! Oh, what shall I do? There will be no music at my concert."

Nurse Jane was in the kitchen when Percival brought the message. She was helping Uncle Wiggily dish out more ice cream for the animal boys and girls and all the grown-ups were out on the lawn.

"If you please," chatered Johnnie Bushytail, the squirrel boy, "I can get you a bird to sing at your concert, Nurse Jane."

"A sparrow bird," answered the squirrel boy.

"Oh, Johnnie, don't be silly," sighed Nurse Jane. "I know you want to be kind and help me," she went on, "but a sparrow can not sing. They can only go 'Yip! Yip! Chip! Cheep! and that is no music."

"The sparrow I mean makes lovely music," chattered the squirrel boy. "Wait, I'll get him!" Johnnie scampered out and away. He found the tree he was looking for and soon he hurried back. Flying above his head was a little brown bird.

"Oh, my guests will laugh at me for letting a sparrow sing for them," sighed Nurse Jane.

But the little brown bird, flipping his tail and tilting his head, opened his bill and such lovely music came forth that all the animal folk stopped chattering and listened.

With trills and runs, with sweet notes that sounded like golden water dripping over green mossy stones, the little brown bird sang.

"That is no sparrow!" said Nurse Jane. "That is Mr. Yellow Canary in a brown coat. He played a trick on me."

"No, Nurse Jane," spoke the bird who had sung so sweetly. "I am a sparrow, but I am called a song sparrow, for I do sing a little like a canary. Shall I sing more?"

"Oh, yes, do!" begged Nurse Jane. "It is the sweetest music I have ever heard—as lovely as that of Mr. Yellow Canary."

"Thank you," trilled the song sparrow, and he sang a more entrancing melody than before. Even the animal boys and girls stopped eating ice cream to listen. And the grown ups said:

"Oh, Nurse Jane, your concert was wonderful!" And toward evening the vesper sparrow, a cousin to the song sparrow, perched in a tree and the two birds sang a duet, so beautiful that tears came into the eyes of Mr. Whitewash, the polar bear gentleman. But they were tears of joy and happiness and of long ago memories.

"Thank you, Johnnie, for bringing the song sparrow to me," said Nurse Jane. "I never knew that any sparrow could sing so sweetly." And then the two brown birds flew away, after having eaten some chocolate crumbs and everyone was happy.

And if the rocking horse doesn't get all tangled in the clothes line when he tries to jump rope with the rag doll, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the shiny leaves.

My Adviser

I hadn't drove—
A cer so long—
But still I'd learnt a thing or two—
About the way the wheels went round—
I thought I was quite Johnny Wise—
Of course I hadn't learned the art—
Of driving forty miles an hour—
Right through a crowd of children—
Or making old folks jump for life—
But still at that I got some joy—
Out of my new and shiny toy—
And every time I took a ride—
I came back home well satisfied—
Until one day I met a friend—
And asked him half an hour to spend—
In my machine—we'd chat awhile—
Perhaps we'd go about a mile—
For I'm a careful driver—
He hadn't sat there very long—
The while he chanted a wise song—
About the cars he used to drive—
And miles—he'd eat 'em up alive—
He drove the first car from the Ark—
He made each car sit up and bark—
My ho was wise—
With vacant rooms above his eyes—
For if you spoke of his round dome—
You'd have to say—nobody home—
And though I manned the steering wheel—
He cautioned me with noisy zeal—
"Now don't do that—look out—you nut—
You'll get your wheels caught in that rut—
Who ever taught you how to steer—
Once drove a horse-car, kid, I fear—
Turn sharp there, kid, you'll hit that rock—
You didn't miss it half a block—
Look out—your driving makes me sick—
Step on it—kid—burn up some gas—
Folks think we're on our way to mass—
Just twist her tail—go in on high—
Don't let that Lizzie say good-bye—
I see there is no use to talk—
The world jogs by us in a walk"—
I sat there still and let him rave—
And tried to make my car behave—
At last this yap got on my nerves—
My car was full of dirt and swerves—
My blood was boiling—
For all the sane-ness I'd been taught—
This guy was spoiling—
I didn't know just what to do—
I longed to use my hob-nailed shoe—
Upon his pants—
Then leave him there beside the road—
To do his song and dance—
When all at once I heard him shout—
"Steer out there quick—look out—look out—
I steered out quick, I heard a bump—
It must have been that blooming chump—

Child's History of the HUMAN RACE

By Ramon Coffman

THE MIGHTY AKBAR.

India was once ruled by a man named Akbar, whose fame has lasted down the centuries. He was a Mohammedan, and called "sultan" instead of a king.

When Akbar was still very young, his father died. The Mohammedans then had power over only a part of India. They were fighting against the Hindus, who did not want to have that religion forced upon them. The chief general on Akbar's side was called Behram. He had charge of things while the young sultan was growing up.

One day Behram captured a Hindu leader who had been wounded. He took the poor fellow before Akbar, saying:

"Here is one who does not believe in the great prophet. Raise your sword and put end to his wretched life. Dip the blade in his blood that you shall have glory!"

"Nay!" cried Akbar. "I am no coward! I will not stain my sword by striking a wounded man."

Behram was angered by this reply. He had begun to think he had a right to rule the country all the while.

When Akbar became a young man, he decided to stop the general's growing power. Going to the city of Delhi, he said to the people:

"From now on, I am going to be the real ruler of this country. I do not want to be the sultan just in name."

Old Behram was filled with anger when he heard of this. He gathered an army, and tried to fight to become master, but he was beaten. Akbar might have put him to death, but did not do so. Instead, the general was allowed to go to Mecca to ask to have his sins forgiven.

Akbar was a noted hunter. Often he rode out on the back of an elephant to hunt tigers. It is said that he owned 5000 elephants and 10,000 horses. He tamed some of the elephants himself, after they had been caught in pits.

Akbar started public schools for the purpose of teaching Indian boys. He was a man of broad mind. Each Friday evening it was his custom to listen to men talk about religion. He heard Mohammedans, Jews and those who believed in Brahma. There were two or three Christians near the palace and they were allowed to tell their views. Even those who prayed to the sun were given a chance to speak before the sultan.

When Akbar died, he was the ruler of almost all of India.

This picture shows a hunting scene in India during fairly recent times. Elephants are of great value in "beating the brush" for tigers.

BILLY BECKWITH

A Red Man With a White Soul

A True Story of Early California

By Dorcas James Spencer

An Indian is so essentially and naturally a communist, that he sees no reason why he should not share the abundance of others, while it lasts, or why the supplies of his own household should not be consumed by his friends; and white men married to Indian women rarely question a custom so firmly established, and adhered to so tenaciously, adapting themselves to the situation, though it may sometimes be burdensome.

The long and tedious ascent of many hills, brought them to a roadside hostelry in time for the night's accommodation.

It had been interesting to note the transformation of Billy as the journey progressed. No longer "Walker's hired man," but a dignified and urbane host, escorting his guests on an adventurous journey. He always knew if a spring was near, and would release the weary animals that they might find it, while he made the ladies comfortable and from his lunch box produced a dainty white cloth, and a refreshing luncheon, presiding with the dignity of a patriarch at his woodland feast. There was something fine in his presence.

The drudgery of daily toil, the subordinacy of an employee, and the caste sense, often evident in Indians in association with the conquering races, all had fallen away from him, and he was not only the conscious chief of the Hupas, but involuntarily compelled recognition as such. The forests were his realm, and there in their depths, it was a gracious and natural fellowship that his friends should break bread with him, and the holy spell of his grace before meat, gave it a sacramental character, in perfect accord with his purposes, for he always asked that the bread of life be sent to his people.

Knowing every trail in those mountains, he chose for this expedition, an old abandoned one, that he might be certain of meeting no one, who could defeat his object by announcing his coming. It was well known that he came to Hoopa only when there was trouble among the Indians, and also that his principles were not in harmony with practices prevailing there.

The officers of the post regarded him as a meddler, assuming to interfere in matters in which he had no official authority. They plainly did not want him, hence his apprehension that he could not secure the desired opportunities of conferring with his people if his visit were anticipated.

When wheels could go no further, the animals were saddled for the trail. The big mule modestly declined to go before, the burro hired for Mrs. Kenyon's use, would go nowhere but behind, so the procession formed itself. Mrs. Walker with her tall horse was the vanguard, Billy following on his mule, with within call of both ladies. The old trail, so long unused, was for long distances entirely overgrown, and only Billy's experience could assure his friends that it ever was a trail, so dense was the growth of chapparal that closed it.

Sometimes Mrs. Walker was compelled to dismount and go stooping underneath the rough bushes, pulling at the halter to coax her horse through the thickets; the mule would follow anything, and the opening thus made invited the burro to come on, or at least avoid being left alone. Sometimes the trail wound around a bare mountain side, so steep that the burro's body hid the narrow path from the rider's sight, and a pebble loosened by its foot would go bounding down to the river far below.

This was not particularly assuring to the rider, but gave her an odd feeling of kinship to birds on the wing, and a sense of being suspended in the air, and still navigating that unhappy donkey skyward. The exhileration of the altitude and scenery counteracted the sense of fatigue, but the poor burro having no appreciation of the beauties of nature, wearied of her burden, crossed her long ears in token of her discontent, raised her head, and lifted up her voice, in a remonstrance that reverberated from peak to peak, as if her tones were many times multiplied, and merged at last in a great moan of deep dissent. Finding remonstrance in vain, she resorted to strategy.

When the horse and mule both disappeared behind a sharp turn in the trail, she took matters not exactly into her own hands, but into her feet, and made a pivot of them by placing all four close together and turning, right about face, for her home, at the best pace she was ever known to make. Her rider had no mind to argue with the creature, with the Trinity river forty feet or more below, and could only ride on to a wider place in the trail, then stop, and shout for Billy. He come running back on foot, and began the most persuasive discourse to the recalcitrant beast.

"Now Maggie, this won't do. You must be good. You know you have to take the lady to Hoopa." She can't stand it if you act this way, you must be good to her, and I don't want to be ashamed of you, Maggie."

Tenderly he stroked those long ears, and the neck that all the time meant to turn again. He looked into her troubled eyes, keeping them fixed on his own, until she seemed to be held fast, and her bad temper subdued, still gently expostulating with her as he carefully led her along the trail to her waiting companion. She yielded to his voice, as all animals did, only to repeat the performance, the next time she found herself on the trail.

This scheme proving a failure, she tried a more alarming method, putting her head to the ground and violently shaking herself, thus compelling the party to seek shelter for the night.

Today in California History

By THOMAS S. MILLER

Dueling for—?

SEVERAL men are scanning the land amidst the glant firs of the brooding Sierras, sundown of this date 1855. Two of the men carry guns. They are the Hon. Charles Lippencot, State senator from Yuba county, and Robert Tevis, a young Kentuckian who is ambitious to get a seat in Congress. Evidently they are going to duel.

Neither political quarrel nor personal enmity brought about the meeting. Strange to say, Lippencot was an entire stranger to Tevis until a few hours ago. The duel is the adventitious outcome of the arrival in Downieville from the east of a handsome young woman named Sarah Pellet. Miss Pellet had devoted herself to the cause of temperance in California. Besotted Downieville in the fifties hailed the crusader with acclaim.

Calvin McDonald, owner of the "Sierra Citizen" backed Miss Pellet so warmly and so ably that temperance, which the miner had hitherto regarded as a sign of lunacy, became a popular fad. Robert Tevis astutely hooked his political ambitions to the popular sentiment of the hour. He managed to secure the honor of reading the Declaration of Independence on the Fourth. Miss Pellet was to follow with the oration. But Tevis could not let slip the opportunity to make a long political harangue. The miners, impatient to hear Miss Pellet, at last drowned Tevis' voice with an uproar of shooting and yelling. Next day the "Citizen" published a humorous account of Tevis' address and discomfiture, by the pen of Lippencot. The fiery Kentuckian called on McDonald and demanded that he publish a "card" he had written and which called Lippencot a liar and a slanderer. In vain McDonald pointed out that Lippencot was a dead shot. Tevis insisted, and in the end the card was published. Lippencot saw no course but to challenge Tevis.

So now they are looking for a flat duelling ground. But nature was niggard with flat spaces when she raised the tumble Sierras. Eventually the seconds choose a slope. In the toss Tevis wins the hill position. It proves to be a tragic advantage.

Lippencot has no intention to take life. He is a humorist. But on stepping to his position he sees Tevis' second point to his, Lippencot's chest. The motion informs him that his opponent is being advised to aim at his chest. Tevis is known as a good shot. Lippencot perceives that it is a fight for life.

The signal is given Both guns crack simultaneously. Tevis drops with a bullet through his heart. Lippencot loses a lock of his hair. He was a short man, and Tevis was tall; and in addition the latter failed to make enough allowance for the rise he stood upon.

GERALDINE FASHIONS THE HOME

My Favorite Stories by Irvin S. Cobb

The Untrustworthy Britisher

Today's offering has been doing yeoman service for years now but I claim its very popularity attests its intrinsic worth.

An Irishman, stranded at Southampton, applied for a job on a ship bound for American ports, hoping to work his passage back to New York where he lived. The skipper agreed to sign him on provided he could produce a written recommendation testifying to his honesty and good character. The applicant hunted up an obliging boarding-house keeper, who wrote the required paper for him, and, on the strength of this, he temporarily was enrolled as one of the ship's company.

Just as the craft was preparing to sail, a Britisher presented himself before the master asking for a place in the crew. As the ship was short-handed and time pressed, this man was accepted without the formality which had marked the employing of the first green hand.

Two days out from port the Irishman and the Englishman were scrubbing decks, each equipped with a pail and a swab. There was a head sea on. Suddenly a big comber broke over the bow. The drenched Irishman was buffeted about and slammed against a rail, still clinging, however, to his broom and bucket; but his fellow-worker fared worse. He was carried overboard and vanished instantly.

Dripping, the survivor made his way to the bridge where the skipper stood.

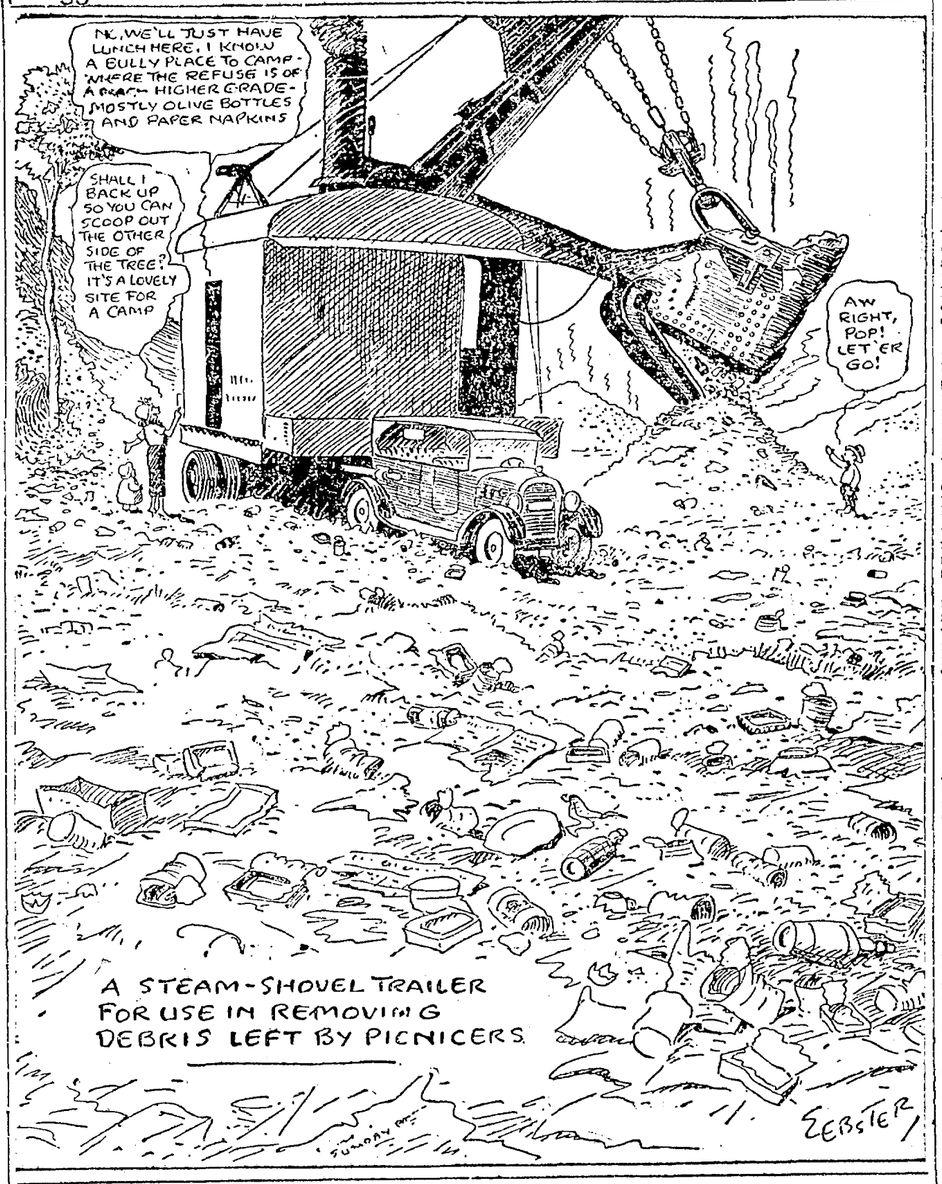

"Captain! Say, Captain!" he called up.

"What is it?"

"You remember that dam Britisher you took on without any references? Well, he's gone off and took one of your buckets with him."

The Adventures of Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy by Johnny Gruelle

Copyright by JOHNNY GRUELLE. All Rights Reserved.

THE Hinkdoppus had Raggedy Ann tied hand and foot, and there was no way she could get away to let Raggedy Andy know where she was.

At first the Hinkdoppus had captured Raggedy Andy and had tied him to the bed, but Raggedy Andy had fooled the Hinkdoppus by wishing the Hinkdoppus would not find his snippers.

Then when the Hinkdoppus had looked everywhere except in the bed, he untied Raggedy Andy so that he could look there.

Just the minute Raggedy Andy was untied, he had jumped upon the Hinkdoppus' back and had shoved him under the bed. Then when Raggedy Andy ran outside and got a big stick, the Hinkdoppus had run out the back door.

Raggedy Andy had waited out in front of the Hinkdoppus' house for the Hinkdoppus to come out, but after waiting and waiting for ever so long, Raggedy Andy thought to himself, "Well, I shall wait for the Hinkdoppus no longer! He won't come out so that I can crack him with this stick!" And Raggedy Andy put the big stick over his shoulder and started out to find Raggedy Ann.

Meanwhile, the Hinkdoppus had Raggedy Ann tied up tight in a hollow tree.

"I do not believe Raggedy Andy is waiting at my front door to crack me with the big stick!" the Hinkdoppus said to Raggedy Ann, "so I shall carry you home and get my snippers! I know my snippers are in the bed, for I looked every other place, then when I get them I shall snip open your dress and take the magical Wishing Pebble out of your cotton stuffed body!"

"Ploppity! Ploppity! Ploppity!" went his feet as he sped over the ground.

Then, just as the Hinkdoppus came to a large tree, a big stick cracked him on the big toe, "Whack!" And the Hinkdoppus and Raggedy Ann went tumbling head over heels across the grass.

Of course a tumble never hurts Raggedy Ann, nor Raggedy Andy, for they are made of cloth and stuffed with soft cotton, but a Hinkdoppus is made out of meat, just like a weenywurst, and it hurt his head every time his head hit the ground. Then, before the Hinkdoppus could get to his feet, he felt something come down upon his head, "CRACK!" just like that! and with a loud cry, "Oh, Ouch! The sky has fallen and cracked me on the head!" he jumped to his feet and ran for home, lickity split.

Then Raggedy Ann felt herself being turned over for she had fallen face down in the grass; and there smiling down at her was Raggedy Andy.

Raggedy Andy hurried and untied Raggedy Ann. "We must hustle and run away from the Hinkdoppus!" Raggedy Andy said. "For he will think as soon as he gets home that it is impossible for the sky to fall and will know that it was I who cracked him upon his head.

"Then let's run to the ice cream soda water spring!" said Raggedy Ann. "For there we can have something nice to eat, and we can hide in the candy covered cookie bushes.

CIRCUS ROMANCE.

Barkis was a sort of queer cuss, full of jokes and mirth.
Ma'amselle Dorcas, with that circus, was the tatooed lady.
Barkis fell in love with Dorcas: "Be my darling!" prayed he.

Dorcas said to Marcus Barkis:
"On yon park bench we will park us;
With a dear kiss from your Dorcas, I will tell you why, you poor cuss,
You must never marry Dorcas.
For my tatooed skin would irk us;
It's no 'skin you like to touch';
You would always touch a circus,
And you'd weary, soon, of such."
Then spoke Marcus: "I love Dorcas
And each picture on her carcass!"

Confessions of a Stars Wife

by Inez Klumph

CHAPTER XXII.

Mary Does a Brave Thing

For one horrible instant the world turned black before me. I couldn't think, couldn't move.

Then I heard Benito say, "Ah, Hugh, you are just in time for the end of a lesson in acting; Mrs. Sally has been helping Mary and me out."

I sank into a chair and tried frantically to get a grip on myself. What would Hugh think?

Bingham, the other man with him, slouched into a corner of the davenport opposite me; I realized that I was being subjected to a scrutiny as keen as it was merciless. But Hugh came straight over to me, sat down on the arm of my chair, and slipped one arm around my shoulders.

The blessed relief of that moment was almost too much for me. Never had Hugh been dearer to me than at that moment. He had told me once that I never could know what my unquestioning faith meant to him. Now I understood.

But that shrewed eyed, thin lipped man across from me didn't understand. I knew he was rejoicing over this bit of good luck; that he would go back to the office of his sensation-seeking little weekly magazine and write an insinuating, vile story, which without saying anything incriminating enough to permit us to sue him for libel, would smirch Hugh's name and mine forever.

It seemed to me that I would go mad if something wasn't done at once to prevent this impending calamity. And the tenseness of Hugh's arm behind my head told me that he realized the situation as well as I did.

Benito was chatting with Bingham about his new picture, trying to appear at ease, but the man hardly took his eyes from my face. Desperately I looked away, and caught Mary's eye.

I suppose my distress must have been all too apparent; she shook her gave me a little smile that tried to be reassuring. I wanted to shriek with hysterical laughter. I had tried to help her—and this was what had happened!

She got up then, and sauntered over to the davenport, where Bingham sat smoking, and sipping the highball which the maid had brought him.

"How's the world treating you, Jack?" she asked familiarly. That surprised me; I hadn't known that they knew each other.

"Oh, so-so," he answered indifferently.

"Been running any fake contests lately?" she asked nonchalantly, as she crossed her knees and swung one foot lazily.

"Fake contests — what do you mean?" he snarled.

"Oh, just the kind you've put on before—to get girls to come from little country towns to the big cities, thinking they're going to get into the movies, only to find that they—that they—"

Her voice thickened as if she spoke with tremendous effort; she looked at Benito for a long moment, and her hands fluttered a little in her lap as if they yearned to go out to him and knew that they must not. I have never seen an expression of more complete adoration in any one's eyes than was in Mary Sorello's at that moment.

"I mean the sort of crooked contest that brought me to New York in the first place—people never have known about it because I changed my name and told a different story about my coming here, but I'm going to tell the truth now," she went on, her hands clenched tightly in her lap. "You ran it in the particular scandal sheet you were interested in then, and you held out glowing promises of what would happen to the girl who won. Girls everywhere sent in their photographs; I saw them afterward in your office, most of them still wrapped as they had been when they came to you.

"I don't know why you picked my picture as the winner; there were prettier ones sent in, I know.

"Anyway, I won the contest and came to New York. And—oh, I can't tell about what happened then!

"I tried to go back home after I'd been in New York for a while—as soon as I could get some money I tried," she went on, talking to Benito now. She knew that she was losing even her slight hold on him. "But I couldn't stay there; maybe my face showed that something was wrong. I was just a kid, even then, you know; I wasn't old enough for the fight I had to face.

"So I came back to New York, and—well, you know about the rest of my story after that. And now—" She arose, and, with a sudden effort, straightened up, almost majestic for a moment, and faced Bingham.

"I think you won't use the little rehearsal which you interrupted for copy, will you, Jack?" she asked quietly. "'Tisn't so very long ago that you brought me to New York, after all, and I hear that you're to be married in a few days and try your hand at breaking into society; your fiancee wouldn't care for this little story, probably."

"Oh, cut it, Mary!" he cried, hurling his cigar into the fireplace and rising. "You know that old stuff would finish me with her, and would make a dirty mess if you told it to her. What's the idea, anyway?"

"Just that you'll lay off on Sally and Hugh," she answered. "If you told the truth about them it would be perfectly harmless—but you wouldn't tell the truth, and we all know it. So it is a bargain—I'll keep still if you will?"

"Oh, sure," he growled, picking up his hat and starting across the room. "But you've killed a good yarn," he concluded as the door slammed behind him.

Mary left that night for the Coast to join her husband, who was directing pictures there. You probably saw notices in some of the papers stating that she had come back to the screen and would play character parts.

"I met somebody today whom you're going to be glad to see," Hugh told me later. "It's Roxane Laird."

Listen, World!

I HAD great expectations of this job when I first took it on. I had heard much of the power of the pen. "Well, if other pens are powerful," sez I to myself, "mine's gonna be a regular Jack Dempsey's!" I determined to find out all about the Beating Heart of Humanity.

According to the leading psychologists, criminologists, sociologists, biologists and other noted scientific gophers, there was plenty goin' on to make the human heart beat, if not bust entirely. Therefore I was prepared for adventure and hoped for the worst. So I dipped my pen in nitro-glycerine and started in.

Yes, I found out a lot. All sorts of things. The Beating Heart of Humanity was not only willing to talk—it was eager. It ripped open the archives and showed me all the records. Every day in every way my mail became more communicative.

Countless letters arrived from mothers, fathers and children and maiden ladies of both sexes. There were strange, desperate confessions from criminals, and pitiful pleadings from victims of adversity. There were snorts from the reformers and sniffles from the reformed. And for a while I was quite excited. The needs seemed so diversified, the characters of all these various claimants so different.

But gradually, after reading a few million letters, I began to see my mistake. The needs weren't diversified. The characters weren't different. In all that jumble of the Washed and the Unwashed, the Sinners and the Saints, there was only one basic need—the need for Love.

Now do not mistake me. I do not mean Love in the usual chocolate caramel sense. I am not referring to that starry eyed bunch of palpitation of which the poet sings, which has about as much practical application to human need as a candied violet. I mean real love—that vital contact, gentle and just, as necessary to our life as sunshine or food. Forgiveness which is based on intelligent understanding rather than sentimental impulse—tenderness which comforts and heals out of divine pity for all hurt—tolerance which grants every man his "place in the sun"—affection which springs from a deep sense of common kinship. Every letter cried aloud for such love, every letter showed some hunger or crippling from the lack of it.

So that is all I have learned from this job of mine—that we all need love, and I perhaps most of all. And when the day's work is over and I stand at my window looking out at that great space in which somewhere you move and have your being, that is all I remember. I only listen to your cry for love, and cry to you in return.

Now how would you answer this?

"Dear Geraldine:

"Will you give me some of your advice? There is a man I care a lot about, and by the way he does not live far from The TRIBUNE Tower. I always thought him a hundred per cent in every respect, but I heard something the other day which sickened me. It is unprintable, else I would tell you what it is. Should a man's lack of morals lessen a girl's affection for him, is what I want to know.

"This man is so loveable and adorable. I didn't tell you something else. I worked for him for a few months. He was so sweet to work for too. But—I was nervous and ill at the time, and did my work badly, so he fired me.

"Even this I did not hold against him. But the thing I just heard as I told you at first, has just sickened me; and don't you think I am right in feeling as I do about it?

DORIS EDNA.

"P. S. I want an immediate reply, Geraldine, as I am leaving town very shortly."

"Should a man's lack of morals lessen a girl's affection for him?" Well, that depends on the girl and her affection. If she loves him because he has a cute ear or an adorable nose or an entrancing Adams apple her affection will probably survive any sort of criminal revelation. But if she happens to be the kind of a girl who prefers to have a little decency and character hitched on to her masculine's ears, noses and Adams apples, she'll probably detach him from her life as though he were a wooly worm. You may place your heart where you please, Doris Edna, but take it from me, no man with an "unprintable record" would seem "lovable and adorable" to me for very long.

When you read this letter, don't think it silly, for it is not. Don't think the girl is viciously inclined—she is only "boy struck" and the father and mother think that threats instead of love are going to make her "mend her ways."

"Dear Geraldine:

"The other evening a young girl of perhaps 14 or 15 years, told me about her folks who were always nagging her about talking to boys on the street and other minor deeds, and that they made things unpleasant for her at home. She has a step-father who says he will throw her out if she doesn't mend her ways. To me it seems she is misunderstood. They also threaten to send her to the reform school.

"Now she has met a young man at a street carnival who wants her to run away with him. He says once they get across the border, her folks can't get her back. He may mean good for her, but I have my doubts.

"The girl thinks strongly of leaving home and I guess her mother will be broken hearted if this happens. The mother thinks she is doing right by her daughter.

"If mothers would only understand, or try and understand their daughters at this age, I know there would be fewer of these cases. I'm sure we all would be glad to hear what you, dear friend, have to say about it. I'm sure it will help many mothers, as well as daughters. From one who knows,

"MRS. HARVEY."

You want to know what I think? Well it's not what I THINK but what I KNOW of girls and boys. They're headstrong, they know EVERYTHING, all parents are old-fashioned, every youngster can take care of himself, and LOTS more.

And how about parents? Their children are "simply unmanageable, they won't mind, they don't know what is best! they haven't the respect for their parents that said parents had for THEIR papas and mammas when THEY were young. No-sir-ee!"

I do know a cure for wayward youngsters, but parents have to possess a few brains to work it.

INVITE THE GANG IN. Meet 'em, talk to 'em, be one of 'em. If Mary talks to Jim and Joe on corners, let her bring them to the house instead; and if Jim and Joe don't measure up to the courtesy and kindness that should exist in every home, Mary is going to see that Jim and Joe are not good company even on the corner.

"Have you thought of it, you mothers of wayward children. Children notice and compare far more than grown-ups realize. If Daughter's friends are coarse, she'll see it much quicker by comparing them with YOU, than if she has to learn through the bitter experiences of questionable flirtations.

"If you don't believe me—ask the 14 to 19-year-old kid gang. Maybe they won't confess it right out in public, but down in their hearts they know that they'd rather play fair than sneak out and meet some cigarette-smoking Romeo who wouldn't "stack up" in the family "parlor."

The next time you're tempted to thrill at the thought of battle or to long for the exciting war days once again, remember the following letter. It also tells of war—the true inwardness of war. We're just beginning to face that true inwardness. A few months ago we were putting people in jail for saying that war is an abomination. And now great conferences are meeting to discuss plans for teaching children peace, in the schools and their daily life. There's a better way to serve the Stars and Stripes than by stabbing some poor peasant through the stomach. There's a surer way to show our intelligence than by means of bombs or gas or soft nosed bullets. All honor to the boys who did fight, but may we never again put our young manhood to such a beastial test.

"Dear Geraldine:

"I am alone—alone cursing war. As I sit tonight in my little room, looking down on Broadway, a rage is eating at my very soul. If I could run into the lighted way, and cry at the top of my voice the condemnation I feel burning in my brain against wars—Oh, Jerry, if I could only rid myself of that cancering pain, by that simple means—but I can't.

"It is an inborn hate. My ancestors all have been fighters, and shedders of blood for their country. Oh—I could stand that—that is in the past. But why—Oh God—why did he have to die in the fire of battle? I can see him now, sitting across the table from me. He has just gazed up, and the light of a smile sparkles in the blue of his eyes, as he squares his shoulders and throws a kiss to me. . . . .

"What is war—anyhow?—but avenging one's wrongs by the most beastful, and inhuman methods in this twentieth century of civilization. Who gains? Who reaps the profits? Surely, not he who plods in the mud; not he who bears the gun in the dead, stenched trench while the hell spits of enemy-fire plays so near at hand. He who materially profits, sits slouched in a leatherly chair—relaxing in the comforts realized by the manufacture of bullets made to kill my boy, your boy, somebody's boy—somewhere.

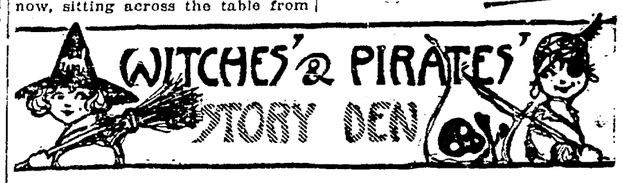

"The unfairness of it all is so awful, but I guess it is life. One must be up, carried high on the shoulders of his fellowmen, and some must carry, some must crawl—to produce the equilibrium of living. But, Jerry, don't let it be by war, don't let any man have the right to say, "Kill, kill that boy, avenge your country' by piercing a body, so his red blood may run forth, thus moistening the soil, so right may take growth"—Let the man rather say, "Use the God made and gifted brain—arbitrate."

Oh, Jerry, love me. I'm alone now. Please set me right.

"WEARYING."

WITCHES' & PIRATES' STORY DEN

ROSIE FERRANTI,

The Haunted House.

Once upon a time there was a man and his wife who were very rich. They had a son named Chub. He was very brave. The people believed that next to a neighbor's house was a haunted house.

Everyone was afraid to go near it. At midnight they would hear terrible groans and moans.

Chub said, "I'm going to see this haunted house."

His mother said, "Very well, son, you shall go, but please try to come home safe and unhurt."

After bidding his mother goodbye he started off for the haunted house.

He waited at midnight, when he saw a white thing appearing from the door. Chub shot at him and he fell down, and when all the other ghosts heard the shot they ran out of the house, but they were not ghosts but robbers, trying to make the people afraid because they had treasure in the house.

Chub looked around the house and found a little chest. He opened it. To his surprise he found many gold pieces. After getting the gold he went home very happy.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE.

Once upon a time there was two boys and they were very poor and they lived in an old log house in the woods. Their mother was dead. She died whe nthey were two and three years old. Their father was a wood cutter and made very little money to support them. Their father had warned them never to go near the old haunted church, which was used in the time that the Spanish were planting missions in this country.

But it had been deserted a hundred years before because the old priest had been killed while preaching th gospel.

But one day while they were passing the church one of the boys said "Lester, let's explore the old church tonight. At eight o'clock we will come here. Are you with me?"

"Yes," said Lester.

That night the boys got ready and went to the church.

When they reached there they looked in the window, but didn't see anything so they went in. Archie took out his flashlight and Lester took out his revolver which he had brought from home. When they were in they sat down to wait what would happen.

About midnight they heard something makin ga noise upstairs, so away they went, up a long flight of stairs. When they reached the top they stopped to listen, for they heard something behind them.

When they turned around they saw a big tall man standing there. His eyes shone like fire and his nose was about six inches long and his mouth was from ear to ear. He was an awful looking thing. The boys began to run, but he followed them wherever they went. Finally they came to a trap door and fell through.

The big man did not know where they went. When Archie and Lester dropped, they lit in a big box full of gold and silver. Just when they started to take the treasure, the big tall man came up and they began to run but the man grasped Lester but Archie hit him on the head with a bottle, which was full of wine.

Then Archie and Lester took the gold and silver and went home. When they rached home and showed their father what they had found he almost fainted.

The next day they went to the city and bought a house and some clothes.

The house they had bought cost a million, but still they had 40,000 left yet. So they lived happy ever after.

OUT OF THE SLUMS.

In the very lowest of the slums in New York there lived two boys named Tom Chadwick, 13 years old, and his brother Jack Chadwick, 15 years old. Their father and mother had ddied, leaving them at the age of 10 and 13, to face the world alone. The uncle, hearing of the death of his brother and wife, took the two boys under his care and taught them to be sly crooks.

The uncle being a retired crook knew very much of the crookish ways. The uncle was tall and very sturdily built and in his young day had had very handsome features. The most delight the uncle partook was to learn to make the two boys like himself.

Jack being the oldest, had promised his mother he would try and make an honest living, but when the uncle took them in his care all promises vanished from his mind.

Among some of the dark deeds they had done was robbing banks, stores and many other places. One night as he was robbing a lady he was caught and had to spend 8 years in jail. After 5 years that they spent in jail they went to fight in the world war. After they came back from the war their minds were blank from the past.

When they came back they got a job in a grocery store, then a drug store, until Tom and Jack were presidents of the biggest bank in New York. They died very old men.

THE SWEET PEA.

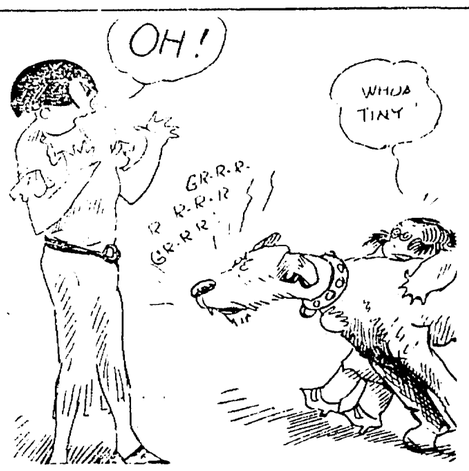

Sweet-pea put on her prettiest hood and climbed the garden wall. 'Twas a narrow ledge where the darling stood and I feared that she might fall, but she danced with the butterfly, bowed to the bee, but never even noticed me. The saucy pinky saucy pea.

Dr. Gulick Will Tell of Orient Work

The speaker at the First Congregational church tomorrow morning will be Dr. Sidney L. Gulick, secretary for the Oriental Relations Committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Gulick has just returned from a trip through the Orient under the Federal Council in the interests of international goodwill. He has visited Japan, China, Korea, Manchuria, and the Philippine Islands. He has interviewed many of the prominent leaders of the Far East, including Sun Yat Sen. He will tell of his experiences and now the international situation in the Orient, at the service tomorrow morning.

At the evening service at 7:45, Rev. H. L. Rowley, pastor of the Richmond Congregational church, San Francisco, will give an illustrated lecture on "An Empire in the Making." Dr. Rowley has recently returned from Alaska, where he spent five years as a missionary and teacher. The lecture will be on Alaska and its resources and will be illustrated by some remarkable moving pictures and stereopticon slides.

The Daily Vacation Bible School begins its fourth week next Monday, and will continue for two weeks longer, closing Friday, July 20. On the evening of the closing day the school will present a pageant, "The Fourfold Life" portraying the work of the school, and the craft work of the pupils will be on display. Much interest is manifested in the work of the school, the attendance being over the 100 mark and the enrollment 160. Pupils may enroll at any time, there being no charge. The instruction is Christian but non-sectarian.

Sacred Music Program Ready For Services

BLANCA BIERMANN SMITHS, graduate of the National Conservatory of Santiago, Chile, will give a musical program at the Church of Divine Inspiration, Golden West Hall, Pacific building, tomorrow at 2:30.

The program includes "Barcarolle," C. Crercenzo; "To the Spring," Greig; "Impromptu in A flat," F. Schubert. Franklin Robert will render a solo entitled "How Long Wilt Thou Forget Me, O Lord."

Judge W. H. Briggs will be the speaker of the day. Estelle Iddings is musical director, and Augusta E. Robert, D. D., leader.

Gospel Tent Meetings Held Here

A series of interdenominational gospel tent meetings will be held on the site of the Aimee Semple McPherson campaign of last July at Twenty-sixth street near Broadway. The meetings open tomorrow.

The campaign will be in charge of Evangelist Charles Eugene Ross, of Syracuse, N. Y. A number of evangelists and missionaries will be present from time to time and assist in the meetings. Among others will be Rev. William K. Towner, pastor of the First Baptist church of San Jose; Miss Mary F. Ayers, recently returned from the mission field of India and well known in religious circles of California; Mrs. Frank Isenberger, soloist of the First Baptist church of San Jose, formerly soloist of the First Baptist church of Los Angeles.

Services will be held daily except Monday at 3 and 7:30 p. m.

Tomorrow's services will be as follows: 9:45 a. m. Bible school. 11 a. m., morning worship. 3 p. m. and 7:45 p. m., evangelistic messages. Young People's service will be held at 6:15 p. m.

God Desire Attracts to Psychology

During the summer evenings for some weeks there will be a series of sermons on the pathway into God's presence, delivered at Trinity church, Telegraph and Twenty-ninth, by the Rev. Lloyd B. Thomas.

Reverend Thomas says: "The interest in applied psychology is due to a desire for intimacy with realty, for contact of the soul with God. The attention paid to spiritual healing is deep under the surface, an attempt to make some practical use of a personal religion. That is, it is the effort to make our touch with God affect our daily life. These sermons in a very simple way will relate how people get into vital touch with the living God. The method is not a mystery, although people who have practiced it are often called 'mystics.' It is a pathway quite clearly marked. These sermons wil point out some of the sign-posts along the way. Tomorrow at 7:45 p. m. the subject will be 'The Pilgrim's Quest.'"

The sermon at the 11 a. m. service, on "The Spirit of Youth and Reason"' will deal with some principles underlying the problem of education, and with the promise of progress held in the heart of our young people.

A Daily Vacation Bible School is conducted at Trinity church, to which all children of the neighborhood are invited. The session is from 9 a. m. to 11:45 a. m.

First Congregational Vacation School Doubles in Year

The fourth annual Daily Vacation Bible School classes at the First Congregational church have doubled in a year, averaging since June 18 a daily attendance of 119. Miss Ada Rose Demerest is principal; Rev. Ralph C. Waddell, supervisor; Mrs. J. H. Koll, primary superintendent; Mrs. Faith Van Horn Knox, girls' department superintendent; Miss Alice Flint, basketry department superintendent; Miss Marion Holcomb, Mrs. L. Kuebler, Mrs. Bernice Sykes, Miss Virginia Barley, assistants. The school closes Friday, July 20.

Vacation Schools to Show Work

The vacation schools of the East-bay Baptist churches are to hold a demonstration of their four weeks work at the First Baptist church tomorrow afternoon at 3 p. m.

After the opening numbers the roll of the schools will be called and each will appropriately respond. Several vacation school songs will be sung with Rev. Walter Fowler of Berkeley acting as song leader and Mrs. Walter Fowler as pianist. To demonstrate some of the work accomplished each school is to have about five minutes time on the program. The items will include memory work, songs, drills and dramatizing. Dr. M. L. Thomas, religious work director, will close with a few remarks. After the program an exhibit of the best craft work from each school will be shown in the Sunday school room.

In connection with the work of the Baptist schools this summer there is being published a little news sheet each week which serves to keep the schools in touch with one another.

A banquet for Baptist pastors and Vacation school workers is to be held Monday evening, July 9, at the Melrose church on Forty-seventh avenue. The betterment of the work for the coming year will be discussed.

Christian Lay Body Backs World Court

WINONA LAKE, Ind., July 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—American support of the world court of international justice, but favoring a "world organization, which shall have a right to deal with all matters international in character likely to lead to war," was approved in a resolution by the World Christian Citizenship conference here today. Practically the entire day was devoted to discussion of the subject.

Debate of the international court question was divided solely on the question of American participation in the world court or the League of Nations. The resolution as adopted was declared by both sides to be satisfactory.

Tribute to Bible.

The Continent gives a novel slant on Channing Pollock, who wrote "The Fool" the dramatized story of a Christian minister who tried to live literally by the precepts of Christ. Pollock never read the Bible till his friend, Basil King, a clergyman-author, urged him that a literary man ought not to be ignorant of such supreme literature. Pollock recently unburdened himself to a Congregational interviewer as follows: "I wish I could make you understand what I found there. I was simply carried away by it—all of it—but the New Testament gripped me so that I could not leave it alone. I carried a Testament about with me, and one day when I went out to the garage I was gone so long that my wife came out to see whether I'd been killed by gas fumes. She found me so deep in that Testament I never heard her come in. It's a wonderful book."

His Favorite Book.

One of the most assiduous readers of the Bible that has come to our attention lives in Berkeley. He or she signs himself A. C. and in a letter written to the Christian Herald, states that he noticed in a recent issue that Rev M. L. G. Proper states he has read the Old Testament through nine times, and the New Testament twenty times. A. C. of Berkeley confesses to reading the Old Testament through twenty-five times, and the New Testament two hundred and two times, and still going strong. "The more I read the dear old Book, the better I like it," he writes, "and I have committed considerable of it to memory." Imagine anyone reading any other book under the sun so continuously as that, and with so much evident pleasure.

Onward Christian Soldiers. . .

Despite the unprecedented disturbances in China; civil war, the plague of banditry and other troubles, the Gospel is reported as making rapid headway throughout the country. Recently, according to the Christian Herald, heathen politicians of Peking, designing to corrupt the Christian morale of General Feng's army, recently drafted 15,000 heathen into his command. Then the unexpected happened. A revival broke out among the heathen soldiers and many conversions were made.

Even in India the work has not lagged. In Japan reports indicate doubling and quadrupling of Christian congregations within a year. In Bolivia revivals are progressing, in the face of persecutions involving the burning of churches.

Indians not Forgotten.

Seven institutions are taking care of religious work among the Protestant Indians in government schools. They are Sherman Institute in California, Haskell Institute in Kansas, the Indian schools in Albuquerque and Santa Fe, N. M. Flandreau, S. D., Pipestone, Minn., and Genoa, Neb. According to The Continent, Presbyterian women have for two years past been cooperating in this work with other denominations through the Home Missions Council, and plans are now under way to establish a religious worker at the new government school recently opened on the Fort Apache reservation in Arizona. These workers give religious instruction, organize and supervise Y. W. and Y. M. C. A.'s, plan social entertainments, visit the sick and do personal work among the students.

Tabernacle Services Enthusiastic

The First Christian church experienced a tremendous impulse toward large undertakings all along the line in the enthusiastic services of last Sunday in the new Community Tabernacle.

The evening services for the month of July are to be held in the new building, featuring special attractions in addition to a short address by the minister. Music is under the direction of Dr. O. S. Dean.

Prof. Maurice Ricker, of Washington, D. C., will deliver an address richly illustrated by motion pictures, tomorrow evening. Prof. Ricker is an eminent biologist, assistant director of the United States Public Health Service, and this will be a rare educational opportunity. He is here in attendance at the N. E. A.

The morning service will be in the church auditorium as usual with Dr. Harvey O. Breeden, minister, in the pulpit.

Quartet music will be by Dr. O. S. Dean, Miss Bernita Mable, Miss Gertrude Freitag and Charles Piggott.

Everyman's Bible class announces a vigorous campaign launched to make the 9:30 Sunday morning class, a real community center.

LOS ANGELES, July 7.—James W. Holnecke, celebrated his 80th birthday by making a flight in an airplane. "That's what I've wanted to do for fifty years," he said.

Teachers Discuss Art of Speaking

The art of public speaking was discussed and at the same time demonstrated at the second meeting of the National Association of Teachers of Speech in the auditorium of the Public Museum yesterday afternoon.

Play acting should be introductory to interpretative reading and public speaking, declared Professor Rollo A. Tallcott of Butler college, Indianapolis, asit gives the student opportunity to lose his self-conciousness in impersonation before he attempts directly to speak to an audience.

Miss Sara Huntsman, assistant professor of oral English, University of California, spoke on "Instruction in Speaking as a Means of Education," winning approbation for her style of delivery as well as the subject matter.

Other speakers and subjects were: "Standards in Interpretation," by Miss Millis L. Caverly, Piedmont High school; "Speech Training in the High School Curriculum," by Professor R. E. Williams, De Pauw university; followed by a humorous discussion of the subject by Miss Catherine L. Fields, Santa Rosa High school.

Property Is Sold Through Tribune Ad

Mrs. O. Vandruff, proprietor of one of the leading hotels in San Jose, and long prominent in the affairs of Santa Clara county, has acquired the aparatment house property and stores, formerly belonging to Mrs. C. Moir, on Grove near Twenty-second. The deal was concluded through the office of Mrs. Von, 1532 Franklin street, whose advertising in The Oakland TRIBUNE on June 17 attracted Mrs. Vandruff. Mrs. Von and other realty brokers report recent heavy investments of San Jose capital in Eastbay property.

COMPOSERS PLAY THEIR WORKS AT SAN JOSE MEET

Delegates to Convention of Music Teachers Hear State Offerings.

SAN JOSE, July 7.—Last night's program of the State Music Teachers' convention was held in conjunction with the Northern California Composers' Association in Morris Dailey memorial auditorium at the San Jose State Teachers' College. Several of the state's composers participated in the evening's program.

The delegates, over 100 all told, journeyed by automobile to Stanford university yesterday afternoon, being entertained with a program by Warren Allen, organist, in the Stanford Memorial chapel. Earlier in the afternoon the delegates enjoyed a program here in which the Sequoia trio of San Francisco and Orley See, Oakland violinist, took part.

A short business session was held at the College of the Pacific yesterday morning, a historical program, followed by a round table discussion led by Allan Bacon, organist, marking this portion of the convention.

San Joseans Entertain Bay Friends

SAN JOSE, July 7.—Mr. and Mrs. Bart Lorigan entertained at one of the largest al fresco dinner parties of the season on the Fourth, entertaining nearly 150 friends from Oakland, San Francisco, Berkeley and San Jose at their beautiful foothill home near this city. Following the dinner the guests enjoyed dancing, music and games. The Lorigans will be hosts at another large affair in the near future.

One of the most interesting engagements here in several weeks is that of Miss Marjorie Esther Leitch and Hilmar Peterson. The engagement was announced today by the parents of the bride-to-be, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Leitch. Miss Leitch is one of the most popular members of the local younger set. Peterson is prominent in financial circles here. The wedding will take place early in the fall.

Miss Juanita Halsey will leave on July 16 for Mexico, where she will spend a vacation lasting for several weeks.

The Fred Francks and daughter, Miss Gladys Franck, have left for Capitola, where they will occupy their summer home during the balance of the summer season.

Mrs. George T. Hariiss entertained a group of friends at dinner and cards last evening. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Younger, Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Osborne, Fred W. Becker and Miss Marjorie Osborne.

Mrs. Everett A. Thomas has announced the engagement of her daughter, Inex Evelyn, to Claude T. Byers of Houston, Texas. The wedding will be solemnized in September.

Miss Esther Seeman is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Carter, in Inglenside Park, San Francisco.

Children Blamed For Store Robbery

MARTINEZ, July 7.—Thefts believed by Constable Bloom Rogers to have been perpetrated by children were committed at the Valley House on the Franklin Canyon road Thursday evening and a small amount of candy and soda water taken. Constable Rogers found that entrance to the place had been gained by breaking the glass in a window and reaching in to unlatch the door. Nothing other than the candy and soda water was touched, which fact leads the officer to believe that the theft is the work of boys.

War Secretary Given Presidential Power

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Authority under which the secretary of war "will act for and in the name of the president and by his authority" in approving or disapproving findings of army boards placing officers in "class B" status provided by law, is contained in an executive order signed by President Harding June 19, made public yesterday.

Authority of the secretary to take such action in the absence of special instructions from the president has been questioned before the course by officers thus classified and the executive order was issued to clear up the matter.

Sardine Canning at Monterey Opens

MONTEREY, July 7.—Fish canning opened here with a boom today when the F. E. Booth Company's packing plant started operations. Seven tons of sardines were taken, and the cannery, the largest in this region, will continue operations for the rest of the sardine season.

Other plants on the waterfront are cleaning house preparatory to beginning work, and it is thought that within the week all the buildings on cannery row will be in swing.

James R. Lessels, 37, and Lottie G. Adams, 31, both of San Diego.

SMITH—In San Jose, July 5, Jas. E. Smith, a native of Oregon, aged 76 years, 10 months and 8 days.

Berkeley Death Rate Low; Births Show Decrease

BERKELEY, July 7.—This city's low death rate compares favorable with that of other cities of its size throughout the United States, according to statistics compiled by the federal census bureau and just published.

There are only two other cities of the same size as Berkeley which have lower death rates. These are Akron, Ohio, with 7.5 per thousand, and Racine, Wisconsin, with 8.1 per thousand. Berkeley's rate was 8.8 per thousand, which is a decrease of 0.6 a thousand as compared with the year preceding.

The only city of any size on the Pacific coast to beat Berkeley in this regard was Richmond, with a death rate of 6.7 a thousand.

Birth rate figures show a decrease of 1.16 per thousand, the figure for 1922 being 15.5 a thousand. The state and nation show decreases, too. The state had a rate of 19.8 on births this year, as compared with 20.2 the year before. That of the nation was 22.7 last year as compared with 24.3 in 1921.

CHOIR PLANNING HOME WELCOME FOR NEWLYWEDS

ALAMEDA, July 6.—The choir of the First Presbyterian church in this city is preparing to extend a cordial welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Rockingham, two of their members who are expected back shortly from a honeymoon in the southern part of the state.

The marriage of the couple was a recent event in Alameda musical circles, as both have voices of unusual merit and have been heard in many entertainments in the Eastbay region.

Mrs. Rockingham before her marriage was Miss Margaret Low, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Low of 2228 Lincoln avenue, Alameda.

TAPE CARRIES DEATH CURRENT AS LIVE WIRE

BOULDER, Colo., July 7 (International News Service).—As a result of dropping a metal tape he was carrying which came in contact with a high power transmission line here late yesterday, James Weathers is believed dying and two others burned so badly that their recovery is doubtful. Eleven thousand volts was carried by the tape from the transmission line through the bodies of the men. Witnesses of the accident say that the men owe their lives to the fact that the lead foil which acted as carrier of the current melted so quickly that part of the force was lost.

Several others were rendered unconscious. All were employees of the Western Union.

American Canoes Adopted in Italy

ROME, July 7.—(By The Associated Press.)—The American Indian canoe, which for centuries has piled only the streams and lakes of the North American continent, has at last found its way to the classic "yellow Tiber." Canoeing has become a favorite river sport of the Romans. On Sunday a dozen or more of the frail Indian craft can be seen in the yellow waters gliding along the shores in company with skiffs, shells, sculls and motor boats.

The graceful Indian water conveyance has become so popular that an Italian firm has commenced the manufacture of them. They took several American canoes as models and then began turning them out by the scores. A canoe club also has been organized, and many Americans have joined. Paddling to the perfection of the Indians has not yet been achieved. The Romans make vain efforts to keep the canoe headed straight, but a change of paddle is necessary after every few strokes.

Air Service Links Russia and England

KOENIGSBERG, Germany, July 7.—(By The Associated Press.)—Passengers may now fly from London to Moscow in nineteen and one-half hours of actual flying time. TRAILS WIFE AND SEEKS DIVORCE

When Malcolm J. Crosby discovered his wife, Cora Crosby, leaving an automobile in which were seated two strange men and another woman and taxed her with it, her only reply was that she no lnoger loved him and that he could do as he pleased about it, he sets forth in a divorce complaint filed in the superior court today.

The incident was the climax of several hours of trailing his wife, the husband declares. This began from his workto the family home, 1735 Fourth avenue. His wife had told him she was going to remain at home that evening, he says, but he found her attired to go out.

Instead of going to work he followed her first to a beauty parlor and later to the Henshaw building, where he lost her. Returning home he saw, several hours later, a large touring car parked at the curb near the home and in a few moments saw his wife leave the car, he declares.

Crosby also says that on one occasion he returned home from Los Angeles unexpectedly, and made a search of his wife's room, finding two letters hidden under the clothing in the closet. One of these letters was from a man in Chicago to his wife, and the other from the wife to the Chicago stranger, the husband says. He states that he forgave her on that occasion.

WOMEN OF N. Y. FIRST TO SCALE HAWAIIAN PEAK

HILO, Island of Hawaii, July 7.—(By The Associated Press.)—The lofty, snow-tipped summit of Mauna Kea, highest spot in the Hawaiian Islands, has been surmounted, for the first time in history, by a party of of women, which included Miss Katherine MacGregor of New York, a noted hiker, mountain-climber and writer.

Mauna Kea, upon whose lower slopes is the ever-active volcano of Kilauea, rises to a height of 13,825 feet above sea-level. The country on the slopes is of the roughest nature and the ascent is made from the semi-tropical temperature of sea-level to the bitterly-cold arctic temperature of the peak. None of the party of eight suffered severe hardships except sunburn, windburn, and blisters, they said upon their return.

Four days were consumed in making the ascent over the lava and the summit was reached so late in the afternoon that it was necessary for the party to spend the night at the top, which was swept by heavy winds. Only two days were necessary to make the descent.

FARM HAND HELD ON HIS COUSIN'S SLAVERY CHARGE

WOODLAND, July 7.—Watson Fox, Winters farm hand, has been held by the United States federal court commissioner to answer before the federal court on a charge of white slavery preferred against him by J. S. Waggoner, farmer and orchardist of Winters, his employer.

It was learned that Fox lured Mrs. Frank Bailey, a mother of two children, away from her home in Washington, New Jersey, to California. Mrs. Bailey had had trouble with her husband and she believed that because Fox was her first cousin, and a man 50 years old while she was only 24, that he would assist her until she got on her feet and started.

The testimony developed that when Mrs. Bailey refused to live with Fox he deserted her and her two children. The matter was then presented to Probation Officer A. A. Powers. Mrs. Bailey is now working while her children have been made wards of the local courts.

Mrs. Bailey found that Fox, instead of living in a luxuriant California home, as he had intimated, was living in a back room of the Waggoner ranch house, near Winters.

HAYWARD

HAYWARD, July 7.—With a little more than three weeks' time before the opening of the fifth annual Eden Township Farm Products Show here, local sponsors and supporters of the event are redoubling their efforts to bring about a success that will set a new and high mark in Hayward and Alameda county progress. Every farm center, improvement club, civic and fraternal organization is being solicited by the directors to participate in the show, the canvass already achieving many favorable replies and bearing every evidence of results that will surpass those of the past.

Entry of the Fairview Improvement Club is being sought, with the directors of that organization promising a definite decision within the pending week. The excellent situation of the district which the club represents, on upper B street just outside of the city limits, and its splendid adaptability to poultry production, makes its participation especially desired. The Ashland Improvement Club has already signified its intention to enter, as has the Valle Vista Improvement Club and the Mountain House, Pleasanton, Bayview and Hayward Heath farm bureau centers.

The large and comprehensive charts furnished to every prospective participant in the show showing the exact location of each booth, with attached price, are producing the desired results, it has been stated, the arrangement eliminating a great deal of the usual confusion and congestion and the last minute scramble for space and accommodations.

Fruitmen Advised How to Fight Slugs

HAYWARD, July 7.—With the present season proving advantageous to their productivity and destructiveness, agriculturists of the Hayward section and the lower portion of the county are being advised of satisfactory combative measures against the small "cherry and pear" slugs, the green and black variety that create such havoc among the trees. The control, according to Joseph B. Hammon, assistant farm adviser here, is extremely simple, virtually any sort of dusting proving immediately fatal to the nuisances. Road dust, nico-dust, sulphur dust, powdered lime or even plain flour will dry the slugs up and tumble them from the trees. Arsenate of lead spray will accomplish the results, it is advised, one and one-half pound mixed with fifty gallons of water having sufficient potency to kill.

The slugs, produced from the saw-fly that deposite its eggs on the trees and leaves, direct their energies toward the skin of the leaves, eating away all except the bare skeleton. Last year witnessed a profusion of the damaging insects, but early and thorough combative measures, it is believed, will minimize the nuisance this season.

The union is designed exclusively for protection and instruction to the growers, it was mentioned by local agriculturists who were present.

The wage for 'cot workers was set at $4 at the organization meeting. George Donovan was elected president and P. H. Moore, secretary and treasurer. A membership committee was appointed and an executive committee will be chosen later by the president. Representatives from the United States Department of Agriculture, American Fruit Packers' Association and the Co-operative Canneries were present, each making short talks on subjects most vital and interesting to the assemblage. There was an attendance of approximately 200.

Refreshments will be served. Mrs. L. M. Turner, league president, will be in charge of arrangements.

For the past two years the league has provided milk and cracker lunches to the children, five local schools receiving the service. The funds on hand have been exhausted. HAYWARD GIRL THOUGHT VICTIM OF KIDNAPERS

Police Seek Lucy Sepeta, Who Has Been Missing From Home Two Days.

HAYWARD, July 7. — Police of this city are today investigating the disappearance of 14-year-old Lucy Sepeta, who vanished from her home on D street, Hayward, July 4, and has not yet been heard from. At first, believing that the girl was visiting with friends or relatives, the parents attached little significance to the absence, but when two days passed and she had not returned, the police were appealed to.

Whether the girl wandered away of her own volition or was abducted, the parents, Joseph V. and Eleanor Sepeta, cannot say, although the latter supposition is the most probable, they declare.

The missing girl is described as weighing about 90 pounds, very short, light brown eyes and blonde hair, birth mark on the right cheek, clad in a dark silk dress.

Alameda Apricots Large as Peaches

HAYWARD, July 7.—Held as proof sufficient of the value and results attributed to adoption of soil preparation and tree attention, as prescribed by experts connected with the University of California extension service, with the co-operation of the Alameda County Farm Bureau, the condition of one of several local apricot demonstration plots, portion of an extensive project, is being held up for inspection here. The plot belongs to L. M. Turner, well known grower of the Mt. Eden road.

Turner's trees, it is adjudged by experts, are producing the best 'cots in the entire county, most of them ranging from six to eight to the pound, many five and six to the pound, and nothing less than twelve per pound. Measurements in many cases show the fruit to be 2½ inches across—the minimum limit for A1 grade canning peaches.

Early plowing, long pruning and double thinning are among the reasons such a surprising crop was produced on the Turner ranch, it is mentioned. Every 'cot is from two to four inches from its nearest double. Other experimental plots conducted in similar manner are those of P. H. Moore, George Lorrie and Charles Long.

MARTINEZ, July 7.—Still dazed and in a serious condition, although not critical, Henry Kelmith, ex-German sailor, who was found unconscious on the highway near Walnut Creek Tuesday night after he had been struck by an automobile, lies on his cot at the county hospital unable to tell the attendants what happened or what struck him.

One eye closed from contact with the pavement or with the automobile which struck him, an arm broken and many serious bruises and cuts about his head and body sum up his injuries. He is still unable to see.

The injured man was brought to the hospital Tuesday night by Jesse V. Allen of Allen's garage, at the request of autoists who stopped him on the highway near Wainut Creek. Allen did not learn the names of the persons who asked him to bring Kelmith here, nor did they offer any explanation of what had happened.

The TRIBUNE championship tournament begins at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning in Bushrod playgrounds. Take No. 4 or No. 6 car direct to the park at Fifty-ninth and Shattuck.

If all pitchers report to Jay B. Nash, the referee, before the first round, just exactly 160 men will try for the cup. After the drawings, eighty pairs will be eligible to play. There may be a few scratches but not one entrant has yet declined the issue.

His men are digging up the ground and wetting down the earth so that the shoes will not bound or roll but will stick where they are thrown. McAdams promises soft places for the shoes to fall. He says players will be pleased with the arrangements for play.

Coffee and hot dogs will be served to the players during the progress of the tournament. Contestants will not be required to pitch on empty stomachs.

BRING OWN SHOES.

Tournament players to the number of 160 are expected to report to these officials before the beginning of the first round at 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

Last Night's fight results

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 7.—Jimmy Sacco of Boston was given a decision over Joe Dunn at the end of a ten-round bout here at catch weights of about 140 pounds. Sacco led until near the end, when Dunn, who seemed in poor condition, made a whirlwind finish.

Johnny Mack, Philadelphia lightweight, gained a decision over Frankie Britt, Tacoma, and Heinie Zimmerman, Winnipeg light heavyweight, over Chuck Kerber, Everett. Frankie Green, Seattle, and Clarence Robinson, Vancouver, bantamweights, fought a draw.

ST. LOUIS, July 7.—Patsy Flanagan of St. Louis won a technical decision over Sammy Sandow of Cincinnati here when the referee stopped a scheduled 10-round bout in the seventh round, due to Sandow breaking a bone in the wrist of his right hand early in the fight.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Cal., July 7.—Steve Biss, formerly welterweight champion of the battle fleet, and Kid Mexico boxed a draw in the main event of a program with which the Huntington Beach Athletic club opened a new arena. In the semi-windup, Young Terry was awarded a decision over Joe Grimm when the latter's seconds threw a towel into the ring in the third round.

Johnston and Lenglen Lead Tennis World

California Wonder Player Wins Title Today in Wimbledon Racquets Tourney.

By MYRON TOWNSEND.

Flash! Johnston wins! Glad tidings from London at 7:15 o'clock this morning. The news that the California wonder had defeated Francis T. Hunter of New Rochelle, N. Y., and won the world tennis titles in singles at Wimbledon.

A few weeks ago "Our Billy" annexed the world clay court championship in France. He will now have to defeat William T. Tilden in the American championships and dispose of him in the Davis cup singles and he will be universally recognized as the world's best.

TILDEN AND JOHNSTON.

For some reason or other, Tilden has had Johnston's number. Experts say that Tilden has a greater variety of strokes. His height and reach are also in his favor. However, it doesn't always follow that a good big man can beat a good little man on the courts.

California followers of racquets have a hunch that this is to be a Johnston year on the courts. Golden State enthusiasts wouldn't be a bit surprised if the westerner turned tables on the effete easterner in this year's championship tournament.

If Johnston can take Tilden's measure he will do what no other tennis player in the history of the game has done—make a clean sweep of titles on both grass and clay courts.

PROUD OF JOHNSTON.

California people are mighty proud of Billy Johnston. He has advertised the Golden State to the wide world in just the right way. Californians hope that his successes will continue until he takes all the honors. Only two obstructions now stand in his way. He now has the best all around record as a Davis cup player of any one man in the world. However, he has had rather hard luck in his National title matches with William T. Tilden.

Billy Johnston should get the "breaks" this year. At least he should by the law of averages and here's hoping that he does.

KING AND QUEEN.

Suzanne Lenglen and William T. Tilden are the king and queen of the Wimbledon courts. They are the most talked about players of the hour.

Suzanne's feat of winning the world championship at Wimbledon five times in succession will probably never be duplicated. Molla Mallory, the American champion, quite evidently isn't in Suzanne's class.

The leading English women players easily put the kibosh on Molla only in turn to fall easily before the prowess of Suzanne Lenglen. Kathleen McKane, the British woman champion, plays a steady, consistent game, but she couldn't cope with Mlle. Lenglen's dazzling speed and all around mastery of the strokes. Suzanne is the feminine genius of the courts.

And at Wimbledon, Johnston and Lenglen were the Adams and Eva of the ancient game. They outclassed their fields so far that none can dispute their supremacy. They are, beyond question, on this season's form true "champions of the world."

GOLF

By W. D. McNICOLL.

After the bustle of last week-end the local golf courses are to be comparatively quiet this week as far as tournaments are concerned. Next Monday, July 9, the Berkeley course will be the scene among the local professionals, when they hold their monthly contest. Joe Novak is anxious to have every professional in the district present, to give the course a thorough test. It would be a splendid lesson for one to get out to Berkeley and see how to negotiate the many testing holes that combine to make the par of 70 so hard to accomplish.

More than usual interest will be taken in this year's national open event at Inwood, where Harold Sampson, MacDonald Smith, Abe Espinosa and John Black are competing. Mack is drawn to qualify with Walter Hagan and is sure to have a large gallery. Abe Espinosa is fortunate in qualifying with a very fine golfer, Bob McDonald, late of Buffalo, but now of Chicago while John Black is drawn with Boston's famous amateur, Francis Weimet. Harold Sampson the Lincoln Park professional, was playing wonderful golf previous to his departure east, and if he keeps up his home form should qualify and finish near the top. Mack Smith is already a strong favorite for the championship, and with Abe Espinosa always well up in important events and John Black still a Californian by adoption, the chances of bringing the greatest of all golfing honors to the Pacific coast seems most promising.

Much disappointment is felt by school boy golfers over the news that the Oakland Muncipal links will not be available for play before vacation time is over. A tired, but happy group of Claremont caddies returning from a day's golfing over the San Francisco Municipal links and Lincoln Park yesterday, expressed their disappointment when informed that their own Municipal course would not be ready for play until the middle of August.

MARINES VS. JEFFERSONS.

VALLEJO, July 7.—The Marine baseball club will play the Jefferson club of San Francisco at the yard tomorrow afternoon.

Mails Loses In Duel With Elmer Jacobs

Triple and Double by 'Brick Eldred Result in Only Scores.

SEATTLE, July 7.—Elmer Jacobs did some nifty pitching for the Seattle Indians yesterday afternoon and thereby won a great mound duel over Walter (Duster) Mails, the broad-chested southpaw of the Oakland club. Jacobs was in such good trim that he decided to give the Oaks a neat coating of whitewash, and the final result was 2 to 0.

Mails pitched a dandy game, but at no time did he have a license to win over Jacobs, as the Indian hurler allowed only three hits, scattered in as many innings, while seven were made off Mails.

Arlett got the first hit off Jacobs in the fourth inning and Cather got one in the fifth, while the other was made by Ray Brubaker in the seventh. At no time did the Oaks look dangerous. Two hits were made off Mails in the first five innings and in the sixth things broke a bit bad for the southpaw and the Indians gathered their first run, with one out of the way. Eldred connected for a double and he scored when Billy Orr hit a ball off the handle of his bat and it dropped over short for a hit. Eldred also scored the other run in the eighth inning when he led off with a triple to center and trotted toward the plate in safety after Cather made a running catch of Yaryan's long fly to deep left.

Outside of Billy Orr, who had five assists at short for the Indians, the infielders had very little work to do, as the pitchers for both sides had the batters popping the ball into the air most of the time. The score:

Racquet Stars To Seek Tennis Titles in North

Five bay district tennis players departed today to swish their racquets in Oregon, Washington and British Columbia championship tournaments. Elmer Griffin, Irving Weinstein, Wm. Whelan, Tom Stow and Tom Gallery are on their way north. Mrs. J. C. Cushing, California state champion, left a few days ago. She will meet the five in Portland.

Elmer Griffin is Oregon state champion in singles and doubles. His doubles partner was Henry N. Stevens, a former Harvard player. On the courts of the Multnomah A. A. C. he will try to repeat on July 9-14. Then he will compete in the Seattle tournament July 16-21. Then he will move on to Vancouver July 23-28.

Irving Weinstein was in Washington in 1921. Tom Stow will compete in junior events. Mrs. Cushing will play singles and doubles in the title events.

Fournier Now Leads Batters In Old League

CHICAGO, July 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—An ambition cherished in the mind of Jacques Fournier, of Brooklyn, for a number of years, has been realized. The big Frenchman is the new leader among the batters of the National League, according to averages released today and which include games of last Wednesday. By cracking out 19 hits, he boosted his mark from .342 to .384, which tops the players who have participated in 45 or more games. In his collection of hits, Fournier made five home runs during the week, in addition to collecting four doubles. Zack Wheat dropped ten points and now is trailing Fournier with an average of .382.

The spurt of Fournier has been one of the most sensational in some time. During his march, Fournier made a record of six hits in six times at bat.

Jimmy Johnston, also of Brooklyn, has been keeping step with his team mate and had shot forward into fourth place with Young of New York. They are tied with .366.

ROUSH HITS .374.

Ed Roush, of Cincinnati, is third with .374. George Grantham of the Cubs has lost none of his cunning base lines. He is showing the way to the base stealers with 20 thefts and is leading the two-base hitters with 23.

"Cy" Williams, of the Phillies, has recovered sufficiently to take his regular position, and is back in his batting stride. In the past week "Cy" cracked out two home runs and now leads the major league players with 22.

Other leading batters Frisch, New York, .363; O'Farrell, Chicago, .360; Grimm, Pittsburgh, .357; Bottomley, St. Louis, .347; Mokan, Philadelphia, .344; Southworth, Boston, .343; Traynor, Pittsburgh, .343; Hornsby, St. Louis, .343; Carey, Pittsburgh, .337; Bigby, Pittsburgh, .330.

HEILMAN LEADS LEAGUE.

Harry Heilmann, of Detroit, has remained on the top of the hitters in the American League. During the last week his average dropped from .426 to .419. However, he continues to lead. His closest rival is Charles Jamieson of Cleveland, who is the runner-up with .375. Babe Ruth has batted himself into a tie for third place with Eddie Collins of the White Sox. Each has a mark of .363. Ruth bagged two more homers, and ran his string to 16. Collins is blazing the trail for the base stealers with 27 thefts. Ken Williams of the St. Louis Browns smashed out a brace of four baggers and is trailing Babe for the honors with 12. Ruth has increased his total base record to 163 and has added a dozen runs to his scoring record, having tallied 68 times.

Other leading batters Haney, Detroit, .368; Witt, New York, .352; Flagstead, Boston, .338; J. Sewell, Cleveland, .333; J. Harris, Boston, .333; Ruel, Washington, .330; Cobb, Detroit, .327; Williams, St. Louis, .323; Myatt, Cleveland, .323; Hauser, Philadelphia, .317.

Diamond, of Denver, a week down in tenth place in the Western League, has launched a drive and is within striking distance of Bauman of Tulsa, who is leading with .398. Horan of Des Moines is the runner-up with .38[illegible], and Diamond is next with .37[illegible].

"BUZ" ARLETT LEADS LOCAL CLUB REGULARS IN BATTING AVERAGES

Claude Cooper's Hitting and Work on Bases Indicates That He Is Having Best Season Since Joining Oaks; Cather Has High Average.

By EDDIE MURPHY

Russell (Buz) Arlett, the big Oak who has given up pitching for the outfield, is the leading hitter of the local club with a batting average of .333 for all games including those of yesterday. Mike Massey, new second sacker of the club and Pete Read, the young catcher are listed ahead of Arlett in the averages printed below, but they have not played in at least half the games played to date. Arlett has been hitting the ball at a hard clip, and in his last eight games, he hit five home runs, making a total of seven to date. LaFayette, who is stepping fast toward the select class of hitters, has hit six home runs. At the clip LaFayette is hitting, he should be among the select in ten days.

Besides, Arlett, Massey and Read, the Oaks have six regulars batting better than .300. Massey's record of .386 is something to be proud of.

Claude Cooper is moving along fast and promising to finish the season above the .300 mark. He is now at .315. Cooper leads the club in run scoring and base stealing, and is tied with LaFayette in hitting two baggers. Ted Cather is running Cooper a close race for run scoring and base stealing honors.

The entire infield of the Oaks is hitting better than .300. Ray Brubaker has found his batting eye and has an average of .310, while Al Maderas is next to him with .303. Jack Knight's average of .315 shows that he still has his optics on the ball.

George Whiteman, Del Baker and Frank Wetzel, three of the new addition to the club this season, are hitting lower than .270.

Big Shakeup Is Planned to Hit Vernon Tigers

LOS ANGELES, July 7 (International News Service).—On arrival here Wednesday of the Vernon club, local ball fans expected to have confirmed a report that four veteran players are to be lopped off.

The men mentioned are "Red" Smith, third baseman; "Wheezer" Dell, veteran pitcher; "Ping" Bodie, outfielder, and Dallas Locker, first baseman.

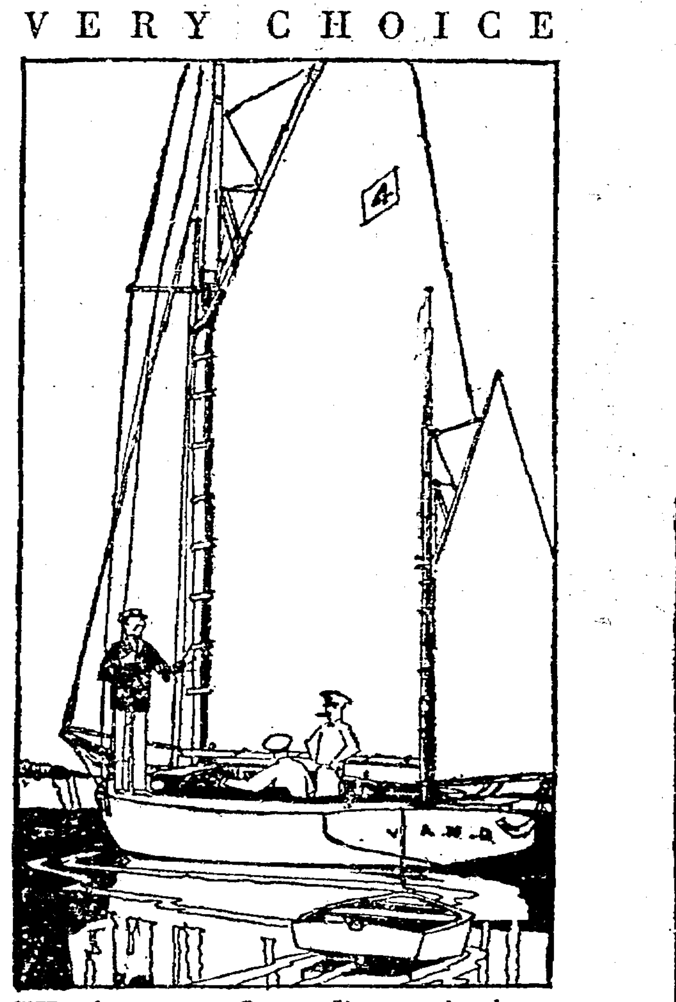

Vernon's loss of six out of eight and the fact that the four Vernon vets are not generally credited with showing their old time "stuff" this year was given partly as a basis for the report.

Bodie was cut $500 this season and finally was promised a bonus if he could hit above .300.

REDMEN VS. GUERNEVILLE.

VALLEJO, July 7.—The Vallejo Redmen will cross bats with one of the teams from Guerneville on Sunday. Les Nolan, manager for the local nine, expects to take all of his colts to the Russian river town for the contest.

VERY CHOICE

"What better . . . Just to fling out the sheets . . . run with the wind . . . then back on deck and bask in the contentment of a Van Dyck . . . . the Coast's own cigar . . ."

Dull care flees on the wings of the wind when a Van Dyck sails with you. Prime favorite of the West Coasters on land or sea. More smoked between San Diego and Vancouver than any other high-class cigar. Why not? The Coast knows a choice cigar, and Van Dycks are very choice: Choice Havana Filler; choice handicraft. Mild—fragrant. Try a Van Dyck yourself, and know why it belongs.

CONVENTION CLOSES.

After adopting a series of resolutions which indicate in some measure the labors and thought contributed to their meetings, the delegates to the National Education Association have adjourned and are ready to see California.

Large numbers will take advantage of the courses at the Summer Session at the University of California. Others will visit the Yosemite, the big trees and the beaches. For the thousands who have been so busy attending conferences and meetings school is out; vacation has commenced.

Just as the Bay cities were fortunate in having the chance to entertain these delegates, the State is privileged to be the host to the departing educators who will linger in a land of beauty before crossing the mountains and the plains to their home cities.

There is no way to summarize all that was accomplished at the convention. Its results are benefits to the individual teacher because of the opportunities to meet with others interested in her particular subject; benefits to the association because its influence has been extended and its high aspirations maintained; benefits to the future because it was able to mark the path a little clearer and remove from it some of the obstacles.

That the Eastbay and San Francisco will benefit is inevitable. Our best climate was constantly on display, the highways invited the automobiles, and the homes were thrown open. Hospitality looks for no reward and is extended without thought of return save the knowledge that the guests had a good time and will carry away a pleasant impression.

The convention proved conclusively that this community is equipped to entertain the largest conventions. It is able to house and feed the thousands without complaint or congestion. Without any qualms the Eastbay, or the Bay cities, may invite the largest of assemblages and know that the task of caring for them is not too large. What is more to the point, after this convention, the whole country will be apprised of the same fact.

So the community is indebted to the educators for the pleasant opportunity of demonstrating to the world the resources and beauties of San Francisco Bay as a convention center. It is indebted to them for the chance of furnishing the setting for one of the most important conventions of the year, for the friendships that have been made, and for the deeper understanding of educational aims which has been impressed upon every resident who has followed the course of the interesting and inspirational sessions.

In no small part the success of the convention is due to the work of the school teachers in the Eastbay who, with the cooperation of the Chamber of Commerce and other bodies, started in early to prepare for the reception of the delegates. They are entitled to congratulations.

SAFE MILK SUPPLY.

For three outstanding reasons the milk supply of the United States is safer than that of foreign countries. The system of inspection is the most extensive and rigidly enforced; education as to the necessity of using only pure and safe milk has created a demand for only that kind, and the producers readily make all effort to cooperate in complying with the requirements of clean milk production.

Of course this was not always true. The old one-horse milk-peddling outfit with its open can and long-handled dipper is, within the boundaries of most memories. The day of the sterilized bottle from the distributing plant, the farm dairies operated according to modern sanitary methods, and the product furnished pure and sealed to the eating places is a new one, and for it the Department of Agriculture, Dairy Council and all of those interested in the industry are to be thanked.

To some of the larger cities milk must be shipped as far as 500 miles. For all interstate shipments there is Federal supervision. In addition, state agencies inspect the product within their limits and many cities have independent inspection agencies.

The milk consumer of this country has reason to be interested in the knowledge that he is better protected than those of any other land. He reads, perhaps with surprise for improvements are quickly accepted, that the methods of this land are not those of the others and that representatives of other nations are in the United States today to study the American way.

"What has impressed my mind most in every city visited in the United States," one of these visitors said the other day, "is the stringent safeguards that are adopted to ensure an absolute safe milk and the close cooperation that exists between health authorities, inspection agencies, and producers to that end."

CITY BUILDERS.

Some months ago a canvass was made among the newcomers to Oakland to see what it was that had attracted their attention to this community. Seventy-five per cent of those interviewed said they had first learned of Oakland and become interested through commercial travelers.

There is material in this experiment and experience for those who have not considered the commercial traveler as a community asset. The man who goes out from a city as an envoy of trade, speaks his opinion of that city in as many places as he visits. When the city's development, situation, and record is one to inspire enthusiasm he spreads that enthusiasm to the far places. In the nature of his business, in the trains, or in the offices of leading men of many states he becomes the personal representative of his city.

Oakland has had a demonstration of what the commercial travelers of this city, and those who visit here from other cities, have done to aid in its development.

But recently the supreme council of the United Commercial Travelers of America convened at Columbus, Ohio, for a week with representatives present from every state in the Union and from Canada. At that very meeting of men who visit every county in the country the fame of Oakland was spread by the local delegates and others.

Of that meeting, and the men who attended, the Ft. Wayne, Indiana, News-Sentinel, after telling of the Oakland canvass and its revelations, said:

> Few of us have given thought to the commercial traveler of today. Perhaps we have thought of him as a breezy individual, a flashy dresser with an unlimited supply of stories and "gall." This may have been true of him in days gone by, but today the commercial traveler who is pompous and indulges in vulgar stories is as much a relic of yesterday as the merchant who employs a cigar box for a cash register. He is a serious minded, keen, active, optimistic worker who is thoroughly versed in matters interesting the merchant. Indeed; the wise merchant, the progressive merchant welcomes the advice and suggestions of the commercial traveler who possesses the knowledge of up-to-date selling methods, a knowledge acquired by study and observation.
>
> The commercial traveler is a good citizen; a home lover and home builder. He knows human nature and responds readily to the appeal of the needy and distressed.

These men who go far afield and who, in the past, have often been deprived of the right to vote, are to be listed prominently among the city builders.

The astonishingly agile Suzanne Lenglen has retained her title as the world's greatest woman tennis player. As she has won the crown five consecutive times and has defeated the best players of other countries there can be no quibbling over her right to the honors. The Lenglen is a spectacular player of uncertain temperament but she knows tennis just as surely as a rubber ball knows how to bounce and is every inch a champion.

SCOPOLAMIN AND HIGHER TRUTH.

Psychologists of the new school and philosophers of several new schools that were once old schools will not rush forward to greet the California method of eliciting Truth by use of the hypodermic needle. Their hostility will not be concerned with specific evidence in the three cases entering into the California experiment. Their chief objection will run against the underlying theory that Truth is something to be obtained by setting out "to completely destroy every appreciation of their (the patients') environment, to eliminate every vestige of their will power, to make it impossible for them even to think, dream or reason."

Truth which is derived from the suppression of the Will can be nothing short of monstrous to the respectable body of philosophy which precisely regards the Will as one of the main architects of Truth. From the Germans who saw the world both as Will and Idea, through Bergson's creative evolution which shapes Truth in the very act of becoming cognizant of it, through the Pragmatists who find that every road trodden by the Will is the right road, and up to James Harvey Robinson, who sees Truth as the product of a changing mind trained upon a changing externality, the course of progress has been towards the exaltation of the Will. Outside of the formal schools, and in the course of what old-fashioned folk deplore as the breakdown of standards, the trend has been powerfully towards denying Truth as an objective reality and a affirming Truth as the product of the fertilizing Will and the audacious act.

Contemporary thought is strongly with Faust in his conclusion, after much painful research, that in the beginning was the Deed; that is to say, the Will. The Truth about Russia, for instance, is what Lenin and his associates will Russia to be. In Italy the Truth is being steadily manufactured by the Will of Mussolini. If we are tempted to say, as the Evening Post has sometimes been tempted, that economic chaos in Russia gives the lie to the Communist theory or that growing unrest in Italy gives the lie to Mussolini, we are, as we see it now, in error. The Communists willed the present state of things in Russia, and therefore the present economic state of things is true. Mussolini willed a dictatorship, and therefore the dictatorship of the Fascisti is true.

At least until somebody with the necessary margin of machine guns comes along and puts the Lenin and Mussolini Truth out of business and erects another Truth in its place by sheer force of Will.—New York Evening Post.

Capt. Peter Fitzurse has his own ideas upon the liquor question, and they do not agree with the ideas of Aunt Prudence Hecklebury or the ideas of Mr. Clem Hawley.

"If I had control of the government," said the Captain yesterday, "I should not make the continuous habitual drinking of intoxicating liquors compulsory in America.

"But no one would be permitted to pass his or her thirtieth year without having been intoxicated at least three times.

"These three 'drunks' might be experienced at any time between the ages of 20 and 30 that the citizen should elect. He would be permitted to space them over the period of ten years, or he might take them one after another in a period of ten days.

"Moderate drinkers who had drunk steadily for years without ever becoming intoxicated would become disgusted by these compulsory debauches and avoid becoming dipsomaniacs.

"Constitutional teetotalers might, some of them, become moderate drinkers; and all of them might be prevented from railing at drinkers by the fact that they had been drunk themselves.

"I would have all liquor controlled by the government, and it would be free to everybody.

"Persons who showed that they were habitual drunkards would be not merely allowed but absolutely COMPELLED to drink themselves to death.

"A man who had been convicted of dipsomania would be given three years in which to kill himself with liquor. If he had not killed himself with liquor in that time he would be killed in some other manner for the good of the state.

"People in general are too self-conscious about liquor today, sir, both the abstainers and the drinkers.

Sir: Well I told you how the ainshunt Egypshuns was want to show a skeleton at there feests as a warning that tempus fugit and they also used to drink out of skulls they would saw off the top and plug up the holes where the eyes and ears was and a place at the bottom where the spinal chord went into it so the likker would not spill out onto there tunics and go to it. Some of the boys instead of drinking out of the skull that a way would take off the top just above the eyes and use it like you would when you drink your coffee out of your sauser.

One of the earliest discoveries in medicine was the cure for the itch. Itch was very common among the ainshunts on account of the costumes they wore and not having no place to take a bath except maybe a brook or river and sometimes some of them was quite a piece away from where thy lived. Well when these ainshunts got dressed up in there armours on a hot day there was only one thing that could happen and it was the itch and it lasted seven years and was called the seven years itch and was one of the seven wonders of the world and they tried every thing for it lotions, yarbs, ointments and everything but it did not do no good and sometimes these heer ainshunts would get so wild with the itching they would tare off there armour and squirm around in the grass and like as not some Aunt Hecklebury would come along about that time and they would leep into a hedge or something and probably get poison ivy onto them which is a bad thing to have onto you along with the seven year itch and no way to scratch yourself with a armour on.

Well the King issued a proclamation and it said whereas the itch is causing much unrest among my faithful people I will give a thousand dollars in Egypshun money and the hand of my dotter in holy wedlock to who discovers a cure for the itch and all the doctors got busy but the one who one the prize was a young feller named Lamar who invented the hair brush and he was gave a thousand pounds in Egypshun money and the hand of the dotter in holy wedlock for finding a cure for the itch.

Another grate discovery in medicine was made by Doctor Galileo who was born in Pisa besides being a grate doctor he was a fine musician being a expert on the slide trombone there is a mith that he blew so hard onto it one day he near blew down the tower of Pisa and it was called the leening tower of Pisa, but this is only a mith that he near blew down the tower of Pisa. He discovered the thermometer, the microscope and the rotary motion of the earth. Later in life he took a special postgraduate course in The Pisa Keeley Institute and discovered a new kind of pink elefant.

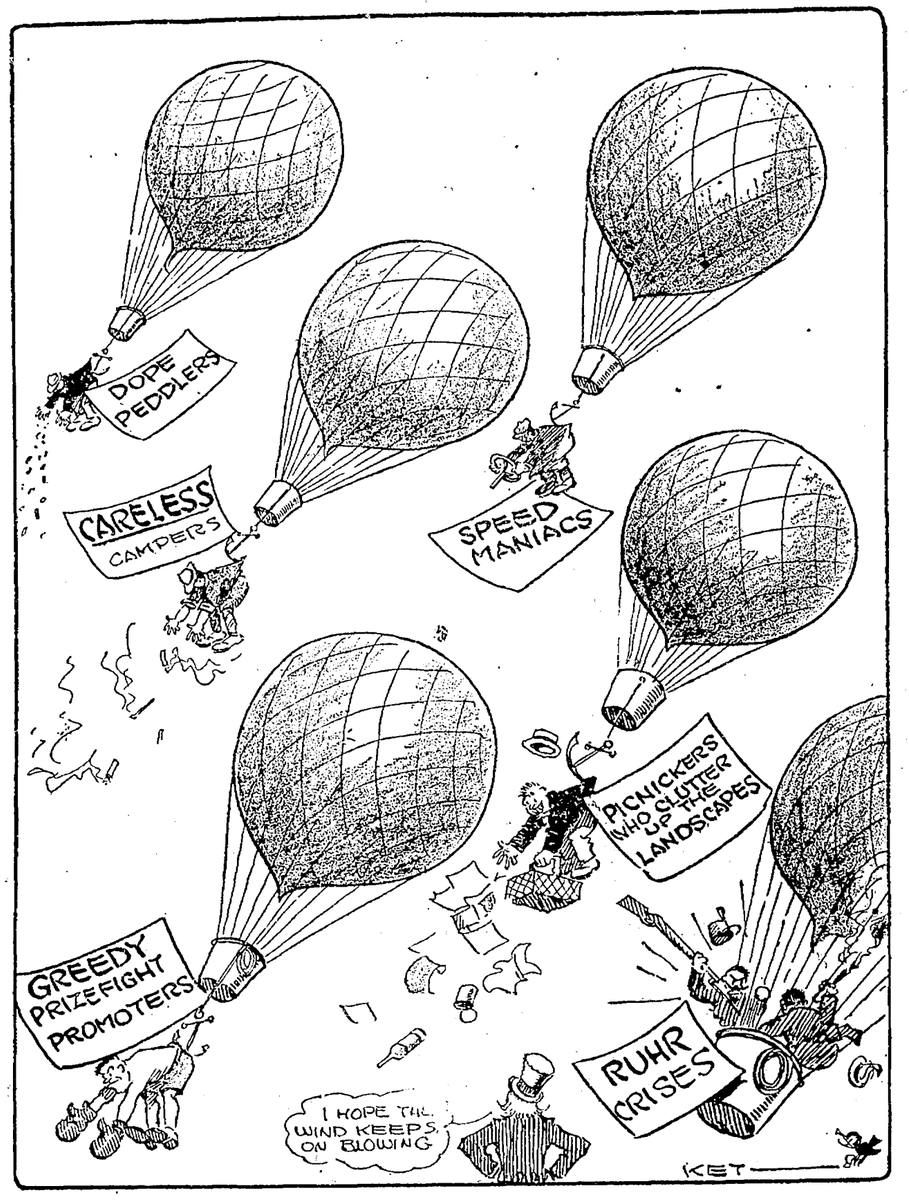

With regards to Mr. Hawley, Al and all the boys and girls down to Bayclift I. I. I am yours and etc.
DRYDOCK ROBERT W. ROGERS.

NOT SELFISH.

Why do not those who criticize America for its subordination of duty to selfish interest in its foreign policies scan the records of its charities and relief work? America has never yet refused to respond to calls from stricken humanity. The Chinese victims of drought of a few seasons back, the Near East sufferers, the famine-ridden people of Russia—all have felt the relief extended by the people of the United States. In view of the invariable generosity that America has shown, whenever need for aid has appeared the charge of selfishness falls flat.—Washington Post.

When Ganna Walska sang in Paris the audience hissed, whistled and laughed. Somehow those French don't care anything for social position in opera. What they want is singing.—Kansas City Times.

EXCERPTS from the NATIONAL PRESS

Philadelphia Ledger: Mozart's flute, which he played on as a child, has been stolen from a museum in Brussels. No wonder this instrument was venerated, even as Beethoven's piano or Paganini's violin is treasured. It was indeed a 'Magic Flute.' Mozart was enamored of 'the instrument of kings.' For it he wrote two quartets with strings and four concertos, as well as a concerto for flute and harp. Through his operas and symphonies the gentle, eloquent instrument pursues its way with unfailing charm and a constant fresh revelation of the composer's appreciation of its nature.

Medford Mail-Tribune: "Prospective candidates for the US seed-sending honors from this state in 1924, will all deliver 4th of July orations, but there are not enough Oregon towns holding celebrations to give all who aim to run a chance to exercise their lungs and larynx before the assembled patriotic multitudes. Therefore, it has been suggested that the 234,567 voters address the 654,320 candidates, as a compromise."

Chicago News: "President Harding is making his own platform as he goes along, so that when the convention meets next year it will find the planks all numbered and ready for its committee to assemble. We wait with interest to see whether the delegates will condescend to erect a portable platform, or will reject it on the ground that Mr. Harding is not a member of the platform-makers' union."

New York World: "An airplane passenger service between New York and Newport is begun. There has been a little air-commuting between New York and Atlantic City. A few sportsmen operate planes of their own. But in general it remains true that the Nation that led in the invention of the heavier-than-air flying machine is strangely backward in putting it to general use."

Portland Oregonian: "A writer in the London Sphere who refuses to turn on the tear spout because certain so-called 'literary treasures' are being purchased by Americans expresses a thought that must have occurred to many who wonder what value a treasure can have when it is persistently concealed from sight and withheld from use. The collection of rare manuscripts recently bought by a wealthy American and which will be placed in a library on the Pacific Coast, where all accredited research workers may have access to it, will have vastly increased in value."

Stockton Record: "That was rather a fine tribute paid California's highways by the man with his wife from Kansas who cheerfully admitted in court at Delano that he had raced along the southern end of the valley at a rate of sixty-one miles an hour and as cheerfully paid a $50 fine because, as he said, 'we never saw a road like that before and we couldn't resist the temptation.'"

Palo Alto Times: "Not one of Stanford's athletic hopes for the coming year fell under the 'faculty ax' at the end of the spring quarter. Since it is not to be supposed that the university's strict scholarship demands, before which many of the bravest fell last December, were suddenly reduced, there is only one conclusion to be drawn—that Stanford's athletes can use their heads in the classroom as well as on the football field if the situation demands it."

SPIRIT of the STATE PRESS

The Byron Times is celebrating its eighteenth birthday by putting up a handsome, modern building which is doing very well for a young creature that, as the editor explains, as an infant was not expected to live six months. It was outsiders and not Harry Hammond who expected to see the little weekly die. He was even then an optimist, almost a disciple of Coue.—Stockton Record.

Why do gasoline and food products remain high when there's such great overproduction of oil and such abundant farm products? asks an exchange. The man who can answer that question will be hailed as the greatest of us all, and no name will stand higher in the hall of fame than his. — Merced Star.

The people of California join with the University of California in extending their felicitations to Dr. William Wallace Campbell upon his assuming the presidency of the university. Dr. Campbell is one of the world's distinguished astronomers. He has won high place in his profession and his being called to become the executive head of one of the greatest universities in the world is entirely fitting and becoming him.—Fresno Republican.

It would appear there will be no excuse accepted from people found with young fawns which they have picked up in the woods. Game wardens saw after the baby deer is picked up in the woods it will follow you, and even though you drive it away, the mother frequently will have nothing more to do with it. People may be cruel to baby animals even when they think they are kind. Although the fawn may seem lost, it is safer when left alone than when it is handled.—Ukiah Republican.

While the growth of the cities of California is spectacular, those who see beneath the surface of things realize that the annual increase in assessed values is due to factors that are operating in the country districts all the way from the Mexican to the Oregon lines, the cities simply responding to country development.—Sacramento Union.

The Marysville bird colony on Ellis lake was further augmented yesterday by the gift of seven mallard ducks from C. E. Hunt of Browns Valley. The feathered flock now numbers sixteen ducks, four swans, two pelicans, twelve cormorants, a dozen geese, a number of herons.—Marysville Appeal.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE PASSING OF A TREE.

A gang of men attacks its crest
Where once the robin built its nest,
And those great priestly arms which blest
Now fall and lie beside the road
To make a common truckman's load.

For years that friendly tree has stood
The glory of the neighborhood,
And it has heard the traffic's roar
And seen its brother trees go down
Before the builders of the town.
Surely that fine old elm has known
It must make room for steel and stone!

Its leafy arms in sorrow sunk,
Its roots, which long have loved the earth,
Are marked by grim destruction's girth.
The builders wait. Nearby is seen
Ready to chew great holes where stood
A friendly tree, so brave, so good.

What towers of beauty shall arise
Perhaps a temple shall be reared
Where God is loved and God is feared,
But nothing man can build shall be

ALASKA LARGE ENOUGH TO HAVE LOTS OF WEATHER.

To the Editor of the Tribune:

I note with interest your correspondence by Lawrence Martin on Alaskan weather in connection with President Harding's trip. The writer has made twenty-two trips to and from Alaska during the past twenty-five years, but has never crossed the Dixon entrance (the open sea between Prince Rupert and Ketchikan) without having rain. When it is taken in consideration that Ketchikan is known to have actually 356 rainy days in a year, you will doubtless know it is as Admiral Rodman advocates, always safe to take raincoats and rubbers along when one is going on a trip to Alaska, regardless of season. Alaska, having the extent of the whole United States, is subject to all the weathers of the United States. While some sections are as dry and more so than most of the inhabited sections of the United States, there are others that are as wet as Cape Flattery or Florida at the same time. Don't judge Alaskan weather just by what it may be in San Francisco, but what you may encounter in traveling through the whole United States at any season of the year.

PERSONAL HEALTH SERVICE

SLACKER FLESH, EH?

A fairly constant reader writes: "It is a long time since I first wrote to you, but time does not lessen the sense of gratitude I have for your advice . . . opened my eyes to conditions . . . with his knife he gave me the fourteen years I have lived since then; no doubt of it. I have lived to see my children's children and that is the fulfillment of heart's desire. I weigh 194; only 67½ inches tall—slacker flesh? Well, maybe, but with a big house, no outside help, four at home, sewing for my grandchildren, church, guild, fellowship dinners for 100 every month, club, county federation committee work, political work—where do they get that idea of slacker flesh?"

"Oh, I know who the coyotes are that sit on the hilltops and howl their woes to high heaven. They are mothers of families, wives of men, who have done their full duty by home and church and state, and their paws ache, and their stomachs are gl'n out and their hair has turned gray and their days are long and their children, instead of being head of the pack as they had hoped and planned, are just good average coyotes, and they don't know a word about Dr. Brady and can't write—so they howl! Aren't you glad some one takes it out in howling?"

You see, she's a westerner, a California woman, and no doubt the climate tells on one in time. I decline to answer about the coyotes on the hilltops, because when I answer such things frankly, I am sarcastic, and when I try to be sarcastic, I am so very frank. All I'm going to answer is the woman's unfortunate allusion to slacker flesh. She betrays a double barreled misunderstanding there, which must be corrected at all costs.

In the first place, all those pastimes or diversions the lady enumerates, are not work. Politics work? Politics is working the other fellow. Club work? Church work? Well, maybe church is kinda hard work sometimes. But the women of the west are not dying rapidly from overwork any more than the women of the east are. It isn't work, but business, all this hustle and bustle our correspondent describes. Just busy-ness.

In the next place, slacker flesh is surplus or superfluous fatty tissue, which serves no useful purpose in the economy (since the human species does not hibernate (and must be nourished and kept warm at the expense of the economy. That is why it is slacker flesh. Its presence in, or should we say upon the economy (envisaging the economy as a corporation), by no means proves that the person responsible for the economy is a slacker or anything of the kind; it proves merely that the culprit has acquired the habit of eating considerably more than he or she can conveniently burn up; this is so whether the economist is physically active and energetic or as lazy as a white dog.

Anybody who totes around a handicap of, say thirty to fifty pounds of absolutely parasitic slacker flesh for a few years, necessarily places a heavy strain on the arteries, the circulation, the heart, the kidneys and everything, feeding and nourishing and caring for that mountain of utter uselessness. That's where they get that idea of slacker flesh, and it's an exceedingly wholesome, healthful idea, too, for it makes many a poor overnourished economist vow to stop carrying the wasteful burden now, when a comma will serve, instead of waiting for the full stop.

SIMPLY AN AMERICAN.

"Just one of the fellows around here looking after things." was President Harding's reply to an American girl's query as to his identity. There is an impressive instance of American democracy. The man in the White House is the head of one of earth's greatest nations, but he bears himself with simplicity. In direct contact with Americans, he is one of them. He does not hold himself pedestaled above the crowd. It is not surprising, after all, that a visitor in a crowd should have failed to recognize Mr. Harding. His unaffected bearing did not lead her to suspect that he was the holder of such an exalted place. And his kindly nature caused him to spare her embarrassment instead of hastening to enlighten her.—Washington Post.

PRESIDENT TO FOLLOW PLATFORM

Budget of $300,000 for the Next Year Is Reported; St. Paul Favored for 1924 Convention City

By E. VAN LIER RIBBINK.

The sixty-first annual convention of the National Education Association and the World Conference on Education have passed into history. Officials and delegates are as one in the declaration that Oakland has established a standard as a Convention City which is unique in the annals of the N. E. A. and which other cities will find it difficult to live up to.

Delegates began to depart for their homes yesterday afternoon and last night, but the majority of those who attended the great convention are still in this city and in San Francisco. They will stay over the week-end, and are engaged in making automobile tours of the scenic wonders of the bay region.

POLICIES ANNOUNCED.

Miss Olive M. Jones, newly elected president of the N. E. A., will remain several days before returning to New York. The new president today announced her policies as follows

"As the chosen executive of the National Education Association I consider that my policy will consist in carrying out the program outlined by the Representative Assembly of the association. My platform, therefore, will be that of the association at large, and not of merely an individual.

"The National Education Association is a unified force. There are no groups, ranks, classes or sexes in the N. E. A."

ST. PAUL FAVORED.

The last number on the program of the convention yesterday afternoon was the meeting of the Board of Trustees, presided over by the new president.

Discussion of the next convention city developed the fact that there is a strong sentiment for St. Paul, Minn., for 1924, and for Seattle in 1925. Miss Agnes Doherty, member of the Board of Trustees, presented the claims of St. Paul. The meeting decided to leave the choice of the 1924 convention city to the executive committee.

That the budget of the Association for the ensuing year will amount to $300,000 was announced to the meeting by Walter R. Siders, chairman of the Board of Trustees. This is a $50,000 increase over last year's budget, but additional receipts totaling $80,000 are expected during the year, Siders said. It was explained that the increase in the association's expenditures is largely called for through the proposed establishment of a Research Department, under direction of John K. Norton, a former school principal of Oakland. Siders declared that the scope of the association's activities makes the creation of a research department, working on a large scale, imperative.

FINEGAN IS TRUSTEE.

Dr. Thomas E. Finegan, former commissioner of education of the State of Pennsylvania, who recently resigned owing to a difference of opinion on educational issues with Gifford Pinchot, governor of Pennsylvania, was elected a member of the Board of Trustees, to succeed Miss Olive Jones who, as president, becomes an ex-officio member of the board. Miss Cora Wilson Stewart, noted for her work on the illiteracy question, becomes a member of the executive committee for one year.

The N. E. A. directors yesterday formally approved a program to finance, in part, delegates to future conventions. The sum of $10,000 was set apart for this purpose.

CITIES SET MARK.

The following statement, dealing with the "smooth running of the convention," was issued yesterday by Harold A. Allen, business manager of the convention:

"In matters of arrangement for the meetings of the National Education Association, Oakland and San Francisco have set a standard which will make it difficult for other cities to reach. Every activity has been completely and enthusiastically carried on through the local committees and organizations. The result has been a set-up in the way of smooth running, well oiled machinery which reached high speed before the convention opened and did not slacken for an hour during the entire period.

"A high mark especially was set in the matter of hospitality. The teacher from Kansas or from Maine lacked no opportunity to get acquainted with the beauties of the bay region and to feel first hand the generous hospitality of the people. From time of arrival until departure, every member of the association has felt that he is the guest of the bay cities.

"Too much cannot be said of the support given by the press. Every detail of the convention has been covered adequately. The newspaper boys have shown such personal interest that they have become qualified for membership in the ranks of school workers.

"In business matters, the hotels, merchants, transportation companies, banks and others have cooperated so completely that all problems of business management have been eliminated. It has been a pleasure and a privilege to be associated with the local people who are responsible for the success of the greatest convention that the National Education Association has had."

Elevator Boy Acts as 'Envoy' For Costa Rica

A COSTA RICAN elevator operator at the Fairmont Hotel had been conveying delegates from more than fifty nations to the suite of Dr. Augustus O. Thomas, chairman of the foreign relations committee, during the conference, and noted that there was no delegate from his own country.

He made a special request for full data on the conference, to send back to Costa Rica to give his country the benefit of the deliberations.

HOTEL OWNER SUES LESSEE

Harry Brown is defendant in a suit for damages and restitution of the premises known as the Newark Hotel at Newark, filed yesterday in the superior court.

Antone J. Silva, the plaintiff, declares in the suit that he is the owner of the hotel and that he leased it to Brown with the understanding that no intoxicating liquors should be sold there. He cites a raid by federal agents, in which liquor was found on the premises, and alleges that this is a breach of contract.

The suit fixes $500 as damages and $375 rent due and asks the court to treble these amounts.

Roland Olivers To Seek Diamonds In British Guiana

The call to distant lands has proved irresistible in the case of Mrs. Roland B. Oliver, U. C. graduate and Alameda society favorite. In company with her husband, an engineer of international reputation, she will go to British Guiana to explore the diamond fields.

The Olivers have been guests in the home of Wynn Meredith, 1004 Union street. Oliver has left Alameda for New York, from which port he and Mrs. Oliver contemplate sailing in a short time. Oliver is taking the trip in an effort to discover where the natives procure the large diamonds they have been bring to the coast of British Guiana.

LEASE RETURN OR $300,000 ASKED

Restitution of a lease on property at Nineteenth street and Broadway, or in lieu of this damages of $300,000 are asked in a suit on file in the Superior Court today on behalf of P. B. Cross against E. N. Tapscott and Lena M. Tapscott.

The action goes into minute detail concerning the financial transactions among the three principals which amount to many thousands of dollars.

Cross alleges that Tapscott went on a $60,000 bond for him for an appeal in the United States district court and that he and Mrs. Tapscott loaned Cross certain moneys. He signed over his interest in the lease as security, he says. Later he released Tapscott from the bond and proffered payment of the moneys owed, but the Tapscotts refuse to re-assign the lease in question, he alleges.

Byron Aids Fund For Child Outing

BYRON, July 7.—Byron is assisting the effort made by Contra Costa county residents to give fifty undernourished children a month's outing in Mitchell Canyon. The camp opens next Monday. C. A. Withington, Boy Scout leader of the county, is chairman of the committee arranging the outing. A move of this kind is the most worthy that citizens could undertake, in that poorly nourished, tubercular children may be given opportunity to recover their health in the pure air and recreation that abounds in the mountain camp. So far $25 has been subscribed by Byron toward the $1000 fund to be raised in the county. Contributors here are: : Volney Taylor $10, Byron Times $10, Byron Bank $5. Other donations are expected, and Pastor Green will send in blankets and other things that may be given.

SAN LEANDRO, July 7.—Over 4000 people filled the city plaza and the surrounding streets last night to hear the first of a series of concerts to be given under the joint auspices of the city and the Chamber of Commerce.

The Program was arranged by Band Director Professor J. Musso. The next concert will be held Friday evening.

LAKE MERRITT DREDGE GIVEN 2-MONTH REST

A two-month layoff is announced for the little municipal dredge in Lake Merritt, and the crew has been transferred to other sectors for the present, according to Admiral Tom Aitken, ranking officer of the city's navy. The dredge was nailed down to its present position in the middle of the lake, the machinery was oiled and repaired, and then the order to abandon ship was carried out.

The delay, according to the officials, is caused by the desire for the land behind the auditorium, from Third to Seventh street, to settle and dry. This new land has been made from dredgings out of the lake until there is no more room for further stuff. The soupy territory must dry off and settle before more land can be pumped on top of it.

Two months more of dredging, according to the officials, will complete the entire Lake Merritt job.

Grass Fire Sweeps Lots in Broadmoor

SAN LEANDRO, July 7.—A grass fire, which swept several lots in the Broadmoor tract, called the volunteer fire department out early this morning. It is believed that a cigarette stub thrown in the weeds at the corner of Dutton avenue and Merle Court was the cause. Due to a light wind the flames spread rapidly and it was nearly two hours before the fire was extinguished.

"SHU-YANG" SAY CHINESE DELEGATES

Oriental Visitors Advise Americans "To Cultivate a Detached Spirit," Avoid Emotional Disturbance

By GEORGIA G. BORDWELL.

"Shu-Yang" is the message from China, delivered to their new acquaintances in America through the delegates to the World Conference on Education. The words mean "to cultivate a detached spirit."

China's delegation is comprised of eight from the Orient itself and five already living in the United States. All of them are men and women of distinction and achievement, and all so young in appearance that it does not seem possible that they can have accomplished so much work.

Americans, they said, have not learned to keep their inner peace undisturbed by material things or by environment. Years of philosophical living and thinking has given them the power to subdue the emotions—not that they feel less—but that they realize that emotions must not be allowed to disturb the serenity of the inner mind.

LEARN AND TEACH.

They are learning from America, too, say these educators from China. Monroe Tang has come to the United States for a two years survey and study of the administration of the school system. He admires the practicality of Americans. China is awakening, he says. It knows that it must open its mines and develop its forests, and young China is looking to America for the best methods.

M. Kobayashi, of Tokyo, Japan, said this morning that the naughty boys in school were usually the ones who forged ahead in after life. That he thought educators did not give that fact sufficient consideration.

FAULT IS SEEN.

Another point that the Japanese teacher makes is that in the growing tendency to carry education to every one, the fact has been overlooked that some of the best of the so-called educated people in the world are the most eminent criminals thereof. He believes that that new education which is the ideal of the World Conference, which includes the education of health, character, international relations will fundamentally change human nature when the principles are applied the world round.

Dr. Augustus O. Thomas, state commissioner of education, Augusta, Maine; is the man who is responsible for the world conference. He said today that it would not accomplish everything that it had set out to do. But one thing it will do and that is to be the means of providing better material for text books, which will give better understanding of higher ideals of national neighbors.

Tribune Wins Praise for Handling of Convention

Editor OAKLAND TRIBUNE,

Dear Sir: We are glad to express to you appreciation of the effective way in which The TRIBUNE has reported the Association's meetings which have brought some eighteen thousand educators to the Bay region. Reporters and photographers have been genuinely efficient and courteous in spite of the difficulties of reporting a convention with many activties going on at one time.

The officers and members of the Association value most highly The TRIBUNE'S support of educational policies which are essential to the continued growth and effectiveness of American education. You have helped the Bay region to make a record for educational publicity that has not been excelled in the association's experience, and that will be long remembered by the thousands of educators who have enjoyed the remarkable hospitality of the Bay region.

Very sincerely,
JOY ELMER MORGAN,
Director of Publicity and Managing Editor of the Journal of the National Education Association.

Dr. Thomas Named Head Of Federation of World

By JACK BURROUGHS.

Formation of the World Federation of Education Associations stands out as one of the most important single achievements of the World Conference on Education, held in San Francisco under the auspices of the National Education Association. International cooperation and greater understanding among the peoples of the earth is the ideal set by this newly formed body, the nucleus of which met late yesterday at the Fairmont Hotel in the suite occupied by Dr. Augustus Thomas, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the World Conference on Education and newly elected president of the World Federation of Education Associations.

The other officers of the federation are: Dr. C. H. Williams of the University of Missouri, secretary; Dr. P. W. Kuo of China, vice-president for Asia; Dr. E. J. Salisbury of England, vice-president for Europe. Directors: Dr. N. D. Showalter, president of the State Normal School, Cheney, Washington, and Harry Charlesworth of Canada, for the Americas; Dr. George C. Primaks of Scotland and Dr. R. Kavadas of Greece, for Europe; Dr. M. Sawayanaga, president of the Japanese Imperial Education Association, and R. V. Gogate of India, for Asia.

N. E. A. FIRST ON ROLL.

The first order of business at the meeting of the officers and directors was to accept the application of the National Education Association to join the federation, giving that body the honor of being the first organization to enter the world group.

Arrangements also were made for regional meetings of the world federation which are to be held next year.

In reviewing the conference last night, Dr. Thomas, who arranged the agenda for the group discussions, stated that the mere opportunity afforded educators from all over the world to get acquainted and exchange ideas would in itself have a far reaching effect on the educational development of the future.

The program of the conference was divided into eight groups, which discussed the following main topics before passing them up to the plenary sessions: International co-operational dissemination of education information; conduct between nations; international ideals, health education, universal education, rural life conservation and the special programs of the Pan-Pacific countries as dealt with by the Pan-Pacific Union.

BOOK DISTRIBUTION.

Under "Dissemination of Education Information," which group was headed by Mrs. Josephine Corliss Preston, state superintendent of public instruction, Olympia, Washington, came the following issues: Exchange of educational periodicals and articles, universal library service and exchange of teachers and professors.

Dr. Arthur W. Dunn, director of the American Junior Red Cross, Washington, D. C., was chairman of the group on Conduct Between Nations. This group dealt with the questions of textbook materials, world civics and ethics, and the promotion of correspondence among school children by the Junior Red Cross.

Character education and world peace were among the outstanding issues dealt with under the head of International Ideals. Dr. Milton Bennion, dean of the school of education, University of Utah, headed this group.

The health education program was handled by a group headed by Dr. Thomas D. Wood, advisor in health education and professor of physical education, Teachers' College, Columbia University, New York City.

N. E. A. JOINS WORLD-WIDE FEDERATION

Tacit Approval Is Given World Court in Report Criticizing Isolation of America Since the War

By O. E. JONES.

That Truth is fundamental and international and therefore certain principles of education can be applied to all nations, was the basis of a report made by Dr. A. O. Thomas, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, to the convention of the National Education Association at its closing session.

The report included the recommendation that the N. E. A. become a member of the World Federation of Education Associations, formed at the world conference on education in San Francisco. This recommendation was put to a vote by President William B. Owen and it was unanimously carried.

This means that the N. E. A. has joined in an international educational body for the promotion of education throughout the world.

After a hard fight on an issue which he declared affected the future stability of the N. E. A., Fred M. Hunter, Oakland superintendent of schools and past president of the association, made a motion to have the membership each year change from July 1 to June 30, to from September 1 to August 30, which would make the school, magazine and membership years the same.

In explaining the resolution Hunter said that confusion regarding dues and terms of membership had prevented many from joining the association. Several delegates arose to verify this statement and the motion was finally carried after considerable opposition.

The spokesman for the Ohio delegation then proposed the most radical departure in the organization with a motion that the officers and directors of the association be nominated by the assembly itself instead of by a 'nominating committee. The measure was intended to make the organization "thoroughly democratic," the spokesman said.

Stock Market Oversold and Prices Grow Firmer

BUSINESS and FINANCE

By H. S. SCOTT.

Today's session of the New York stock market saw the first decent rally the market had enjoyed for many weeks and the shorts now realize that they overstepped the market in many issues, says the Wall Street Journal.

Short stop orders were met and there was not a lot of stock to satisfy the bears.

Those who sold Canadian Pacific short, assuming that the increase in the Bank of England rate was bearish and that this was the best sale, regretted their action, selling at 147¼ on comparatively buying, up 5⅝ on Friday's low.

At the close the market became more active. Advances ranged from 1 to 3 points in some of the active issues. Baltimore and Ohio, which had been purchased by some leading houses on the break, sold at 46½ and Allied Chemical and Dyeing selling at 67⅝, up 1⅝ from the close, did not reflect any worry about the outcome of the Steel and Tube litigation on the part of the former shareholders.

The scanty supply of numerous shares desired by short interest for covering interests resulting in some brisk gains and confirmed impressions that such sections of the market had been temporarily oversold practically all of the active issues registered material gains with Dupont rising 3¾, Canadian Pacific 3½, General Electric 3⅝, Mack Truck 3, and Famous Players, Chandler Motors and a number of others 1 to 2½ points. Delaware and Hudson rallied to 96 from 93 in the last half hour. The closing was strong. Sales approximated 275,000 shares.

Early trading in bonds today was quiet and irregular, with the major activity on the upward side. Except for gains of approximately one point each by Chinese 5s and Haitian 6s, changes in the foreign group were fractional. United States government bonds advanced slightly. New Haven 6s rallied 1⅛ above yesterday's close but the 7s and converticle 3½s each slipped back another point. Denver and Rio Grande refunding 5s and Atchison adjustment 4s stamped each advanced a point. Brooklyn Rapid Transit issues were heavy. The only important change in the industrial group was a point gain by Cerro de Pasco 8s.

PRICES MUST BE RECKONED AS FACTOR IN PROSPERITY.

Prices must be reckoned with as a factor in prosperity, says the Mechanics and Metals National Bank of New York. On an average they are now 12 per cent above a year ago. Mounting wages in a number of industries have provided certain classes with an enlarged buying capacity that keeps abreast of prices, but the hardships involved among those classes whose income is limited make it increasingly difficult for them to satisfy their needs and to contribute the measure of their buying to the general prosperity. Whatever rise in prices has occurred lately has been accompanied by increased stinting on the part of those whose income did not expand as prices rose. This may be expected to go on if prices rise further, although it does not necessarily follow that a buyers' strike like that of 1920 is impending. So long as the conviction obtains that general prices are to rise people will go on buying as far as they are able; it is when prices turn downward, and the prospect presents itself of getting things cheaper by waiting, that people all together stop buying.

However, if prices move upward much further from their present level, it is certain that many economies will have to be practiced, and people will more and more do without the things they want.

BUSINESS BOOMS BEYOND ITS PEAK, IS CONTENTION.

D. A. Sargent and Company, in their business review for June, just issued, insist that there is good evidence that "the business boom has passed its peak, both as to the volume of production and as to the level of prices, has been presented from many sides of the industrial structure.

"That there has been a considerable cancellation of orders with an attendant restriction of production is now apparent; the U. S. Steel Corporation alone announced that they lost 115,000 tons in forward orders through cancellations. The indications of the business reaction that have set in—while not of a nature to cause vital concern—are of enough importance to afford a genuine warning against undue expansion, it being advisable to avoid heavy ordering of any nature and to maintain a considerable cash reserve until developments shape themselves favorable toward an aggressive constructive policy."

* * *

GOOD SECURITIES CHEAP AT PRESENT QUOTATIONS.

Whatever may have been the causes of the downward movement in stocks, there can be little doubt that many of the principal securities now being traded in are low in price, if not actual bargains, to put away until the market recovers its equilibrium declares the New York banking house of Henry Clews & Co. This might not be true if the dividend situation were not as good as it is. Reports from practically all industries unite in revealing an improved earnings outlook, with every reason to expect maintenance of dividends or advances in them. There is a general consensus of opinion that business conditions are thoroughly sound and that such check as has been given to commodity prices has been of a nature to stabilize and confirm values rather than to impair them. Active summer and autumn business with good crop yields, such as are now promised, must eventually put stocks back to quotations which will more truly represent their real value.

An excellent agricultural outlook seems to be revealed as reliable reports concerning crop conditions and harvesting come to hand. The yield will probably not be a record-breaking one, but it will be very satisfactory judging from present prospects, and most of the principal crops seem likely to bring good prices. This should insure a continuation of the large traffic over the railroads, which is already up to high point for the reason. It also seems to indicte sustained buying power in the farming districts, due to the continuous ability of the population there to absorb staple necessities and pay for them. Such a prospect is further confirmed by the very conservative banking situation which is revealed in current returns. Not only has there been no great increase in the demand for loans at banks, but available figures show that even the usual seasonal growth is only about sufficient to maintain the total of outstanding credit at a normal figure. The country banks are probably in better condition than they have been for a long time, being less "tied up" and more liquid than for a year or two past. This condition of affairs points to relatively easy money conditions after proportion for the heavy July 1 corporate disbursements have been completed and funds paid out for such purpose are returned to the banks.

Oil Drilling Held Up By Accident

WOODLAND, July 7.—The loss of a tool necessitated the tearing out of 2300 feet of seven inch casing in the oil well recently sunk near Capay, this county, by the Lincoln-Esparto Oil Company. Some few weeks ago southern capitalists entered this field and took over the well. This first difficulty was encountered, causing an initial cost of $1100.

Books of Three Brokers Seized

CHICAGO, July 6.—The books and records of three brokerage houses were seized by detectives and taken to the state's attorney's office for investigation in connection with the investigation of the states attorney and the grand jury into the bucket-shop practice of some brokerage firms here. The firms whose books were taken were L. Slater and Company, Frank Lewis and Company and W. R. Bradley and Company.

Labor Troubles Delay Building

PITTSBURGH, July 6.—Work on the large buildings under construction are far behind schedules in this district. This is due largely to recent labor conditions. Strikes and wage contraversies of various descriptions running from granite quarries to building crafts, have put one of the largest buildings about six months behind. Present building operations are on a broad scale, although plans for the future are not extensive.

STEEL

PITTSBURGS, Pa., July 7.—Small lots of Bessemer pig iron have sold at $27.50 Valley, a drop of $1. While basis today is quoted at $27, attractive orders probably could be placed at $26. Sales for prompt shipment are reported at $27. Bars are quotable at 2.40 cents and shapes and plates at 2.50 cents. Hoops, bands and hot rolled strips are quoted at 2.40 cents.

STOCK MARKET BELIEVED NEAR FIRMER PRICES

While No Substantial Jumps Are in Sight Expert Says Worst Is Over.

By ALLEN L. WETMORE, of Wm. Cavalier & Co.

Although the trend has been downward and some new lows have been recorded, fluctuations in the stock market this week have been confined to narrower limits. At this writing, however, the market is showing considerably more resistence to professional pressure, with indications pointing to a rally which may or may not assume noticeable proportions.

For the time being, we do not look for a substantial upward movement but believe the market is headed for higher ground, which will be reached by a series of fluctuations which may even carry prices temporarily below their recent lows.

From a technical standpoint alone we would certainly appear to be in a "Bear Market" and many are now making dire predictions by drawing comparisons to 1920. We believe, however, that such comparisons neglect the most important market factors and should not be taken too seriously. It is impossible to accurately analyze market conditions without considering the economic fundamentals, and after giving due consideration to money and credit conditions, as well as conditions existing in the many branches of industry, we remain optimistic over the future and continue to believe, as stated in our previous letter, that now is a time to accumulate good stocks rather than to sell them.

RAILWAY EARNINGS.

Railroad earnings for May indicate continued prosperity for the southern roads and a few of the trunk lines, and it is the stocks of these roads that offer the best opportunities in the railroad group. Returns from forty-two class No. 1 roads and systems show net operating income for May of $58,557,771 compared with $40,159,442 in May, 1922. Based on these figures, the May net operating income for all class No. 1 roads would be $92,360,000 which, adjusted for seasonal variations of traffic, would be at the annual rate of $1,247,000,000 or 6.50 per cent on an investment of $19,175,000,000 compared with adjusted annual return for April of 6.48 per cent.

Of the dividend-paying rails we particularly like Atchison, New York Central, Illinois Central, Atlantic Coast Line, and Pere-Marquette, and Southern Pacific; and of the non-dividend payers, Southern Railway, St. Louis, San Francisco preferred, and Baltimore & Ohio. We believe that these stocks purchased on weakness will show substantial profits to investors.

The strictly investment type of industrial preferred stocks are still selling too high and although they have declined somewhat from their 1923 peak, we believe they will sell lower to bring their yield up to the proper level. Some of the common stocks of this group look particularly attractive and we believe that much higher prices will be realized by such stocks as California Packing, American Locomotive, Cuban-American Sugar, Westinghouse Electric, Industrial Alcohol, the North American Company, the Philadelphia Company, Pacific Gas common, Mack Truck, etc.

Money rates remain favorable, but will probably become firmer as the rural demand for handling fall crops increases. Brokers' loans, which reached a high of $2,000,000,000 in March, have decreased $345,000,000, the decline of fifteen to forty points in stock prices having lessened the borrowing demand. Federal Reserve ratios show a decline for the week. The New York Federal Reserve bank ratio being 79.3 against 85.1 a week ago and 80.7 a year ago. The Federal Reserve systems ratio is now 74.4 against 76.9 a week ago and 76.8 for the same period last year. For the first time in nearly a year, the Bank of England has increased their discount rate. This advance from 3 per cent to 4 per cent was necessary to adjust the existing difference in interest rate between London and New York and should have a strengthening effect on sterling exchange.

Armour to Sell Big Holdings Of Bank Stock

CHICAGO, July 7.—To liquidate his personal obligations in connection with the recent re-financing project of Armour and Company, J. Ogden Armour, chairman of the board, has sold to a syndicate of bankers "a substantial block" of his stock in the Continental and Commercial National Bank, a statement issued by the banking syndicate said. The exact amount of stock sold and which the syndicate will offer publicly to investors was not made known but recent publication of Chicago bank stockholders' lists showed Armour holding 14,109 shares of Continental Bank stock. At yesterday's market price of around $270 a share, bankers figured the value of the stock at about $3,800,000.

At the time of the re-financing of Armour and Company, Armour made a personal loan for $20,000,000 with a number of banks depositing as collateral a number of stocks including Continental Bank stocks and he now desires to liquidate his obligations, the statement of the banking syndicate said.

He is also understood to have disposed recently of holdings in other Chicago banks and to have sold his estate on the North Shore. In selling the bank stock Armour relinquished his position as the largest individual holder of Chicago bank securities. The value of his holdings had been placed at nearly $5,000,000.

Increase in Irrigated Area Likely to Develop Some New Production Problems

The question of adding to American farm land area by irrigation and increasing the output of farm products is discussed by the National Bank of Commerce in New York. In the July issue of its publication, Commerce Monthly, it states that:

"The prospects offered by irrigation of converting waste lands into prosperous farms and thereby increasing the food supply of the nation is an attractive one. Its realization, however, must always be subject to such considerations as 'What can the land produce; how much water is available' Of late the further question has been raised, 'Is it desirable to increase American output of farm products?' The United States, always a producer of agricultural products for the international market, has in recent years expanded its output to meet the enlarged requirements of Europe. For the future, the gradual restoration of European production must be reckoned with. Reclamation projects, therefore, must be developed with due consideration to the ability of the reclaimed land to compete on an economic basis with other cultivated land and to the total output of American farm products in relation to the probable demand for them."

PRESENT IRRIGATION.

Reclaimed and irrigated lands include about 19,000,000 acres and form nearly 4 per cent of the improved farm lands of the United States. Federal irrigation works supply water for only about 8 per cent of the watered area. The remainder is supplied by works in private ownership, in some cases operated under state laws.

"The years 1920-21 and 1921-22 provided a severe test of the economic stability of the irrigation works. The irrigation farmer has a heavier financial burden than others as the annual charges for operation and maintenance of the irrigation system continue whether the farm is paying or not. These are additional to the installments payable on construction charges. For the years 1920 and 1921 the situation of many of the farmers on government projects was so serious that relief acts were passed by Congress in 1921 and 1922 to enable them to continue operations. None of the accrued charges were remitted, but authorization was given to suspend the rule that water service be discontinued where payments were in arrears for more than a year."

SOURCE OF CAPITAL.

The chief source of capital for government irrigation projects is the reclamation fund, made up of receipts from the sale of public lands and leases of mineral properties. Reclaimed land is ordinarily given to the water users, but they pay for the irrigation system and for its upkeep. Payments by the entrymen flow back into the reclamation fund for repeated use until Congress orders otherwise.

Although there has been some shrinkage in the receipts from public lands, the fund is being augmented by receipts under the mineral leasing act and by the repayments by water users. A maximum of twenty years is allowed for the completion of payments by the settlers.

"A policy of immediate reclamation of every acre of arid land for which water can be produced cannot command unquestioning support. The demand for farm products depends upon domestic consumption and export trade. In so far as increase in the volume of agricultural output keeps pace with the growth of population, it is sure. But enlarged production which creates a greater surplus for export is precarious, in view of the gradual improvement of agriculture in Europe, the possible development of Siberian grain lands and the increase of agricultural production in the tropics. Temporary glut of farm products on the market has heretofore caused situations which the farming community would not be willing to repeat.

MARKET CONDITIONS.

"But whether irrigated lands produce for export or for the domestic market, the cost of production determines their success or failure. Their products must be sold at the market price. The irrigation farmer is an investor of capital. Settlers on most non-arid lands in the United States made use of the natural fertility of the soil, which needed only to be maintained. But the irrigation farmer pays repeatedly for the productivity of his land, as does the tobacco grower who uses a thousand pounds of fertilizer per acre every year. Irrigation farms must support a permanent burden of water charges and high labor costs per acre. Their surplus products, if not sold in local markets, must bear heavy transportation charges in order to reach the large centers of population.

"Where the product of irrigated lands is sufficient to earn on the larger capitalization at the average rate on non-irrigated lands, the investment is profitable. Taking into consideration the probable higher cost of successive government works, only lands of high productivity should be developed. Otherwise, the project farmer will find himself handicapped at the start in competition with the majority of producers."

CANNERS BUYING APRICOTS FROM WHOLESALE MEN

Surplus Shipment for Markets Acquired at About $30 Per Ton.

The outlook for a stronger apricot market is not encouraging. The local canners are apparently not buying from the growers direct but watching the surplus each day in the wholesale commission market. They bought choice fruit today in this manner as low as $25 a ton. The plan has certain advantages as far as the canner is concerned, however it may operate for the grower. It enables them to take fruit as they see it with freight and delivery already paid. At from $15 to $30 a ton for gold fruit along these lines the canner has what might be called a "market factor" in his favor.

The cantaloupe market was slightly stronger today. The Imperial Valley season has passed its peak and until the Turlock region gets its gait prices are likely to be firm.

Reports indicate that the Imperial region has had a successful year on the first classes of crops. Many houses at Brawley and adjacent shipping points have closed and report successful operations from the point of both production and prices. Aggregate shipments exceeded 11,000 cars and the figures of 1922 will be exceeded.

Order Slump Predicted; Market Eyes on Europe; French Plight Perilous

By STUART P. WEST.

NEW YORK, July 7. — (Consolidated Press Association.)—The only development of consequence bearing on the financial situation this past week has been the continued fall in the foreign exchanges. The declines in Sterling, it is well understood have not been due to political causes. They have been the result of the transfer of funds from London to other markets, more especially to New York—where more renumerative terms are offered. To stop this exodus the Bank of England has raised its discount, forcing up rates in the open market and thus making it no longer attractive for Americans to borrow. The expectation is that offerings of Sterling drafts to cover remittances of borrowed money will now cease, and that Sterling rates will recover.

New low records, in some cases for the year, in others for all time, have been made in continental currancies, however. The explanation is mainly political. It is an expression of what is felt in international banking circles, that the French experiment in the Ruhr was a mistake. It is also an expression of uneasiness as to what will happen if the allies part company and proceed to their own separate solution of German reparations and the interwoven problems of the war debts.

SITUATION PRECARIOUS.

If Great Britain were to withdraw her offer to France of partial remission of the war obligations in return for reduction of French claims upon Germany, and were to insist upon the whole debt being refunded and on the payments being made, it would bring French financial afairs to a crisis. Already the situation is sufficiently precarious.

French collections of German coal amount to little beside what the French budget pretends to count upon. The deficit in consequence is much larger than the action figures make it out to be.

France is doing all it can to avoid the disastrous expedient of inflating the paper money to meet this deficiency. It is attempting to bridge the gap by constant additions to the huge volume of internal loans. What would happen in such a state of things if Great Britain started to enforce its war claims is not hard to imagine. It would mean a further violent fall in the value of the franc and quite likely would lead up to a confession of France's inability to meet its foreign debts.

WALL STREET ALARMED.

At a time of unsettlement such as the New York stock market has been passing through every possibility of trouble is canvassed as being a factor in the downward movement. Increasing attention, accordingly, has been paid to the latest happenings abroad. The disagreement between Great Britain and France is admittedly serious from the point of view of the French financial position and also from the point of view of Europe's economic rehabilitation.

But it is difficult to see the ground for the apprehension, which some people in Wall Street profess, of England and France carrying their dispute to the breaking stage. If there was any great amount of alarm on this score it would have shown in one quarter more than anywhere else—the quarter most sensitive to war scares—that is, the wheat market and here during the past week there has not been the slightest ripple of excitement.

NO TRADE BOOM SEEN.

The perplexities of the European situation have no doubt been an influence in the markets here, but a comparatively minor one. The explanation for the prolonged and severe decline on the stock exchange, which was at length checked toward the close of the last week must be looked for in conditions at home. Undoubtedly Wall street and the business community outside were too optimistic in their calculations four months ago. There is not going to be the trade boom and the prize inflation that were so freely talked of at that time.

To the extent that the downward movement in the stock market represented a revision of these ideas, it was altogether logical. But, of course, the decline went far beyond the limits of a reaction of an ever enthusiastic speculative community.

BUSINESS AFFECTED.

Observers whose experiences cover the last 25 years find this one of the most difficult situations to analyze. It seems clear that the Wall street decline has had some effect on outside business, that it has made business men restrict their buying to immediate needs and that there is more of a slow down in trade than can be accounted for on the ground of the summer season.

NO OVERSTOCKING.

Still the "bear" propaganda has not succeeded in scaring merchants and manufacturers into cancelling orders or holding up specifications. So long as this has not happened there is good reason to hope that the country will not have taken the Wall Street upheaval too seriously and have regarded it as portending unfavorable developments in the business world.

In all probability, trade reports for another month or two will not furnish material for enthusiasm. They will most likely tell of their falling off in orders, of their concessions here and there in prices and some curtailment in the general volume of production. But the essential thing is that there has been no overstocking of goods and that, as it draws near autumn, there will have to be a revival of buying to replenish inventories. This buying will not asume the eagerness that it did early in the year, but it should reach proportions sufficient to bring about a satisfactory degree of activity.

TOO MANY SECURITIES.

The most reasonable explanation for what has been going on in the stock market, is that a selling movement, proceeding under its own momentum, was carried to quite as much of an extreme as the buying movements have been carried in periods of great speculative optimism.

Over-issue of new securities has been one of the contributing factors and home political uncertainties, have been another. Banking situation indicates signs that the investment appetite was satiated. They poured out a total of over $324,000,000 corporation bonds and stocks in June, which was $75,000,000 more than was offered to the public in May. For the first six months the total was nearly $2,100,000,000 against $1,732,000,000 during the same period in 1922 when available investment capital was much more abundant.

PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN.

Secondly, investors large and small have been reluctant to increase their holdings with a Presidential campaign coming on, during which there will be all manner of agitation against railroads and other corporations. It is not easily conceivable that this agitation will accomplish anything in the end, where the Supreme Court stands to assure a square deal for all property interest. Still all the preliminary fuss and all the stir over radical candidates for the Presidency are things which it is unpleasant to go through. To induce owners of money to buy more stocks under these circumstances, it has been necessary for the market to offer more than the usual attractions in the way of interest. The investment buying public has been slow to buy under these circumstances.

SHIPPERS NAME COMMITTEE TO AID CAR SUPPLY

Delinquent Loadings to Be Investigated; to Co-operate With Railways.

In conformity with a request received from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the board of directors of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce have appointed a shippers' committee to co-operate with the railroads in the matter of car-conservation for the coming rush season.

H. W. Force (chairman), president California Corrugated Culvert Co.; R. L. Busby, traffic manager, Chevrolet Motors Co., Oakland; George D. Clark, president, N. Clark & Sons, Alameda; W. P. Mullen, sales manager, Virden Packing Co., Emeryville; G. A. Babler, traffic manager, Oakland Chamber of Commerce.

This committee held a meeting with the local agents of the Southern Pacific, the Santa Fe and the Western Pacific, and arrangements have been made to take effect at once, whereby the railroad committee will report to the traffic manager of the Chamber of Commerce the names of all shippers delinquent in loading or unloading cars, and steps will be taken by this department to have such delinquencies corrected.

"All shippers are aware of the fact that commencing about August 1, especially when the perishable crops of the state of California start to move, there is usually a shortage of equipment, and we desire to impress all concerned with the necessity of loading and unloading cars with the greatest dispatch possible." says the committee.

"It is also suggested that all cars be loaded with the greatest amount of weight possible, and that all shippers co-operate with the committee, as strict attention of shipping departments will help release equipment promptly, and will help greatly in the conservation of cars."

Hay Market Is Rated Strong And Lively

Export Demand Past Week Has Tendency to Stiffen Up Quotations.

Arrivals of hay for the past week, 1570 tons, as compared with 1664 tons of the previous week, says the market review of the A. W. Scott company. The local market here has been strong and lively, as quite a portion of the receipts have been brought here for direct export to the government and private shippers. Consumers have been more liberal, and hay has moved freely, and without any necessity of sacrificing prices.

Export and coast shipments have been better than for some time. More ships have been coming in and out of the port than at any previous time, and the general activity of export has given its share to the hay trade. Coast cities continue to draw on this market.

Interior trading is better, although dealers as yet have not been willing to pay the prices asked. The general range of prices in the country for from fair to good grain hay has been from $12 to $14, with fancy grain hay selling a trifle better.

Alfalfa has been a little stronger by reason of the short tonnage of the second crop. Millfeeds are weaker and declining as the new crop grain becomes available and as mills in the northwest commence active working and look to this market as an outlet for their by-products. Future offerings are weaker. Barley and oats are unsettled, but with a firm undertone caused by the apparent feeling of the farmers that they look for little better figures. Cocoanut meal is weak and hardly moving. Alfalfa meal is stronger in sympathy with the second crop shortage.

SHOES

LYNN, Mass., July 7.—A number of shoe factories in this city which is the center of the women's shoe industry, are working at less than half capacity today. These plants are chiefly those which manufacture shoe specialties. The labor situation is quieter, however, than for some time.

ADMIRAL BOATS PLACED IN SOUTH BOUND SERVICE

Dewey and Farragut Are Placed on Extended Run. Southern Records Go.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., July 7.—The Pacific Steamship company liners Admiral Dewey and Admiral Farragut have been placed on schedule between Seattle, San Francisco and San Pedro, it was announced here. The Admiral Dewey is expected here early next week and the Admiral Farragut will follow a week later.

The increasing business at San Pedro was evidenced in reports submitted to the harbor commission today that stated 172 vessels were handled and $20,013 in revenue collected from such service last month, compared with 74 ships and revenue of $7802 for June of last year.

A total of 7,150,000 feet of lumber was unloaded here yesterday, breaking a port record for lumber receipts. Owing to the influx of lumber boats discharge facilities have been taxed to the utmost.

DRY GOODS

AUSTIN, Texas, July 7.—Retail trade in the stores here is better than at any time in three years. This is attributed to the fact that while corn has not been helped, the hot dry weather has aided cotton. Business conditions in the oil fields around Brownwood, are 100 per cent better than a year ago.

Captain Hope of Woron Missing

Word has been received here that Captain Hope of the British steamer Woron disappeared on July 3. What happened is not known but it is thought that he must have fallen overboard. He was last seen walking toward the bridge by members of the crew. The vessel, in command of Captain Hope, left San Francisco for the Orient December 1. The loss of the commander was reported upon arrival in Manila yesterday.

COAL CARGOES UNLOADED AT OAKLAND DOCKS

Steamer Sudurco Creates Interest in Harbor, During First Trip.

Discharge of cargoes of coal and general merchandise kept the Oakland harbor front humming yesterday. The main ships to send their goods ashore were the freighters Sudurco and the Chincha. The former unloaded a cargo of 2000 tons of hard coal at the King Coal bunkers in the estuary. The other boat, operating to Norton-Lilly Company, discharged an equal amount of general merchandise at the Parr Terminal in the outer harbor.

The Sudurco is the first steamer operated in the intercoastal service by the Transmarine Corporation and the big "T" on her smokestack, her designating mark, created considerable interest as she made her way past the shipping in the estuary. The steamer will shortly be followed to this port by the freighter Surailco, a sister ship. This latter craft is now at Los Angeles discharging cargo and will proceed northward as soon as this is completed. Both steamers are loading large return cargoes of Pacific Coast canned goods.

The Chincha is also making her first visit to Oakland port. She is as handsome a steamer of her type as has yet visited the city. She heads north to Puget Sound to complete loading for the east coast upon leaving here.

Town's Fire Truck Lost In Grain Fire

WOODLAND, July 7.—Knight's Landing lost its $3500 fire truck in the serious grain fire of yesterday, which swept over between 2500 and 3000 acres of standing and sacked grain four miles north of Dunnigan, this county. The truck was plunging through large grain field, where the stalks were taller than the body of the truck. A flame of fire swept over the grain and set the truck afire, completely destroying it. The driver, Don Gregory, barely escaped with his life.

The fire apparatus was insured for $2000.

The River Farms Company lost the greatest acreage in grain, probably about 1800 acres, according to estimates now made. Cliff Meyers lost the next largest amount of grain, 1000 sacks. M. T. Emmert's loss was $1000, while Byron Hughes believes that his loss will be well under $1000. The Farms company must stand a loss running into $40,000. All carried some insurance.

Alfalfa Growers To Ask $16 a Ton

BYRON, July 7.—At the present date there are more than 3000 acres of alfalfa in the Byron unit of the Alfalfa Producers' Exchange signed up to that organization. With such a large acreage, together with the thousands of acres signed up in other units of the state, with a crop below normal and an increase in the number of dairies, growers expect to obtain the $16 to $18 per ton set by the Alfalfa Producers' Exchange as the price for No. 1 and choice second cutting of alfalfa.

The Byron unit of the exchange urges all growers to unite to the end that a fair price may be realized and thus encourage the continued planting of alfalfa.

First Cantaloupes Shipped to S. F.

TURLOCK, July 7.—The first cantaloupes to be shipped from Turlock in 1923 left for San Francisco Thursday. Vignolo & White, produce and poultry dealers, shipped several crates to San Francisco. Mr. White stated that a larger consignment would leave for the same place next week. The cantaloupes were grown on a leased ranch of the firm north of town.

Cantaloupes in other fields are growing rapidly and heavy shipments are expected to begin about July 17. The first carload lot will probably leave about July 20.

Pioneer Orchardist Dies In Oakland

WOODLAND, July 7. — Henry Leslie Button, who dropped dead from heart disease yesterday morning in the Owens apartments in Oakland, was one of the pioneer orchardists and ranchers of Yolo county. Button recently left Woodland for the bay district to be close to expert medical attention. He was accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Sophronia Button, who was with him when he died.

Button was the father of Leslie and Robert Button, both large ranchers of Winters and Yolo, near Woodland; Mrs. Elizabeth Epperson of San Francisco, and Miss Alice Button of Winters.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:
I take this method of expressing my sentiments of appreciation to Dr. Wong Him for the wonderful cures he has effected in cases where several members of my family, including myself, were afflicted with various maladies.
I also desire to be the means of guiding anyone who is in need of medical advice, as he will find Dr. Wong Him to be a thoroughly reliable health specialist and absolutely conscientious. Through an occurrence experienced by a member of my family I can, with the greatest regard for sincerity, state that after a consultation, unless Dr. Wong Him is convinced that his herbs will effect a complete cure, he will under no circumstances accept the case.
Very truly yours.

DROPSY
Oakland, June 13, 1923.

I suffered from a dropsical condition in my sides and in both legs. When I pressed these places with my fingers there were deep depressions. My condition was such that I never expected to be alive at this time this year. As I could get no relief elsewhere, I tried the FONG WAN HERBS. Now, after having taken them for three months, although I am in the eighties, I am in fine condition, and I can make no dents anywhere on my body. My address can be obtained ata FONG WAN office.

The Oakland Tribune is a member of The Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, which includes leading newspapers throughout the country and has for its aim the elimination of fraudulent and misleading classified advertising. The Oakland Tribune, as well as every other member of the Association, endeavors to print only truthful Want-ads, and will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement not conforming to the highest standards of honesty.

Want Ad Section INDEX

Want Ad Classifications appear in numerical order, and all related classes are grouped together. For example: All advertising of Rooms To Let is numbered 20 to 29. The numbers appear on the headings, so if you seek room and board look through the "20s"; "Board" is No. 25, and always follows "Housekeeping Rooms (24). Note—Every "For Sale" or "To Let" heading has a "Wanted" classification with the same number, but followed by the letter "A."

MAYOR PLANNING FOR HARDINGS' VISIT TO OAKLAND

Reception Committee Named and Program Mapped Out for President.

In anticipation of the visit of President Harding and Mrs. Harding and their suite in this city July 31, Mayor John L. Davie has appointed a reception committee of thirty-four prominent men and women of the Eastbay community to officiate on that ocassion.

Commissioner Albert E. Carter has been designated chairman of the body. He will be added by members of the city council, members of the Alameda County Board of Supervisors, Mayor Frank Otis of Alameda, Mayor Frank Stringham of Berkeley, Congressman J. H. MacLafferty, Joseph R. Knowland and Judge Edward J. Tyrell.

PROGRAM ARRANGED.

Since the President will be in Oakland only an hour and a half, his schedule has been arranged to take as much advantage of the time as possible. Arriving at Fortieth street and San Pablo avenue at 9 o'clock, the President and his party will be greeted by Mayor Davie and the reception committee. A short drive through the city will be made in order to allow the President to see as much of Oakland and residents to see as much of the President as possible.

The drive will lead through the residential sections, past the Oakland Technical high school, thence to Lakeside park. Here a stop will be made to allow the President to greet school children, who will have been assembled in the park and along Grand avenue. Continuing then through the business section of the city, the trip will terminate at the Oakland automobile pier, where the presidential party will meet the San Francisco delegation.

According to a tentative schedule the presidential party, which is now in Alaska, will proceed by train from Portland to Yosemite valley, and from there will come to Oakland.

New Catholic High School Is Projected

SAN JOSE, July 7.—Sisters of Notre Dame announced here today that a new high school will be constructed immediately at the order's institute property at Second and Reed streets at a cost in excess of $50,000. At present the high school is located at the Notre Dame convent grounds. It will be removed as soon as the new building is completed. The convent property was recently sold and the convent will be moved to Belmont.

The new high school structure will be erected back of the Notre Dame Institute buildings at Third and Reed streets. Fifty orphans now occupying buildings to be torn down or removed to make way for the new school will be moved to a new home near Saratoga. It is planned to connect the institute and high school buildings with spacious arcades.

Santa Clara Young Couple Will Marry

SAN JOSE, July 7.—Charles B. Williams, son of Coroner Amos O. Williams of Santa Clara county, and Miss Lilah M. Seely, San Jose girl, obtained a marriage license here yesterday. According to the prospective bridegroom the couple are to be married next week. "Charlie's" friends, however, declare that they have an eye on him and are prepared with an ample supply of old shoes and rice in case he and his bride-to-be attempt to steal a march on them.

DECKS OF FERRY AWASH ON TRIP TO S. F. HARBOR

After weathering two storms in which the decks were constantly awash, the San Leandro, new half-million dollar ferryboat of the Key Route fleet, arrived in San Francisco bay yesterday and docked at the Key Route Oakland pier, where she will be given a final coat of paint and will be ready for transbay service in ten days.

The San Leandro made the 385-mile trip up the coast from the south under her own power. The new ferryboat was turned over to the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railways by representatives of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Drydock Corporation, who brought her up from San Pedro. The San Leandro is 98 per cent completed.

The work of tearing away the false bows and other superstructure necessary to the trip up the coast and the final coat of paint and also the final tests of the San Leandro will all have been completed within the next ten days, so that the boat can then be placed in service, according to George H. Harris, assistant general manager of the Key System.

Salvation Army Is Host to Children

SAN JOSE, July 7.—More than 100 kiddies who are orphaned or whose parents are unable to give them vacations were made happy yesterday when the local post of the Salvation Army took them to Alum Rock park, municipal resort of San Jose, for an all-day picnic and outing. The children were given free rides on the merry-go-round, a big picnic dinner, ice cream and everything else that goes to make up a kiddies' picnic. Captain R. Gifford of the Salvation Army post was in charge of the picnic.

Several similar outings will be given other groups of children at various times during the summer, Captain Gifford announced. All San Joseans knowing of children who should be taken on the picnics are asked to notify Captain Gifford at Box 424, San Jose postoffice.

Valmeni and F. Rossi, arrested with him at the River Hotel, 400 San Augustine street, appeared in court, their cases being dismissed. The River Hotel is now under abatement proceedings filed by District Attorney Clarence C. Coolidge.

WOES OF WIVES TOLD IN PLEAS TO GET DIVORCE

An objection to being placed under surveillance by their respective husbands is voiced by two wives, another objects to her husband celebrating the holidays by getting intoxicated, and a third remained away from home until late hours, while one wife is charged with disappearing with property, in divorce complaints today on file in the superior court.

Alice B. Sauerbier declares that her husband, Louis E. Sauerbier, has been attempting to force her to accept one-third of the sale price of "Southgate," 2240 Telegraph avenue, which they own, as her share, instead of the half that should be hers.

Her refusal to accede to his demand has resulted in a private detective being hired to dog her footsteps night and day, she says.

Sauerbier told his wife she had no brains, and spent much of his income on lottery tickets, the complaint charges. Mrs. Sauerbier asks for $500 attorney's fees, $50 a month alimony and $40 a month for the support of a minor child.

OTHER COMPLAINTS.

In the second case, Fred M. Bently, a carpenter, was so insanely jealous of his wife, she charges, that he hired numerous persons to spy on her movements. He frequently accused her of undue intimacy with other men, she says. His charges always being without foundation in fact.

Christmas and New Year's day were not anticipated with pleasure by Alice Crafts during her married life, for on each of these days her husband became intoxicated, she declares in a divorce complaint against Percy Crafts. Mrs. Crafts declares when he was drunk her husband treated her brutally, becoming abusive in his language and inflicting physical pain on her in numerous ways.

The couple were married November 24, 1919, and separated June 15, 1922.

STAYED OUT LATE.

Anywhere between 1 and 5 o'clock in the morning was the hour that John H. Von Salzen chose to return to his home, according to Gussie A. Von Salzen's suit for divorce. In the meantime the wife was at home alone, she declares. Von Salzen not only stayed out late night after night, but he refused to account for his absences, she declares.

The end came, says the wife, when her husband told her that he was tired of her and that "married life was the bunk."

The couple were married April 14, 1917, and separated January 11, 1923.

Application is made to the superior court for an order restraining Minnie Rephun from disposing of $3500 which John Rephun declares she drew from his account in the bank against his will.

Rephun, who lives at 1064 Fifth avenue, says that coincident with the disappearance of the money his wife took the minor children of the couple and left his home. He says he has learned that she has been unduly friendly with another man, whose name he does not know. He declares that the money taken by his wife is his separate property.

Annulment Sought By Wife Under Age

SAN JOSE, July 7.—Dorothy McKenzie Bischoff yesterday instituted suit in the Santa Clara county superior court for annulment of her marriage to Henry Charles Bischoff, alleging that on July 12, 1922, when the wedding took place at Redwood City, she was under the age of consent and did not have the consent of parents. Mrs. Bischoff is now seventeen years of age. She is represented in the action by Attorney Louis Oneal.

WILL BUILD SUB-STATION.

Application was made to the city building department today by the Pacific Gas & Electric company for a permit to build a one story concrete substation at the foot of Fiftieth avenue, costing $31,000.

NO OPERATION FOR HER

She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Escaped the Operation Doctor Advised

Louisville, Ky.—"I wish to thank you for what your medicine has done for me. I was in bed for eight or nine days every month and had a great deal of pain. The doctor said my only relief was an operation. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines and tried the Vegetable Compound and the Sanative Wash, and they surely did wonders for me. I feel fine all the time now, also am picking up in weight. I will tell any one that your medicines are wonderful, and you may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. ED. BOEHNLEIN, 1130 Ash St., Louisville, Ky.

Backache, nervousness, painful times, irregularity, tired and run-down feelings, are symptoms of female troubles. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be taken whenever there is reason to fear such troubles. It contains nothing that can injure, and tends to tone up and strengthen the organs concerned, so that they may work in a healthy, normal manner. Let it help you as it has thousands of others. It is now selling almost all over the world.

$650 Per Acre Is Demanded For Land

Six hundred and fifty dollars an acre is the price asked by Antonia F. Coria, of Newark, for land wanted by the city and county of San Francisco for rights-of-way in connection with its Hetch Hetchy water supply.

This fact developed in an answer filed on behalf of Coria in the superior court today to a condemnation suit filed by the city some time ago. In addition to the acreage value the court is asked to award $2000 severance damages.

The suit of the city of San Francisco named 295 defendants in Alameda county, of which Coria was one.

THEY CALLED HIM AN "OLD PILL"

THAT was years ago when he packed a terrible grouch, a mighty irritable stomach and a liver that refused to do the things that all good livers should. No wonder his friends called him an "old pill" and stayed away.

But that was years ago—long before he discovered Beecham's Pills and learned that two at bedtime can bring sunshine into a man's life. Today, he's an optimist, a hero to his wife, and a staunch believer in Beecham's Pills.

The cheer that Beecham's Pills bring into a man's disposition, is the incomparable cheer of sound digestion, active liver, and the regular habits that make good health.

Late Hours Cause For San Jose Divorce

SAN JOSE, July 7.—Divorce proceedings were instituted in the superior court here yesterday by Mrs. Joseph D. Lazier, wife of Joseph D. Lazier, laundry man and a candidate for city councilman at the last election. Mrs. Lazier charges that her husband remained out late at night without making any satisfactory explanation and that he has treated her rudely. Lazier made no contest in the proceedings yesterday. Superior Judge F. B. Brown is hearing the case. Attorney Louis Oneal represents Mrs. Lazier.

Fifteenth Street Buildings to Be Gone in 30 Days

Buildings along the line of the future Fifteenth street are expected to be torn down in the next thirty days and the street probably will be cut through before the rains, according to officials in the street department and the city attorney's office.

All assessments have been paid by property owners in the assessment district, and the city has started paying off the present owners of the right-of-way. More than $300,000 will be used for the cutting of Fifteenth street from Broadway to Harrison, one-fourth of this amount coming from the city's treasury.

"By this time next month," says Assistant City Attorney Markell Baer, "we expect to start tearing down the structures in the way; and Oakland soon will have another cross-town traffic artery. The speed with which the assessment district has paid up shows that the cutting of the street is a popular move."

Stage Overturns; Driver Is Injured

An empty stage of the California Transit Company, which was being driven to Livermore by M. Mund, one of the company's drivers, for use as an extra conveyance, overturned at Ninetieth avenue and Foothill boulevard today and Mund is believed to have been injured.

When members of the police force from the Eastern station reached the place where the accident had occurred they were told by passersby that the driver had been hurt and that he had been taken away by passing autoists for medical attention.

A check of the hospitals and doctors' offices is being made to learn whether or not Mund was seriously injured. The accident is said to have been caused when a wheel came off the machine while it was going at a considerable rate of speed.

AUTO BREAKS BOY'S JAW.

Donald Ackl, 8 years old, was treated today at Providence hospital for a broken jaw received when he was run down by an automobile driven by Dr. C. R. McKenzie, 3309 Kansas street. The accident occurred at Fruitvale avenue and East Twenty-second avenue. Dr. McKenzie took the injured boy to the hospital and attended to his injury. The boy was attempting to cross the street and became confused.

SIX INDICTED IN SHIPYARD PROBE BY GRAND JURY

Oakland and S. F. Men Are Accused of Illegal Sale of U. S. Property.

Alleged fraudulent sale of government property at the Liberty shipyard of the Emergency Fleet corporation in Alameda has resulted in the indictment of three shipping board officials and three civilians by the federal grand jury in San Francisco. Three of the accused men are from Oakland, the others from San Francisco. The Oakland men are:

Those from San Francisco are:

R. H. Borland, 1415 Clay street, manager San Francisco department of purchases and supplies, United States shipping board.

T. G. Baird, 16 California street, director of Oregon district, United States shipping board.

O. J. Seegaard, 16 California street, clerk for Iron and Metal company.

The six indicted men are charged with having cheated the government out of approximately $100,000 through sales of material from the Liberty Shipyard to unauthorized persons, following "fake" bids. The sales in many cases, it is chargd, were far below the market value of materials, and in some instances no payment of money was required of the purchasers. Some of the material sold in this way, it is charged, was sold by the purchasers at considerably higher prices without being removed from the Liberty Shipyard.

The property consisted of "surplus materials" which remained in the shipyard when its use was discontinued by the government after the war. It included railroad tracks and ties and other equipment of the shipyard.
